SENATE MUST VOTE ON THE WORLD COURT DESPITE COMMITTEE

King Motion Today to Take Up Harding Proposal Will Force a Line-Up.

LODGE SPEAKS FOR DELAY

BORAH SEEKS MORE FACTS

Harding, It Is Rumored, Will Appeal to the Country on Blocking of Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—While the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations today laid the foundation for preventing action in the present Congress on President Harding's recommendation that the United States join the League of Nations Court of Justice, the whole subject is to be aired in the Senate tomorrow afternoon. What is more important, the Senate will be obliged to vote on the question of taking up the President's proposal for consideration. This will afford a fair idea of how the Senate stands.

The occasion for the airing in the Senate will be a motion by Senator King of Utah, a Democrat, that his resolution of yesterday relating to the court of justice shall be taken up for consideration. This resolution provides for the Senate's sanction of the protocol establishing the world court with reservations exactly similar to those suggested by Secretary Hughes in his letter accompanying President Harding's recommendation that the United States become a full fledged member of the court. One reservation expressly provides that the adherence of this Government shall not be taken to involve any legal relation to the League of Nations or the assumption by this Government of any obligation under the League covenant.

Lodge for Dilatory Step.

Senator King served notice today that he would move tomorrow that his resolution be taken up for consideration. As Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee Senator Lodge countered by moving that the resolution be referred to that committee. This will be in accordance with the decision of the committee today to defer action on the President's proposal until further information on the subject has been obtained. At the same time it seemingly places Mr. Lodge, the Republican floor leader, in the position of going contrary to the wishes of President Harding, who asked the Senate to give the sanction requested before Congress finally adjourns next Sunday.

The whole proceeding following the President's recommendation has produced a complex and interesting political situation which will be carried into public discussions this Summer. Democratic Senators are rather elated over the outlook. As they see it the Republican Senate has declined to follow the lead of the Republican President, while most of the Democratic Senators are ready to stand by him in his effort to bring the United States into association with the International Court of Justice set up by the League of Nations in the interest of preserving world peace.

Harding May Appeal to Country.

As for the President, there is an expectation that he, too, will have something to say about Senate obstruction of his policies. Rumors are in circulation that he intends to tell the country how the Senate defeated his Ship Subsidy bill, not by the square defeat of an adverse vote but by taking advantage of the liberal Senate rules to prevent any vote at all.

The rumor does not stop there. It credits the President with the intention of making a campaign this Summer in behalf of his world court idea. While his plan for a visit to Alaska has not been drawn, it is known that he contemplates making the trip, which will necessitate a transcontinental tour. Some of his friends have been urging him to make it a fighting tour with his speeches devoted to telling what he has sought to accomplish and how his failures have been due to obstruction by certain Senators.

Nothing has come from the White House to justify belief in the rumor, but the idea is prevalent that the President after a cordial relationship with the the Senate, the offspring of his former membership in that body and his aversion to taking any step that would give color to the charge that the Executive is trespassing on the constitutional prerogatives of the legislative branch of the Government, is now about to speak his mind in a way that may not be pleasing to those who advocate a strict line of demarkation between the White House and the Capitol.

Pockets Invalred Delay.

It is a toss-up whether the President, in spite of his recommendation that the Senate act on the world court proposal in the final week of the present Congress, is keenly disappointed over the knowledge that action is to be deferred. A White House spokesman explained today that the President did not regard it as vital that the Senate should give his sanction immediately. While he would like to see the Senate act quickly, he felt that as the court was already established and functioning, it doubtless would be in the same status when Congress reassembled and the Senate gets

Billion Rode in the Subway And an Elevated in 1922

More than one billion passengers—1,000,000,000, to be exact—were carried on the subway and elevated lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company during 1922, according to figures made public yesterday by the company.

A statement showed that mileage had increased 107 per cent. since 1905, while the number of passengers had increased 174 per cent. The lines had in 1905 a total of 180 miles of single track. In 1922 this had increased to 373 miles of single track.

SYRACUSE HEAD HITS ANTI-JEWISH MOVE

Won't Tolerate Discrimination, Says Flint to Senior Council Proposal for Limiting.

STUDENTS WILL DROP IDEA

Circular From University Group, Urging Jews to Come, Said to Have Stirred Up Feeling.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Discrimination against Jews will not be tolerated in any form by the Trustees of Administration of Syracuse University, said Chancellor Charles Wesley Flint tonight in a vigorous denunciation of an unofficial proposal by the Senior Council, the student governing body, to limit the enrolment of Jewish students to a definite number.

Following the publication this afternoon of reports that the council, after a discussion last night, appointed a committee of three to make student sentiment known to the university officials, Chancellor Flint took quick action to learn who were the supporters of the "limitation" proposal and ascertain the cause of the anti-Semitic agitation. He summoned all the members of the Senior Council to appear before him tomorrow morning.

When the Chancellor first heard of the reported action of the council he was plainly upset. He said:

"Widespread report of this unfortunate and ill-advised proposal of the council will do more harm to Syracuse University than many years can offset. I would not dignify such a report with a statement."

"Ridiculous," Says Flint.

Later he made this statement:

"In the first place I have no definite information that the Senior Council has considered the matter, and if such action was taken it is so ridiculous from the standpoint of administration that I do not consider it worthy of comment. No limitation of the number of Jewish students will be tolerated in this institution."

Vice Chancellor Graham was quoted as saying:

"The university has no intention of limiting the admission of students in any way provided they meet the present standards for entrance."

Faculty members and a majority of the student body itself branded the anti-Jewish move as "childish" and "asinine."

Up to a late hour neither Chancellor Flint nor Vice Chancellor Graham had been approached by the Council Committee, and there were reports that the proposed visit had been given up in view of Chancellor Flint's prompt declaration against the council's proposal.

There were further rumors that a general denial by council members of any anti-Semitic discussion at the meeting would be made to the Chancellor tomorrow in the hope that the matter would be dropped.

Ruland Cornwall, President of the Senior Council, made a flat denial that exclusion of Jewish students, or limitation of their numbers, was advocated at the meeting of the governing body, but other members admitted that the subject was thoroughly discussed and that the committee was appointed to report the student sentiment to the administration. An understanding was reached before the discussion, it was said, that it should not be included in the minutes of the meeting and should not have the "official" approval of the council.

Incensed by a Circular.

There are various versions as to the action taken by the Senior Council and the reasons for it.

The Senior Council comprises seventeen students, members of the senior class and representative of various phases of student activity. Its mission is mostly advisory. Some members are elected, but others are members by reason of holding other college offices. The

GOODS FOR AMERICA WORTH $6,000,000 HELD UP IN RUHR

Germans Refuse to Pay Heavy Duty on Exports Imposed by French.

FOREIGN BUSINESS WORRIED

Agents of British, Dutch and Even French Firms Clamoring for Fulfillment of Contracts.

LAST RUHR CANAL BLOCKED

Bochum Makes Impressive Demonstration of Funeral of Workman Shot by Sentry.

ESSEN, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Plans designed to unravel the problem of filling delayed orders from the United States, held up by the occupation, are being worked out, but nothing yet has been definitely decided upon.

These orders amount to approximately $6,000,000. They were placed months ago, and consist chiefly of silks, velvets, lace, millinery, and also steel rails, pig iron and fishplates. Most of the orders were placed f. o. b. at the German port, payable at New York. So far as is known, none of them has been shipped.

According to a scheme worked out by the French, it would be quite possible for American buyers to obtain goods by paying the export tax, which the Germans refused to pay.

Foreign Business Men Worried.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 27 (via Cologne).—Düsseldorf is beginning to be crowded with French, Belgian, British, Dutch and other business men whom the terms of the French occupation in the Ruhr are beginning to worry. All day long they have been besieging the officers of Colonel Filippi, Chief of the Custom Service, in a vain effort to discover ways and means of getting out of the district goods ordered months and in some cases, years ago.

Among them there are representatives of two British firms whose orders run above £500,000 each and who are now faced with the prospect of having to pay another 26 per cent. on the purchase price if they are to secure delivery of the machinery which they are anxiously awaiting.

Under the French system no steel and iron products can be exported by the Germans without previous purchase of a license costing 26 per cent. of the value of the export. This license the Germans have been ordered by Berlin not to pay, and they are naturally not averse to obeying loyally such an order. To obtain delivery of their goods, purchasing firms therefore are being forced to buy licenses themselves, thereby adding 26 per cent. to the cost of purchase and incidentally paying a share of reparations.

As the goods were ordered and contracts made in each of the two British cases mentioned in 1921, one of the two firms is trying its best to make a fight against payment. So far, however, the French have proved adamant. It does not matter to them who pays the license tax so long as they receive it.

British Charge Discrimination.

The British allege that special favor is being given French and Belgian cases, but except in so far as these are being dealt with before those of other nationalities there is no proof of any such discrimination. Representatives of some of the French firms indeed are most vociferous in denunciation of the extra tax, which must inevitably fall ultimately on the consumer.

Today at Coblenz an important meeting took place between the French and Belgian members of the Rhineland Commission, General Degoutte, General Payot, M. Coste and other chief administrators of the district to decide upon the future railroad régime in the Rhineland and discuss also this license system. As was cabled last week, it is the intention of the French to place the whole Rhineland railroad system under a civil administration, at the head of which will be a Frenchman, with French and Belgian assistants. This authority will take the place of the German railroad administration, which the French consider as having voluntarily abandoned the task of working the railroads.

The new administration will have

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Arthur C. Lueder, the Brundage-Crowe-Deneen coalition candidate, won the Republican nomination for Mayor easily in today's primaries. He defeated Edward R. Litsinger, the Lundin-Hearst candidate, who led the forlorn remnants of Mayor William Hale Thompson's forces, by 54,144. The vote was 128,794 for Lueder and 74,500 for Litsinger.

The other two candidates, free lances, ran considerably behind, but here came the only surprise of the primary. Arthur M. Millard, President of the Masonic Bureau of Service and Employment, ran ahead of the avowed "beer and wine" aspirant, Municipal Judge Bernard P. Barasa, by 51,054 to 46,890.

There were 301,008 Republican ballots and 165,338 Democratic Mayoralty ballots recorded, a total of 466,346.

Lueder's victory was much bigger than his managers expected. His two running mates—William H. Cruden for City Clerk and John V. Healy for City Treasurer—had no opposition.

On the Democratic side there was only one ticket—Judge William E. Dever for Mayor, Al F. Gorman for City Clerk, and John A. Cervenka for City Treasurer. Early indications were that the Democrats had managed to get out what was considered a large primary vote under the circumstances.

While the Republicans are loudly proclaiming unification of their party in Chicago, the Democrats are more than ever confident of their ability to elect their candidate for Mayor. Bearing in mind the schism that had prevailed in the Republican ranks, the scandals of the present City Hall Administration, and the crushing burden of taxation that has been placed upon the citizens of Chicago since the election of William Hale Thompson as Mayor eight years ago, they regard the chances of electing a Democratic Mayor of Chicago as exceedingly bright.

Morton D. Hull won hands down the Republican nomination for Congress in the Second District to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative James R. Mann. The Democratic nominee is Barratt O'Hara, former Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Hull had a plurality of more than 5,000 over his nearest rival, Mrs. Winnifred Mason Huck, who was elected last year as Representative-at-Large to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her father.

MRS. KEMAL CHARMS AN AMERICAN VISITOR

Beautiful Bride Pours Tea for Foreign Newspaper Men in Home Near Angora.

SHE IS FOR WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Eighty Per Cent. of the Turkish Women Emancipated Already, Kemal Declares.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

ANGORA, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Mustapha Kemal held an "at home" and poured tea for foreign newspaper men today, shattering a five centuries tradition and bringing a modern European atmosphere into the life of the new Turkish Government. Mr. and Mrs. Kemal carried out the object of the interview when they discussed educational, industrial and professional walks of life, as well as their plans for establishing co-education throughout the schools.

The Kemals live five miles out of town in a house given them by the Grand National Assembly, which regards Kemal in the same light as Americans do George Washington. It is two stories high and located on a hill, overlooking the Angora Valley for miles.

The political and military life of Kemal is public, but his home life is a mystery except to friends. Hence there was more than usual expectancy among the guests, including a British newspaper man, a photographer, Bulgarian newspaper men and myself, as we passed the sentries and arrived at the door, where a guard was ready to receive us. We entered a big anteroom with a marble fountain, which was not running, in the middle of the tesselated tile floor, and were immediately ushered into a big room, best described as Kemal's den, where Premier Raouf Bey introduced us to Mr. and Mrs. Kemal.

The room itself radiated the personality of Kemal. It was a mixture of the Orient and Occident. Heavy Oriental rugs covered the floor and over the windows were modern lace curtains, surmounted by Persian tapestries. In a corner was a heavy Chippendale writing desk and in the centre a long table, where a copyist was busy. On a delicately worked brass centre table books and magazines were piled and also a big box of famous American chocolates. Crossed swords and daggers and pictures hung on the walls, one of which last was a gift from the City of Beirut, showing Kemal uniting the Arabs and Indians.

Gold incense-burners and Oriental vases and bric-a-brac were on the shelves and tables. Leaning against the wall was a marble tablet of ancient Greek design, showing Turkey victorious, breaking the shackles of oppression and rising triumphant. In this semi-Oriental atmosphere were heavy leather upholstered chairs, but one divan was covered in an Oriental fashion.

Wife Has Many American Friends.

After the exchange of formalities Mrs. Kemal directed the conversation to the sphere of woman. She has numerous American friends, and her father is a former member of the New York Cotton Exchange. Though she has never visited America, she was educated in England and France and therefore is familiar with women's activities in the United States. She laughed when a correspondent declared that American women usurped all the privileges of men without taking over the responsibilities, and that America was the only country in the world where a sentimental jury would excuse the brutality of husband killing. This was not the goal of Turkish women, she said.

"My husband and myself are in perfect accord on the question of woman's sphere, as we are on all political questions," she said.

She then translated the conversation, which so far had been in English, to Kemal, who replied that a woman must be regarded as a partner and comrade of a man, even to the point of abolishing men's clubs and women's clubs in favor of clubs for both men and women, without segregation.

When asked if Turkey was prepared to give woman their freedom, Kemal made a long explanation which his wife and Raouf Bey translated. In the first place, he said, Europeans did not know the real conditions in Turkey, which was not surprising, as many Turkish readers were ignorant of them. Eighty per cent. of the Turkish women, he said, enjoyed the same rights as

FRED STONE, ACTOR, TURNS TO RELIGION

Promises Butte Pastor to Give One-Tenth of His Earnings to Christian Work.

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 27.—A yearning for religion which Fred Stone, the well-known comedian, had entertained for twenty-odd years was realized less than days ago when he got on his knees before the congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church and pledged himself henceforth to follow, as closely as it was in him, the life of Christ.

His return to the strict tenets of the religion which he had accepted more than a score of years before was brought about primarily by his being snowbound for a whole week in North Dakota while he was on tour with the "Tip Top" company, of which he is the star.

As he told the Rev. Cecil Leslie Clifford, pastor of the Mountain View church, on his arrival here on the afternoon of Feb. 17 last, the monotony of his stay in the snowbound train had given him plenty of opportunity to think on the incompleteness of life without intense religion, and he decided that henceforth he would devote as much of his time as possible to prayer to God.

As the train on which he and his company rode neared Billings, Mont., Stone decided to purchase a Bible to see if a perusal of it would assuage the loneliness he felt. Up to a short time before he had been accompanied on the Western tour by his wife and his daughter Dorothy, but a few weeks ago they returned to their home on Long Island, New York.

Stone said that in the trip to Butte from Billings he found the source of his increasing lonliness. He was convinced it was an absence of religious consolation. When Stone and his company reached here on the evening of Saturday, Feb. 17, the comedian made his way to the little Mountain View Church and asked for the pastor.

He was invited into the study beside the church and in a few minutes the actor was unfolding the story of his stage career, how he had been baptised in the Methodist Episcopal Church twenty or more years before, how he had drifted from religion in the years of his active stage career and how he wanted to get back into religious life.

Prays On Knees For Grace.

The result was that Stone, on the request of the clergyman, got on his knees with the Rev. Mr. Clifford and fervently prayed to God that he be given grace to ever remain in close communion with His teachings.

The next morning Stone appeared at the service in the church and with bowed head listened devoutly to every word uttered by the preacher in his sermon. The sermon dwelt on property ownership. When the congregation had filed out of the edifice the comedian made his way to the rectord and, grasping the clergyman by the hand, he told him how much he felt he had been improved by it.

The actor hung around the church and watched the children entering the Sunday school room. He told the Rev. Mr. Clifford he wanted to go there, too. He felt that children could inspire one more than any other thing in a thirst for close communion with Jesus Christ.

He made his way to a corner of the room and watched for some time. Then he said that he felt that he should tell something of what he had gone through and how he had long had a desire to return again to devote his every possible thought to Christ.

Later he ascended the pulpit and told of his determination to follow in the footsteps of Christ and add others to the likewise. At the conclusion of his address he dropped to his knees at the chancel rail and said aloud the Lord's Prayer.

10 Per Cent. of Earnings to Church.

The congregation was struck with the fervor of his words and within a short time Fred Stone's turning to religion was the talk of Butte. Then it became known that during his talk with the Rev. Mr. Clifford that Sunday he had promised to give 10 per cent. of his earnings to the advancement of Christian work. It also became known that before he left the Sunday School in the Mountain View Church that day he had subscribed upward of $100 toward its maintenance.

RATES UP 10,000% TO BIG PHONE USERS, SAYS MAX WINKLER

HOTELS ARE HIT HARDEST

Small Subscribers Also Suffer by New Schedule Beginning Tomorrow.

COMPANY FIGURES DISPUTED

Annual Increase in Revenue Nearer $12,500,000 Than $2,500,000, Expert Declares.

The increase in the revenues of the New York Telephone Company through the new rates fixed by the Public Service Commission will amount to about $2,500,000 a year, according to the commission, but according to Max H. Winkler, a lawyer and an expert in telephone matters, it will amount to something like four or five times more than this estimate. The telephone company has announced that it will put the new rates into effect tomorrow, reserving the right to take such action as it pleases if the increase is not deemed sufficient to yield a reasonable return on the investment.

Today the full commission will meet in Albany and will decide an application by civic organizations for a reopening of the hearings and for a modification of the provision placing the charge to subscribers on a monthly instead of a yearly basis. At the hearing on the application on Monday Mr. Winkler submitted to the commission a brief in which he stated that with few exceptions the telephone rates would be increased under the new schedules from 5 cents to $3.50 a month, according to the number of messages used, and that in addition toll rates between certain parts of the city would be raised from 5 cents to 10 cents a message.

Mr. Winkler says that the cost of cordless switchboards, limited to seven stations, will be increased to $30 a year from the present rate of from $18 to $24; those limited to thirty station drops will be increased from the present rate of $36 a year to $54, and those limited to eighty station drops, which now cost $36, will cost under the new rates $72.

Advance in Switchboards.

The increases for cord switchboards, Mr. Winkler says, will be as follows:

Switchboards of more than eighty station drops, which now cost $36, will hereafter cost $10 per position, which in the case of large subscribers, having ten, twenty or thirty positions, will be an increase from $36 to year to $1,200 a year for ten positions, to $2,400 a year for twenty positions and to $3,600 a year for thirty positions."

The larger increases, Mr. Winkler explained, will mainly affect the big hotels and other industries needing extensive service for the public accommodation. His brief says that extension phones have been increased 10 and 5 cents a month, according to the number installed in any one place. The minimum message charge, the brief states, will be increased from 2½ to 3 cents, and the cost of installing a new telephone will be increased from $3.50 to $5 for each installation, and "inasmuch as the company proposes to install 250,000 telephones during 1923 this increased cost will amount to $375,000, the difference between $3.50 and $5."

Mr. Winkler says that on Dec. 31, 1921, the outstanding capital stock of the New York Telephone Company amounted to $204,602,000 par value of $100 and that on the same date the funded debt of the company was $130,607,165. Of the latter, $50,000,000 is represented by a refunding mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, which were issued October, 1921, and sold in November following at 97 plus interest.

Attacks Justice of Increase.

He says that the only possible justification for an increase in telephone rates can be found in the conditions on which these mortgage bonds were issued because:

"There is nothing in the value of the plant or in the cost of operation or in the rates charged, and the income derived therefrom by the company, that can possibly justify at this time an increased charge for telephone service in this city.

"Such increases cannot be justified upon any theory except it be to enable the company to issue additional bonds under this refunding mortgage 'from

Has Traveled 975,000 Miles In 25 Years of Commuting

Special to The New York Times.

BEACON, Feb. 27.—Lewis Ebert of Beacon, who has just rounded out twenty-five years as a commuter between his home and lower Manhattan, estimates that he has traveled about 975,000 miles during the period. He doubts if many commuters have mileage records that equal this.

Between his home and his office the distance is about sixty-five miles, so he travels 130 miles a day or about 39,000 miles a year. He spends about five hours daily riding on New York Central trains, subway trains and street cars.

He has told friends that he enjoys commuting as it affords rest and relaxation to ride so much.

MANY RUSH OUT IN PANIC

Big Mirror in Lackawanna Waiting Room in Hoboken Shattered—Three Arrested.

Shots, screams of women, the cries of the injured and the crash of a shivered mirror started a panic-stricken rush from the crowded waiting room of the Lackawanna Railroad terminal in Hoboken last night, when two men tried to hold up a third in sight of hundreds.

Their intended victim, although beaten to his knees with a blackjack and kicked by his assailants, fought his way to his feet, whipped out an automatic pistol and emptied it in a wild spray, one bullet striking a woman, another striking one of the alleged hold-up men, a third shattering a big looking-glass and the two others penetrating harmlessly against the walls.

According to the Hoboken police the man who successfully resisted attack, Robert Amrien, of 50 River Street, Hoboken, had $1,897 in his pockets when they searched him. Amrien was charged with atrocious assault and battery and having a pistol. Victor Rubish, after an ambulance surgeon had dressed a bullet wound in his elbow, went to a cell on a charge of atrocious assault and battery, as did Eugene Curry, who, the police alleged, was Rubish's companion.

A Jersey City policeman and a New Jersey State trooper who chanced to be in the station aided Hoboken policemen and railroad attaches in capturing the combatants and quieting the excited crowd.

The policeman and trooper leaped at Amrien just as he started blazing away, but by the time they could close in his pistol was empty. Mrs. Isabella Barclow of 1,405 North Sixteenth Street, Philadelphia, had fallen with a bullet in her forearm, and Rubish, alleged wielder of the blackjack, was clutching a shattered elbow and dancing with pain.

When the three men in the fracas had been captured they were rushed to Police Headquarters, whither Mrs. Barclow also was taken that she might receive the attention of an ambulance surgeon. Her wound was found not to be serious.

Hoboken detectives who began an investigation believed that word that Amrien was arriving with the money from New York had been spread among the underworld in Hoboken. They said that Rubish and Curry rushed to the station in an automobile to meet Amrien. When he appeared Rubish pulled a blackjack and started the trouble. The detectives added that they thought they knew the driver of the car that carried two men to the station and that they expected to arrest him soon.

SHOT SIX TIMES AND KILLED

Elizabeth Police Arrest Two Men 20 Minutes After Assassination.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 27.—Calosso Pietrino of 248 Avenue A, Manhattan, was found lying face downward in Fourth Avenue, about twenty feet back from South Street, early today, with six shots in his chest. He died in an ambulance on the way to the General Hospital.

Pietrino was identified by a card of the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital Dispensary, showing that he had been receiving treatment for stomach and intestinal trouble. The police found $24.67 in cash in the man's clothes.

About twenty minutes after the shooting Patrolman Peter Buckley arrested George Colletti and James Fortorella, both of New York. They denied having even heard the shooting.

WOMAN IS HELD WHEN ALIBI FAILS IN BRONX MURDER

Mrs. Buzzi, With Whom Schneider Had Lived, Unable to Raise $25,000 Bail.

HYSTERICAL IN HER CELL

Swears She Didn't Leave House —Stationer Says He Saw Her Driving Alone in Car.

STORIES OF JEALOUSY TOLD

Mrs. Anna Buzzi, 30 years old, an expert pistol shot and a member of the Woman's Motor Corps during the war, was held in $25,000 bail yesterday as a material witness in the murder of Frederick Schneider, a wealthy Bronx contractor, who was shot and killed in his automobile Monday afternoon on a lonely road at Clason Point. Unable to furnish the bail, she was locked up in the Bronx County Jail last night.

She became hysterical, shrieked and pounded the wall when they put her in a cell. She called repeatedly for "Fred," and insisted that he would tell the authorities all about it. From this she went on to protestations of her love for "Fred, my sweetheart," and many declarations of her innocence. She had spent most of the previous night in the Morrisania Police Station, unable to sleep, and had been questioned for six hours consecutively by the police and District Attorney Edward Glennon. All this strain seemed too much for her and her modish clothes and good looks wilted under the pressure.

Lived With Schneider Eight Years.

Mrs. Buzzi described herself as Schneider's "housekeeper," but admitted to the police that she had been living with him since her husband, Andrew Buzzi, proprietor of a hat-cleaning store, divorced her eight years ago, naming Schneider as co-respondent. She was born in Russia, but came here as a child with her parents. Her father is Alexander Krekshnes, a wagon builder, of 2,169 Madison Avenue.

Mrs. Buzzi and Schneider had quarreled frequently in the last few months, according to information obtained by the authorities. This it was said, was because of Schneider's flair for philandering and the woman's flaming jealousy. In the five-room apartment at 1,152 Grand Concourse, where Schneider lived with Mrs. Buzzi, detectives found several letters written to the contractor by women, some of them married. Mrs. Schneider, who never divorced her husband, but lived alone at 131 West Kingsbridge Road under a separation agreement, had remained on friendly terms with her husband, and Mrs. Buzzi is said to have been jealous of Mrs. Schneider as well as other women.

Jealous of Schneider's Stenographer.

The authorities have learned that Mrs. Buzzi had quarreled with Schneider over a girl employed by him as one of the three stenographers in the office of his contracting firm, Fred Schneider, Inc., on Westchester Avenue, near the Bronx River. District Attorney Glennon admitted yesterday afternoon that he had taken a statement from this girl, but declined to give her name.

"I learned from the stenographer," said Mr. Glennon, "that there was what you might call cause for jealousy. Schneider had told this girl that Mrs. Buzzi was very jealous of them. From what I could learn, this affair had been going on since some time last Summer. The girl is very good looking and lives with her parents in the Bronx. She is one of the three stenographers that Schneider took to their luncheon places Monday noon before he went on to the Y. M. C. A. for his own luncheon. She says he said nothing to her about Mrs. Buzzi at that time."

The parents of the stenographer and several friends of Schneider also informed the District Attorney that they had known Mrs. Buzzi to be of a very jealous disposition.

Diary Indicated Quarrels.

Mr. Glennon said that a small memorandum book had been found in the dead man's pocket, with entries that indicated quarrels with Mrs. Buzzi. One of these notations, he said, ran something like this: "She threatened to throw soup in my face today. I've never heard a female use such vile language." This was dated Jan. 3. The memorandum book also contained, according to the District Attorney, various names, addresses and telephone numbers. Some of these names were those of women, including that of the stenographer whose friendship with Schneider had aroused Mrs. Buzzi's jealousy.

Mr. Glennon pointed out several discrepancies between Mrs. Buzzi's statement and the stories told by two other witnesses. According to the prosecutor, Mrs. Buzzi, in denying that she had anything to do with the shooting, insisted that she did not go out with Schneider on Monday, in fact, that she had not stirred from her apartment all day. Contradicting this, Mr. Glennon says, is a statement from Henry Shidlowitz, a stationer, that he saw her passing his store at 1,487 Westchester Avenue about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, driving a touring car that answers the description of Schneider's machine, in which he was found dead an hour later.

Shidlowitz says it was a five or seven-passenger car with the curtains drawn, because of the rain, the District Attorney adds.

Harding's Florida Trip to Be a Golfing Cruise; Gillett and Lasker Among Houseboat Guests

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Because of many conflicting rumors concerning the forthcoming Florida vacation trip of the President and Mrs. Harding, the White House today made public the personnel of the houseboat party that will sail from Ormond along the inland waterways of the East Coast next Tuesday, the date of the Harding party's arrival in Florida.

Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, whose husband will be host of the cruise, will be the only women guests in the party on board the houseboat Pioneer. With the President, the other members of the party will be Speaker Gillett, Attorney General Daugherty, Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board, George E. Christian Jr., secretary to the President; Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, the Hardings' physician, and Jess W. Smith of Washington Court House, Ohio, lifelong friend of the Attorney General. Secretary and Mrs. Weeks will leave Washington with the Harding party, but will leave the train at St. Augustine, where Mr. Weeks will spend several days before proceeding to a tour of the military posts of the country.

At Ormond the Harding party will board the houseboat chartered by Mr. McLean, and it is understood that Senator and Mrs. Frelinghuysen and a small party of friends on board their houseboat will join the cruise. The Frelinghuysens' houseboat, the Victoria, was the vessel that took Mr. Harding from St. Augustine to Miami and back when he visited Florida in the Winter of 1921.

It is expected that frequent stops will be made along the East Coast for golf, and that probably two weeks will be spent on the cruise to Miami. The latter part of March the Harding party is expected at St. Augustine for a few days.

Craig Gives 'the Air' to Grover A. Whalen, Evicting Him as Squatter in City Building

Controller Charles L. Craig, who wrote Mayor Hylan on Jan. 31 that Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, ought to "get the air" instead of more space in the Municipal Building, was instrumental yesterday in giving Mr. Whalen the treatment he recommended. He completed the process of having Mr. Whalen evicted from Rooms 513 to 517, on the fifth floor, of which the Commissioner had taken possession without apparent authority.

The Controller's office is on the same floor, and he noticed on last Thursday that six doors had been lettered "Department of Plant and Structures." As the allotment of space in the Municipal Building is made by the Sinking Fund Commission, of which the Controller is a member, and as he knew Mr. Whalen had received no authority to occupy the rooms from that body, Mr. Craig asked Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, who is custodian of the building, if he had given Mr. Whalen authority to occupy the rooms.

"Well, I should say not," Mr. Miller replied. "I want additional space myself."

Mr. Miller then took up the matter with Mr. Whalen and told him that he would have to move out of the rooms. Mr. Whalen, who was said by Mr. Miller to have admitted that he had learned that the rooms were unoccupied and that he had moved in the payroll division of his department without authority, was told by Mr. Miller that he would have to move out.

Mr. Whalen sent down a number of his employes and moved the furniture back to his offices on the eighteenth floor. Painters were at work yesterday afternoon removing the words "Department of Plant and Structures" from each glass door, erasing all signs of Mr. Whalen's brief occupancy.

The rooms, the partitions of which have now been removed, leaving one large room of about 5,000 feet of floor space, where recently occupied by the Department of Education as a drafting room. The draftsmen left several weeks ago, and Mr. Whalen took possession of the rooms vacated.

next door to her on College Avenue. He says she was driving north on Westchester Avenue, but that he did not notice whether any one else was in the car.

Schneider was sitting at the driver's wheel when his body was discovered, with his right hand in his coat pocket and his left hand hanging over the wheel. At the time the shots were fired, it is now believed, the murderer was in the tonneau of the car. Dr. Sellam Kennard, Assistant medical Examiner for the Bronx, said yesterday that the bullet in the back of the head had been fired from a distance, and that the person who did the shooting probably was sitting on the back seat and leaning forward. The other wound, through the right ear, was in contact wound, so that the second shot, Dr. Kennard believes, was fired with the revolver pressed against the man's head.

Police Have Her Clothing.

Shidrowitz has given the authorities a description of the clothing worn by Mrs. Buzzi when he saw her in the automobile which corresponds to clothing she is known to own. Nicholas Fuelner, the farmer who heard the shots and saw a woman hurrying away from the automobile, also gives a general description of the woman's figure and clothing that fits Mrs. Buzzi, although he had never seen her before.

"Fuelner says that the woman wore a dark coat with a light collar," said Mr. Glennon, "and Mrs. Buzzi had such a coat at her home. It was a dark blue cloth coat with a light squirrel collar. Fuelner also said that the woman wore a small dark hat, and Mrs. Buzzi has such a hat also. Both the coat and hat have been taken by the police. Both the coat and hat were clean and dry when I saw them last night and there was no mud or other marks on her dress, shoes, rubbers or other articles of clothing. Some time had elapsed, however, between the discovery of the murder and the visit of the police to Mrs. Buzzi's apartment."

Mr. Glennon disclosed that another important discrepancy had been found in Mrs. Buzzi's statement as compared with Fuelner's story and other evidence regarding the time the crime was committed.

Had Coffee and Cake Together.

"Mrs. Buzzi told me," said Mr. Glennon, "that Schneider told her when he left home Monday morning that he was going to the club that night, and that he would come home late in the afternoon for coffee and cake, as was his custom on days when he went to the club at night. She says she put the coffee on to boil at five minutes after 4 o'clock, fixing the time by saying that it was a few minutes after she heard the clock cuckoo four times.

"Schneider rang the bell at exactly five minutes after 5 o'clock, she says. This time she fixed because she looked at the clock when she heard the bell. He came in and went into the bathroom, coming out after five minutes. In all, he was home between fifteen and twenty minutes, she says, during which they had coffee and coffee cake together. She says they had a discussion about feeding their show dogs, Hulu and Zulu, and that she wrapped up two pieces of coffee cake for him to take in the car to feed the dogs with. The coffee cake was found in a package in the car, but it was very stale.

"Mrs. Buzzi insists that Schneider left the house alone between 5:20 and 5:25 o'clock. She declares that she did not go with him, and that she did not leave the house all day until she accompanied the detectives to the station house rather late in the evening."

Finds Discrepancies in Story.

Against Mrs. Buzzi's story that she and Schneider were together at home between 5:05 and 5:20 or 5:25 o'clock, it was pointed out, there are three contradictory statements. First, Shidrowitz's testimony that he saw her driving north on Westchester Avenue about 4:20 o'clock; second, a statement by Fuelner that the shooting occurred a few minutes after 5 o'clock, and that the police arrived "about half an hour later," and, third, a record at the telephone exchange showing that the ambulance call was put in at 5:34 o'clock.

Congressman-elect Frank Oliver, who is an Assistant District Attorney under Mr. Glennon, visited the scene of the crime yesterday afternoon with Fuelner, who made a statement.

"Fuelner says," Mr. Glennon went on, "that his attention was first attracted to the automobile shortly after 5 o'clock. He was gathering some hay to feed his animals when he heard an explosion. Looking up, he saw a car gradually coming to a stop. He estimated that it traveled from 100 to 200 feet before coming to a standstill. This noise had been a backfire Fuelner bent over his hay again. He looked up again soon, however, and saw a woman about ten feet from the car and walking rapidly away from it. She had evidently just stepped out of the car.

Tells of Woman Leaving Car.

"The woman walked down toward Clason Point. She had her hands pressed into deep slit pockets in the front of her coat, like pockets in an ulster, and her head was lowered. After walking about a block she turned around and looked back at the car for a second. She walked on another block, and then turned around for a second brief look at the automobile. Fuelner was curious and watched her. She kept on walking and Fuelner thought she was going to take the Clason Point trolley car that runs along Sea View Avenue at that place. The trolley car came along and stopped, but she did not get on. He continued watching her for a moment after the car went on, but returned to his work, and saw no more of her.

"All this time Fuelner did not realize that any shots had been fired. He went into his barn and was hard at work when his sister called to him that a policeman had found a dead man in the automobile. The first impression was that it was suicide, as the officer found a revolver near the body, and thought the bullet wound in the right ear could have been self-inflicted. How he could have thought this, however, with the man's right hand in his pocket, is something I cannot say. The officer found that the man's foot was still on the gas, the car was in speed and the ignition was shut off."

Revolver Was a .38 Colt.

Mr. Glennon said that the five-chambered .38 calibre Colt revolver, which was found with two discharged chambers in the automobile, had been shown to Mrs. Buzzi, but she had denied ever having it or seeing it. Mr. Glennon asked her if she had ever been in the army, and she replied that she had been an ambulance driver in this country during the war, but had never seen such a weapon. She admitted having practiced with firearms on the pistol range at Police Headquarters in connection with her war service. Cartridges for .22 and .32 calibre revolvers were found in her apartment, but none for a .38. The revolver was not Schneider's as far as known. The contractor, who was a Captain of engineers in the war, had a .45 automatic, which was found in his office desk. A double-barreled shotgun, used for hunting, was found in the flat. The police are trying to trace the owner of the revolver through its number. No finger prints were found on it. The murderer probably wore gloves.

Further information about Schneider's movements preceding the tragedy were learned yesterday. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon he visited Dr. Peter H. Friedman at the latter's office, 120 West Seventieth Street, leaving there at 3:10. His newphew, William Schneider, saw him about 3:30 o'clock at Broadway and 176th Street inspecting a construction job being done by his company. The last person known to have seen him before his death was Mr. Hindermann of J. Hindermann & Sons, warehouses, at 1,340 Webster Avenue, who gave him a check for $1,000 for some work done. The check was found in his pocket.

$100,000 Due Schneider for Work.

Schneider's financial affairs were in excellent shape and he had about $100,000 due him from the city on a job just completed on 161st Street. No will could be found, and it is not known whether he had any insurance. His friends said that he had been opposed to making a will.

His wife told the authorities that Schneider had always treated her well, making a good allowance and giving her an automobile for her own use. If there is no will Mrs. Schneider will receive one-half his personal property, plus $2,000 and the furniture, and one-third of his real property as her dower interest. Mrs. Schneider said she had always been very fond of her husband and had got along well with him despite the separation and his infatuation for Mrs. Buzzi.

Mrs. Buzzi also insisted that she had always got along well with Schneider and denied that they had quarreled over other women or had had trouble of any sort. The authorities investigated rumors that Schneider was about to become reconciled to his wife and had notified Mrs. Buzzi that he intended to leave her, but could find nothing to support this theory. It was also reported, but not verified, that Schneider had stopped payments on furniture for the apartment he occupied with Mrs. Buzzi and that the furniture was to be removed.

Mrs. Buzzi Once Ran Down Boy.

When Mrs. Buzzi was arraigned before Judge Pierce H. Russell in the Bronx County Court yesterday she was taken into the Judge's chambers instead of the open court. Asked if she had anything to say, she said she had told the police all she knew.

Mrs. Buzzi was arrested on Dec. 2, 1915, for driving away in an automobile after she had run down Robert Schwab of 3,005 Third Avenue, at Third Avenue and 168th Street. The car she was driving at that time belonged to Schneider. Mrs. Buzzi gave her name as Annie Ferner, 26, a housewife, of 1,140 College Avenue. She was held for the Grand Jury, but was acquitted by the direction of the court on Feb. 27, 1919, at a trial before Judge McAvoy in the Bronx County Court.

The divorce action against Mrs. Buzzi was started in New York County on Feb. 2, 1915. The case came before Justice Delehanty and Buzzi got a final decree on Aug. 12, 1915. Buzzi charged in his complaint that Schneider and Mrs. Buzzi had been living together for several months at 1,161 Longfellow Avenue.

CROWD HURLS STONES AT GIRL'S SLAYER

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 27.—While a crowd of men and women on the street shouted for swift justice, Wylie F. Morgan, slayer of six-year-old Lillian Gilmore, was held without bail today in a police station in the northeastern part of the city. Then when he was taken from the station to a prison van to be carried to City Hall a shower of stones and other missiles were hurled at the frightened prisoner. No one was struck and no arrests were made.

A ruse to save Morgan from harm was used by the police in taking him from the station. A policeman, dressed somewhat like the prisoner, was taken in view of the crowd to a prison van and when the crowd rushed in his direction Morgan was brought out and placed in another van, but not before some of the crowd realized what was being done and hurled missiles at the slayer.

Morgan's confession of kidnapping, attacking and killing the child, whose body was found on the ice of a creek 20 miles from here, was obtained by the police last night.

More than fifty policemen were in the hearing room of the station when Morgan was brought before a Magistrate. The details of the crime were quickly told, and the prisoner was held for action of the coroner.

A HOT TOWEL GEM THEFT.

Barber's Patron Being Shaved Says His $250 Pin Disappeared.

Giuseppe Dellavalli, a barber, was in the line-up at Police Headquarters yesterday after he had been arrested on a grand larceny charge.

Last night Nathan Ackerman went to the shop at 208 Varick Street and, before being shaved, divested himself of his collar and tie. In his tie he said he had a $250 diamond pin. Ackerman says that after Dellavalli had finished shaving him he placed a hot towel over his face. Later, Ackerman said, he removed the towel and found himself alone in the shop and the pin missing. Ackerman went to the Charles Street Police Station, where he told his story to Detective Shevlin, who arrested Dellavalli at his home, 64 Bank Street. He denied knowledge of the pin, but could offer no explanation as to why he had left the shop so suddenly without finishing his shaving job. The police say that in 1917 Dellavalli was sent to Sing Sing for five years for robbing a customer in a similar manner.

SHOT BY PATROLMAN.

Francis, Son of Timothy Griffin, Wounded During a Quarrel.

Francis Griffin, 24, son of Timothy Griffin, Democratic leader of the Twelfth Assembly District, and a nephew of former Representative Daniel J. Griffin, is a prisoner in Kings County Hospital, charged with felonious assault on Patrolman Herbert J. Corcoran of the Fifth Avenue Station, Brooklyn. Griffin, who lives at 288 Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, is being treated for a bullet wound in the left hip.

Patrolman Corcoran said that early yesterday morning, while at the corner of Fourth Avenue and Nineteenth Street, he heard a woman screaming half a block away. As he turned toward Fourth Avenue, he said, he saw three women and three men. The men walked away, but one of the women told him, he said, that they had tried to attack her. He overtook the men, he stated, and when they seized his nightstick and struck him he fired, the bullet striking Griffin, the patrolman said. The other two men escaped.

STATE CLOSES CASE IN SALUDES TRIAL

TO TELL HER STORY TODAY

Court Rules Out Ante-Mortem Statement — Attorney Outlines Points of Defense.

Judge Koenig, at the trial of Mrs. Paulette A. Saludes in General Sessions for the murder of Oscar Martelliere, an insurance broker, in his office at 100 William Street last October, yesterday ruled out an ante-mortem statement obtained from the dying man in a hospital soon after the shooting and which the prosecution expected would prove a strong link in the chain of evidence against the woman.

The refusal to admit the statement as evidence came after Miss Gertrude Thompson of 7 Portland Place, Tompkinsville, S. I., a stenographer in Martelliere's office, who witnessed the killing, had concluded her testimony under cross-examination by James A. Turley, counsel for the defendant. Miss Thompson withstood the cross-examination, changing her story in only a few minor details.

As Miss Thompson was leaving the witness stand Mrs. Saludes sobbed. This was the first time she broke down since she was placed on trial the day before. There was a recess for five minutes to enable the defendant to regain her composure, after which she maintained her usual calm demeanor.

Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers concluded the State's case shortly before 3 o'clock in the afternoon with the testimony of several detectives and a surgeon in the Beekman Street Hospital who operated on Martelliere when he was taken to the institution with four bullet wounds in his body. Then Mr. Turley, in an address to the jury, related how the slain man had been the cause of the separation of Mrs. Saludes from her husband, although Martelliere had a wife and small daughter, and that after the departure of the woman's husband for Europe Martelliere induced her to live with him and induced her to turn over to him her automobile and other property.

He said that he would show that Martelliere promised to marry Mrs. Saludes, husband of the accused woman, who at one time was the head of the Saludes Lumber Company and later connected with the Transatlantic Shipping Company, where Martelliere at one time had an office. He said that it was on Martelliere's recommendation that Saludes went to France after the failure of his firm, and that Martelliere joined the wife in seeing him off.

Mr. Turley said he would show that Martelliere's then began a campaign to turn Mrs. Saludes against her husband and sought to obtain possession of her property and the property of her husband by having himself appointed receiver for Saludes's firm. He said that Martelliere told her that he would marry her and that he had obtained a divorce from his wife.

"We will show that it was not until the last Summer, just before the shooting," the lawyer continued, "that the defendant learned that the things Martelliere had been telling her about her husband were untrue. We will show you that he cast her aside finally, and that on the morning of the shooting she was examined by a physician because of her distress."

The attorney said that Mrs. Saludes called at his office before she shot Martelliere and that she was in an agitated state of mind and incoherent. Mrs. Saludes returned to his office after the shooting, he said, and tried to kill herself with the pistol with which she had shot Martelliere.

"We will show you that she found this gun in Martelliere's office," Mr. Turley declared, "that she grabbed the gun to kill herself, and that in the scuffle that followed she had no recollection of what happened."

Miss Thompson in her testimony said that Mrs. Saludes fired two shots at Martelliere while he was at his office desk, and three more at him while he was dying on the floor.

It was understood that Mrs. Saludes would be called to the witness stand in her defense when the trial is resumed this morning.

THANKS WOMAN SENATOR.

Vermont Upper Chamber Votes Appreciation as She Wields Gavel.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Feb. 27.—After having had the distinction of being the first of her sex to preside over the Vermont Senate, Miss Edna L. Beard, Senator from Orange County, was the subject of a resolution of appreciation today when she laid down the gavel.

The resolution recited that the woman Senator had conducted the affairs of the chamber in "a most able and efficient manner."

The Senate rejected the bill, reported by the Committee on Fish and Game, to make the sale of cigarettes and cigarette materials illegal in this State. The committee had contended that many forest fires have been caused by careless cigarette smokers.

In the House of Representatives a Bill to abolish primary elections and providing for the return to the convention system was defeated by a vote of 179 to 48.

DIER CASHIER CASE FAILS.

Suit of Bankruptcy Trustee for Accounting Is Dismissed.

Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel, who heard the suit of Manfred W. Ehrich as trustee in bankruptcy of the brokerage firm of E. D. Dier & Co. against Fred Andrews, first cashier for the firm, for an accounting of sums he is alleged to have received from the firm on checks signed payable to him, dismissed the complaint yesterday, after the plaintiff's evidence had been concluded, on the ground that no case had been made out.

Detective Cunliff of the District Attorney's office was questioned as to whether he knew what had become of B. F. Schrimpton, who was manager for Dier & Co., but Cunliff said he had been unable to trace Schrimpton, although he had communicated with the Canadian authorities.

VOTE STOCK RISE BY RADIO.

Chicago Edison Shareholders Conduct Long-Distance Meeting.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—An adjunct to "big business" was the new rank achieved today by the radiophone. Through that agency yesterday's proceedings of the annual stockholders' meeting of the Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago were broadcast to thousands of the approximately 25,000 owners and 600,000 customers of the company.

At least one listener who "attended" his first meeting of the sort via a fifteen-dollar radiophone expressed astonishment at the ease and facility with which a $20,000,000 increase in capitalization to $160,000,000 was voted. A brief statement by Samuel Insull, President of the company, which holds a virtual monopoly on general use of electricity in Chicago, preceded a unanimous vote.

It was said to have been the first time that proceedings of an important stockholders' meeting had been broadcast in Chicago.

Muller-Ury Honored by the Pope.

F. Adalfo Muller-Ury, portrait painter, was decorated yesterday with the Order of St. Gregory the Great, making him a papal knight, in recognition of his services in painting the portrait of Pope Pius XI. last Summer. The order, which was conferred upon him by Archbishop Hayes, by command of the Pope, is the highest conferable by the Vatican upon a layman. Mr. Muller-Ury also painted the portraits of Pope Pius X. and Pope Benedict XV.

SIX KILLED BY GAS; 3 ARE IN HOSPITALS

Woman and Grandson Found Dead in Bed—Young Widow Commits Suicide.

Six persons died yesterday from gas poisoning, and three are in hospitals undergoing treatment.

Mrs. Helen Scheffel, and her 11-year-old grandson, Alois Konecony of 625 East Eightieth Street are dead, and another grandson, Otto Konecony, 7, is in Reception Hospital. They were discovered lying on the bed in their gas-filled apartment last night by Peter Noonan, janitor of the house. The gas heater in the room had become disconnected for some reason undetermined by the police.

When James McKevitt of 1,619 Eighty-ninth Street, Woodhaven, returned home Monday night he found his apartment filled with gas as the result of a broken gas pipe. His wife, Theresa, was unconscious in a rocker in the kitchen and his seventeen-month-old baby was dead in the crib. The mother was revived at the Mary Immaculate Hospital, Jamaica, where it was said she will recover.

Mrs. Nellie Barnett, 33, a widow, was found dead on the floor of the bathroom in her home, at 1,285 Dean Street, Brooklyn, from gas poisoning, by police, who forced an entrance into the apartment early yesterday. Her three-year-old son was found lying on the kitchen floor, unconscious from the gas fumes. Police said that when they found the body of the woman the end of a gas tube leading to an open illuminating jet was in her mouth. The boy was removed to St. John's Hospital. He will recover.

Neighbors said Mrs. Barnett had been despondent recently because of inability to support herself and her child. The police said the woman's husband, T. M. Barnett, was a sea captain, and that he committed suicide about a month ago.

Mrs. Mary Hartman of 77 Railroad Avenue, Jersey City, and William Preister, a roomer in her apartment, were found dead from gas asphyxiation last night. John Lurvrevy, occupant of an apartment overhead, smelled gas fumes which were escaping from a leaky jet on the kitchen range, and called a patrolman, who summoned an ambulance.

MISSING GIRL FOUND.

Brooklyn Children's Society Caring for Her While Police Searched City.

Representatives of the Brooklyn Children's Society, who last Saturday took charge of Elizabeth Mackin, a school-girl of 44 Clymer Street, Brooklyn, and failed to notify her mother, Mrs. Mary Mackin, yesterday solved the mystery of the disappearance of the child, who was being sought by a squad of police. The girl is still in the care of the society and her mother is making efforts to have her sent home.

Mrs. Mackin and sisters at the Epiphany Parochial School, where the child is an honor student, were alarmed and while the mother remained awake weeping Saturday night, the nuns prayed and burned candles for the girl's return.

Mrs. Mackin has been a widow for eleven years and has difficulty in caring for her children. Mrs. Mackin recently was operated on at a Brooklyn hospital and later obtained employment in the laundry of an orphan asylum at 1,435 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. Elizabeth with her mother lived at the home of Mrs. Catherine Young.

On Sunday the child was finally located at the Children's Society. The mother went to get her and was told that Elizabeth was in bed and could not be disturbed until Monday. The child has not yet been brought home.

BRIDE OF A DAY FOREHANDED

HAMMONTON, N. J., Feb. 27.—Responding to a call from a woman with a pleading voice, who declined to state why she wished the police, two members of Troop A, stationed here, hurried to her home eleven miles from Hammonton. At the door stood a young woman, plainly anxious. Both troopers looked well to their gats and then approached. They were met with the question: "Do you arrest husbands for beating their wives?"

When informed that the State police certainly did take such offenders into custody they were paralyzed with astonishment when the young woman said:

"Well, I was married yesterday, and I might need you, so I thought I would call you up and find out in case I did."

The two troopers, who had burned up the road responding to the appeal, could find no adequate reply, but on their weary way home they commented freely on the curious workings of the feminine mind.

FEAR BOLIVIA-CHILE BREAK.

Departure of Minister at Santiago Revives Old Rumors.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Rumors, previous denied, that Bolivia is about to break diplomatic relations with Chile were revived today when it became known that the Bolivian Minister plans to leave here on Saturday for Buenos Aires for a vacation.

His departure follows that of the Secretary of the legation, who returned to the Bolivian capital ostensibly on private business.

Bolivia recently made an attempt to obtain Chilean consent to a revision of the Treaty of 1904 by which she lost the Province of Antofagasta. The object of the proposed revision was to provide Bolivia with an outlet to the sea. Chile refused to consider the request, but offered to negotiate on the basis of territorial compensation. Bolivia thereupon announced that she could not, in view of this situation, send representatives to the forthcoming Pan-American Congress in Santiago, as she felt that her position was not definite and that her abstention would serve to prevent disagreements within the congress. She notified Chile, however, that this decision was not to be construed as an act of hostility.

SHIPS BRING $735,000.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 27. — Five ships were sold at auction today for $735,000, a total which, as a whole, was considered too low by shipping men. The vessels were the Santa Cecilia, the Tidewater, the Centaurus and Corvus, sister ships, and the Chincha, libeled vessels of the ill-fated Green Star Line. Their value was estimated in the millions, and the Santa Cecilia was said to have cost $2,500,000.

The Santa Cecilia brought $270,000, the highest price received at an auction of ships in eight years. The Tidewater brought $200,000, which was considered a good price. But after that the bids slumped. The Corvus brought $65,000 on the only bid. The Centaurus brought $65,000 on the only bid, and the Chincha, said by experts to be worth at least $300,000, brought $75,000 on the first and only bid.

A representative of W. R. Grace & Co. of New York was the main competitor of Mr. Simpson on the Santa Cecilia. He bid $965,000.

Lahey With Police 35 Years Today.

Today is the thirty-fifth anniversary of Chief Inspector William J. Lahey as a member of the New York Police Department. He was appointed to the department Feb. 28, 1888. He was promoted to lieutenant in April, 1907, and then to a captaincy. On Jan. 24, 1918, he resigned as captain while commanding the Old Slip station and was appointed a Special Deputy Police Commissioner in charge of detectives. On Sept. 4, 1920, he was made Chief Inspector.

PREPARE TO HANDLE INCOME TAX RUSH

ONLY SIXTEEN DAYS LEFT

Collector for Manhattan Reported That 1,000 Persons Filed Returns Yesterday.

Coromilas, Once Minister Here, Hopes to Avenge Brother's Death.

ATHENS, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Lambros A. Coromilas, former Greek Minister to the United States, has announced his intention of forming a new political party, with a view to assuming the reins of government and punishing those whom he believes responsible for the execution of the former Cabinet members and army officers.

General Hadjanestis, one of those executed, was a brother of M. Coromilas. The brothers took different names for family reasons.

M. Coromilas, who says that he is actuated by a desire to avenge his brother's death, has had a successful diplomatic career, which, however, so far, has not brought him party leadership. His most formidable opponent at the elections will be General Metaxas, the faithful friend of the late King Constantine.

POST OFFICE INQUIRY BEGUN IN BROOKLYN

Fifteen postal inspectors, headed by Inspector Park D. Colvin, in charge of the New England Division, began an investigation yesterday of conditions in the Brooklyn Post Office. Inspector Colvin recently made similar inspections in Buffalo and Philadelphia. He denied that there was any political significance in the work.

"We are making what should be the regular annual inspection of the Brooklyn Post Office," said Inspector Colvin. "As it happens, largely because this is such a big office, there has been no such inspection for a number of years. We are here to do it. We will make a financial audit of the entire office. This should take about a week. Thereafter some of the inspectors will leave and the remainder will stay on and make a close survey of the methods and operations in use here. If we find any such methods wasteful or not up-to-date we will, of course, recommend changes."

When asked if he meant that he would recommend changes in methods or in personnel, Inspector Colvin replied, "Either, if necessary."

The present inspection is the first that has been conducted since Postmaster Walter C. Burton took office in 1916. Mr. Burton was first appointed in 1916 by President Wilson and in 1920 was reappointed. His second term expires in June, 1924.

Despite the statement of Inspector Colvin that politics has nothing to do with his investigation, Republican circles in Brooklyn are already interested in the possibility that Mr. Burton may quit his office before his term expires, and they have already started booms looking to the appointment by President Harding of his successor.

Among those most frequently mentioned are Alfred E. Vass, Chairman of the County Republican Committee and leader of the Eleventh Assembly District, and Warren G. Price, a Transfer Tax Appraiser and Republican leader of the Eighteenth Assembly District. Control of the Brooklyn Post Office would be welcome to the Republican organization, particularly as all State patronage has been wrenched from them through the victory of the Democratic Party last Fall.

Mr. Burton said that the present investigation is the same as has been conducted in other cities. He would not talk on the possibility of his resigning, but friends close to him said that the Postmaster had no such intention.

Mr. Burton announced yesterday that the new ruling requiring letter boxes or mail slots to be provided for the reception of mail would be put into effect on March 1. He said most Brooklynites had already complied with the ruling, which says that, unless such receptacles are ready, carriers may return mail to the Post Office, where it must be called for by the person to whom it is addressed.

EXCHANGING WAR PRISONERS

Greeks and Turks Begin to Carry Out Their Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The State Department today received a cablegram from Jonathan Caffery, First Secretary and Chargé d'Affairs of the American Legation at Athens, saying that an agreement for the exchange of prisoners of war had been signed by Greece and Turkey, and that the actual work of exchanging them had begun.

The dispatch, dated Feb. 26, stated that the commission for the exchange of prisoners had signed an agreement to ship on the 27th, in Greek ships, all Turkish civilian prisoners and hostages in Greece. The number to be shipped from Athens to Smyrna is estimated at 2,000, while 2,500 more will be sent from Mielos to Constantinople. The ships which are to go to Smyrna will bring back civilian Greek prisoners and hostages held by the Turks. The number of these is not yet known, as the Turks have not furnished a list, although they promised to do so.

The vessels going to Constantinople will bring back 5,000 refugees from Pontus. All the Turkish prisoners of war who are now in Greece, to the number of about 10,000, will be sent to Smyrna March 6 on Greek vessels. These ships will return to Greece with the same number of Greek military prisoners.

The American Y. M. C. A. representatives are assisting materially in the arrangements and have informed Mr. Caffery that they will accompany the commission to Smyrna in order to make arrangements there with the Turkish authorities for the return of Greek civilian prisoners.

CAT, NOT LION, SCARES BABY

Ditmars Names for Women the Only Animal That Frightens a Child.

A baby has no fear of a lion or a snake, but often feels horror at seeing a cat, and is terrorized by kittens, according to Raymond L. Ditmars, Curator of the Bronx Zoo, who addressed the Ladies' Auxiliary of the New York Zoological Society, yesterday, at the home of Mrs. Vincent Astor, 840 Fifth Avenue.

"It is curious," said Mr. Ditmars, "but it has been proved scientifically that the only animal really frightening a baby is a cat."

Among those who listened to Mr. Ditmars were:

Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Murray Crane, Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, Mrs. William Woodward, Mrs. Clarence G. Michalis, Mrs. Shelton Martin, Mrs. Barrett Andrews, Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn Jr., Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb, Miss Mary Parsons, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Mrs. Thomas Hastings, Mrs. Ralph Sanger, Mrs. John S. AGAIN CHARGES PRICE FIXING

Western Independent Cites Letters Against Indiana Standard Oil.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The issue between the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and Thomas S. Black, President of the Western Petroleum Company of Chicago, over the latter's charges that the Standard Company fixed prices for oil products in the Middle West in 1912 and 1913, was further joined today at the Senate manufacturers' subcommittee's oil investigation.

Taking the stand after officials of the Standard of Indiana had concluded the presentation of denials that any representatives of that company negotiated with the consent and knowledge of the management for the fixing of prices Black presented letters to support his charges.

The letters were part of a correspondance carried on with independent oil jobbers in an endeavor, he said, to bring the jobbers' prices in line with the Standard's prices. He asserted that P. C. Crenshaw, then general manager of the Standard of Indiana, or other officials in the manager's office, supplied him with advance information as to increases by the Standard in the price of oil products, so that he could communicate the changes to jobbers in the Standard's territory and they could make the same changes on the same day.

RHINE BOATS ARE HELD UP

Meetings of Protest All Over Holland Against Ruhr Occupation—Funds Raised for Rhineland Relief.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 27.—In spite of assurances given to the Dutch Government by both the French and Belgian Governments that the rights of the Netherlands in the occupied territory would be respected, especially Rhine shipping rights, the Dutch are encountering great difficulties with imports from this territory, as well as with their shipping.

Seven Dutch boats, laden with basalt stone from quarries in the unoccupied part of the Rhineland and destined for Holland, have been held up by the French and Belgian customs authorities at Ruhrort and subjected to an increased duty of 10 per cent. under the new tariff.

The German Government has forbidden the Basalt Aktien Gesellschaft to comply with the tariff under penalty of punishment, and meantime another twenty boats are waiting to leave the unoccupied Rhine with cargoes of basalt.

Everywhere in Holland meetings of protest are being held against occupation of the Ruhr, for the Dutch see their own interests menaced in many ways, and consider that the increase in the seriousness of the economical situation is in part due to this. Endless collections are being made for the "poor suffering Rhinelanders," and large sums of money have already been freely distributed in the Rhineland.

Grow Nervous About Frontier.

The Dutch are getting more and more nervous regarding the occupation of the Ruhr as the French and Belgians creep over nearer the Dutch frontier in extending the occupied district. In some places the occupied territory is only thirty miles from the Dutch frontier.

The Netherlands, who have literally discarded militarism and reduced their army to such an extent that they would be unable to put up any sort of defense should they be attacked, feel uneasy with armed troops in the vicinity of their border and fear if Germans became desperate or resorted to arms that they might become involved.

Special anxiety is felt about the territory east of Limburg, which played such a rôle during the war. Limburg forms a tongue of land wedged between Germany and Belgium, and it was contended that German troops passed over Limburg in the first week of the war.

The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant notes that the French and Belgians occupy a triangular-shaped piece of territory sandwiched in between the Netherlands frontier and the Rhine and could be cut off from their base should the Germans ever resort to military action, or even if the Germans attacked their line of communication, in which case the French would be obliged to cross Dutch Limburg.

Whether France or Germany strives after strategical occupation of the Rhine, the paper says, the Netherlands forms, so to speak, the key of the Rhine front, of which it forms the flank.

"An unlawful occupation of the Rhine front in time of peace for reasons of strategic safety," it goes on, clearly leads the way to the unlawful violation of Dutch neutrality in time of war. Should militarism really get the upper hand in France, a contingency which we continue to doubt, then we Dutch will expect the same treatment as Belgium got during the war. The situation of Limburg, lying as it does behind the left flank of the new Rhine front, constitutes a new complication, and the opportunity would certainly be seized by the Belgian hotheads who are striving after the annexation of Limburg."

The paper continues that the Dutch would know how to act in such a contingency as the wave of patriotism which would sweep over the country would prove a surprise for any invader.

Bugbear of Annexation.

The Belgian annexationists still continue to be a bugbear here in Holland, where every time Belgium makes a military move the Dutch imagine they see themselves menaced by the Belgians' desire to annex Limburg.

When certain Belgian military classes, including engineers, were recently warned to hold themselves in readiness and those Belgians who should have finished their military services Feb. 1 were not liberated, it was greatly feared in Dutch military circles that the Belgians had annexationist plans and Hague cavalry were immediately sent to the frontier, although this was denied at the time.

In reality these military precautions by the Belgians were in connection with the Ruhr, and there is at present no question of annexation, except by a small party of hotheads.

British Goods on Rhine Also Held Up.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—British authorities in the Rhineland have been instructed to investigate reports of alleged holding up of British-owned goods on the Rhine by the French and Belgians, it was announced today by Ronald F. McNeill, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Mr. McNeill stated that the British officials had been instructed to take such action as may be possible to protect the interests of British firms.

GERMAN EXPORTS DWINDLE.

Imports Show Large Increase for January Over December.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—German imports in January amounted to 47,300,000 double centners, as compared with 43,300,000 double centners in December. (A double centner is approximately 220 pounds.) The exports in January amounted to 13,100,000, as compared with 17,600,000 double centners in December.

Coal, wood, iron, foodstuffs, and rye figured largely in the increased imports, and textiles, fuel, cement, potash, and virtually all manufacturers showed a marked decline in exports.

Germany's floating debt during the ten days ending Feb. 20 increased 514,000,000,000 marks. This brings the total to 2,929,800,000,000 marks.

NEW MOVE TO COLLECT OUR RHINE ARMY BILL

American Representative Arrives in Paris to Confer on Our $250,000,000 Claim.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Eliot Wadsworth, sent over by the Washington Government to collect from the Allies, or through the Allies, $250,000,000 Germany owes the United States for the cost of the Army of Occupation, has arrived in Paris.

From the standpoints of both time and place, it is doubtful that any diplomat ever undertook a more difficult task. An official conference of representatives of the United States, England, France, Italy and Belgium will begin at the Quai d'Orsay on March 1. If Mr. Wadsworth were to propose to France and Belgium some sort of help in their effort to make Germany pay, he might have a chance, but no one dreams he will do any such thing. At some later day, and perhaps at some other place, Washington may collect its bill, but at this time to come to Paris for it, it is believed here, will serve no useful purpose.

It is true there are the famous billion marks Germany paid last year. Then Secretary Hughes sent a demand that we be paid along with the others. He got a nice note in reply, but he got no cash, and no one can today find again those billion marks.

The basis of the American plea at that time was that the American Army had been kept on the Rhine on the express request of the Allies, and this reason doubtless influenced the Allies to make their soft reply. But the American troops are no longer on the Rhine, and Mr. Wadsworth will probably go home with empty hands.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Extremists of the Right who are frankly monarchistic and anti-Semitic had their great day yesterday in Berlin as well as in Munich. In Berlin a member of the Reichstag, Major Henning, addressed a meeting of the Liberty Party. He said among other things:

"The French did not go to the Ruhr to fetch a few wagon loads of coal. No, that invasion was instituted by international Jewry. It is always the Jew that stabs the German people in the back. Very well, France will continue her action in the interest of the Jews and thus afford Germany a chance to make her dream of 1813 come true. I am living in joyful anticipation of this next war."

Here some Communists who had gained admission interrupted and there was a great row. Somebody commanded, "Boys, do your duty!" whereupon a strong body of young fellows moved toward the platform, near which the Communists had gathered, but the police got between the parties and succeeded in restoring order for a moment. Henning continued:

"In 1918 the Jews stabbed us in the back. This time we shall not give them a chance; we shall not go into this new war before having taken measures to protect ourselves."

Again noise drowned Henning's voice, but he finally managed to make his opinion of Chancellor Cuno and President Ebert audible:

"They don't know what is really going on. To them the Ruhr invasion presents itself merely from a materialistic side. They fail to realize the idealistic aspect. Parties composing the Reichstag can only pass resolutions not worth the paper they are written on, but our party will only trust to the might of the fist."

In Munich Hitler made one of his blood-curdling speeches to a meeting of National Socialists. His war cry was "Down with Sovietism and Jewish domination!" Hitler also promised the Socialist Party that the day of reckoning was near and would not pass without it "feeling [Hitler's] heavy fist." He wants both Communists and students to join his organization.

In the Bavarian Diet a member for Unterfranken called attention to the fact that large number of Hitler's forces had recently appeared in his province, where a dangerous rising seemed preparing.

HUSBAND'S FORMULA FAILS.

"Get 'Em Young and Treat 'Em Rough" Costs Him $50 a Week.

This method for success in love was embodied in an affidavit submitted yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Faber in Brooklyn in support of the application for alimony by Mrs. Jeanette F. Planding of 807 East Eighth Street, Brooklyn: "Get 'em young, treat 'em rough and tell 'em nothing." It was accredited to Frank J. Planding, assistant secretary of a firm of insurance brokers of 87 Malden Lane, the defendant.

The affidavit was made by Thomas F. Twyford, a brother of Mrs. Planding, who said in December last he upbraided Planding and the latter gave him his formula. The Plandings have been married twenty years and have two children. Mrs. Planding charges her husband with having abandoned her in November. Justice Faber allowed her $50 a week and $350 counsel fees.

TELLS HOW GERMANY SOUGHT TO USE HUGHES

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A Yellow Book published by the Quai d'Orsay tonight gives the official French version of the effort by Germany in the last fortnight of December to use the United States Government to escape the penalties France was then planning to impose and which she has now put in force.

The record shows that the basis of M. Poincaré's reasons for refusing to consider Berlin's thirty-year truce, which Secretary Hughes was ready to transmit, was that he regarded it as a trick.

At the meeting of the allied Premiers in Paris on Jan. 2, M. Poincaré referred to Herr Cuno's speech at Hamburg Dec. 31, in which the Chancellor said to prove Germany had no warlike ideas he had proposed by the intermediary of a third power a thirty-year truce on the Rhine, but that France had rejected it.

The French Premier said this third power was the United States.

The record continues:

"On Dec. 18, Mr. Hughes made known to the French Ambassador that the German Ambassador had said he was ready to propose the conclusion of an agreement, by the terms of which Germany, France, England and Italy would promise that for thirty years they would not go to war unless war was decided upon by a popular vote.

"Mr. Hughes added that if M. Jusserand, after having transmitted this information to M. Poincaré, received encouragement in a reply from Paris he would ask Ambassador Wiedfeld to put his proposal in writing.

"M. Poincaré, to whom the suggestion was immediately communicated telegraphed M. Jusserand that the compact proposed was without doubt a manoeuvre of the German Government on the eve of the conference at Paris. He added that if the German Government wanted to suppress all chances of war one might ask why it limited to thirty years its promise of peace. Moreover this promise would be entirely illusory. In less than thirty years propaganda unfortunately could develop in Germany such desires for revenge that a popular vote when the proper day arrived would be favorable to aggression against France.

"Besides, the French Constitution conferred on Parliament the making of peace and war, and it was not possible to take this power from it without revision of the constitution.

"In the German promise to have any value it would have to be guaranteed by positive engagements by England and the United States which should assure to France over a definite period defensive military collaboration."

The Yellow Book says that on Dec. 21 M. Jusserand communicated to Mr. Hughes the objections of M. Poincaré to the German proposal. M. Poincaré expressed the opinion that Germany was simply trying to escape the penalties the Allies would impose, and added: "France cannot fall into this trap."

The Yellow Book continues:

"Besides, Mr. Hughes did not mention the possibilities of an Anglo-American guarantee. However, even an Anglo-American guarantee duly ratified would create and during France of definite defensive military collaboration would not suffice entirely to reassure France.

"In conclusion M. Poincaré asked M. Jusserand to make Mr. Hughes understand the dangerous hypocrisy of the oral proposition made by the German Ambassador at Washington."

The 200 pages of the Yellow Book give many interesting details hitherto not published about the debates in Paris which led England and France to split on the reparations policy. On Jan. 4 when Mr. Bonar Law urged M. Poincaré to delay action against Germany the French Premier replied that all France had got for four years was promises.

"France is told again today to have patience," he said. "It is too soon to act. It will be time enough to impose penalties tomorrow. This reminds me of a sign a French barber used to hang up, saying 'Free shaves tomorrow.' But tomorrow never came."

He will be the guest of honor at a dinner at the Astor on March 13, which will mark the opening of a $2,000,000 campaign.

ITALIANS RELEASE ARABS' PRISONERS

ROME, Feb. 27.—With the occupation of Misurata by Italian troops the punitive war against the Arab chiefs was brought to a successful termination, the Italians having reconquered the whole Tripoline seacoast. The rebels were powerfully entrenched and armed with artillery and machine guns, but the lightning advance of the Italian cavalry from Melites and the simultaneous sortie of the Italian garrison from Misurata Marina caught them unawares and threw them into confusion so that the Italian troops entered Misurata without much opposition.

They released some scores of Italian soldiers who had been made prisoners by the Arabs when the Italians retreated from Tripoli in 1915, and several civilians, including two girls, who had made their way to the shore from ships sunk by German submarines in the Mediterranean and who had been captured by Arabs.

When Misurata was abandoned by the Italians in 1915 the Germans decided to use it as a submarine base from which to attack shipping in the Mediterranean. They sent there a military commission composed of Osman Fuad, representing Turkey; Prince Braganza, representing Austria, and Baron von Toderlarch representing Germany. These immediately proceeded to recruit Arabs in the regular Arab army, armed them and proclaimed the Republic of Misurata.

After the end of the European war in 1919 Italy demanded as a condition of peace that representatives of the Central Empires in Tripolitania be handed over as prisoners, and in fact one after another they all fell into Italian hands despite their attempts at escape. The Arab army, however, continued the war against Italy under orders of Ramadades Sceteuil, who assumed its command. Conditions were so unsettled in Italy that hitherto it was found impossible to send an expedition against him.

Though the Italian Government could not undertake a military expedition against the Arab rebels it took every measure to alleviate conditions of the Italian prisoners who were concentrated in Misurata and whose numbers had been swelled by survivors from submarined steamers. Among these latter were two Italian girls and three English officers. General Cardoni, who was then Governor of Tripoli, founded a special office for negotiating ways and means of bringing relief to these prisoners. A regular airplane service was inaugurated which daily flew over Misurata and dropped food, clothes and money for the prisoners. Colonel Mai in Tripoli printed a weekly newspaper containing extracts from letters addressed to the prisoners from their families in Italy, and these papers were also dropped into Misurata. Despite these palliatives the position of the prisoners was far from happy.

As soon as the Mussolini Government came into power Signor Federzoni, Minister of Colonies, decided that steps should be taken to free the prisoners without delay. Orders were therefore given that simultaneously with punitive expeditions against the rebel chief in other parts of Tripoli, a relief expedition should march on Misurata to force the rebels there to surrender and release the prisoners. It is this action which now has been brought to a successful conclusion.

The prisoners were found in a most pitiable condition after four years in Misurata and arrangements have been made for their prompt return to their families in Italy.

WASHINGTON INFORMED OF RUHR UPRISING PLAN

Presence of Colored Soldiers on Rhine Explained by French Military Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Official advices to the French Embassy tonight from Paris assert that the German nationalists are planning an uprising similar to that which took place in Upper Silesia, and allege that these organizations are being supported by the Berlin Government.

"According to reliable information reaching the French Government," the report from Paris says, "a nationalist and anti-French agitation has developed in Germany on a large scale. Nationalist associations throughout Germany are preparing for an assault against the French and Belgian authorities and are planning an armed uprising similar to those which occurred in Upper Silesia.

"The German Government is known to be backing these organizations. From all parts of Germany volunteers are leaving for the Ruhr to assist in the attempts. The French military authorities in the Ruhr have taken the necessary dispositions to be ready in case of any emergency. Nevertheless, it is regarded as possible that the attempts will be made.

"The French Government will not hesitate to take rigorous measures of repression, especially on account of the fact that the German Government is known to be backing these organizations and will thus have to bear the responsibility of the consequence of these reprisals."

Inquiry made at the French military mission here tonight concerning conflicting reports in the German and neutral press concerning the presence of French Colonial troops at Essen brought forth the following statement:

"The Seventh Colonial Regiment of French Infantry, garrisoned at Bordeaux, has left for the Rhine. A very small number of colored soldiers which it contains are French citizens from Martinique. They are French citizens whose permanent home is in France, and they are doing their normal military service. This regiment, however, will not be assigned to the army of occupation in the Ruhr. It will be garrisoned at Coblenz."

ESSEN, Feb. 27 (via Dortmund).—General Fournier today suppressed the Ruhr Echo, Essen's Communist newspaper. About a month ago it was ordered suppressed by the Cuno Government under the law "for safeguarding the Republic."

The reason for the present action by the French is not apparent, as the Communist organ's tone has been consistently moderate concerning the French. In fact, it printed practically no accusation news, but lived up to the best traditions of the Communist press, propagandizing communism.

This leaves the Ruhr metropolis its 500,000 population with only one alleged newspaper, the Social Democratic Essener Arbeiter Zeitung, which, however, may be short lived, as today it featured two front page columns of alleged specific cases of hold-ups and highway robberies by French soldiers, and charging generally that men going into cafés are relieved of watches and purses and women of handbags. It also recited tales of daylight robberies.

In some cases, the Socialist paper charged, the hold-ups were committed by bands of soldiers upon mere returning on pay day with extra fat pocketbooks due to the receipt of "defense" bonuses.

French Let Foodstuffs Into Ruhr.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—The Federal Railway Department announces that the French soldiers so far have not interfered with the supply of foodstuffs by railway. Though many railway stations have been closed by the French authorities, the Railway Department guarantees that any such goods will be taken as near as possible to the consignee's home or the latter will be notified to call at a convenient railway station. It seems to have been necessary to make this statement because many merchants have hesitated to supply their customers in the Ruhr district, believing the French blockade of the railways made delivery impossible.

power to engage German workmen and will control the whole expenditure and revenue of the railroads, working with the French military authorities in the same way as the former German administration did.

British in Way of French.

One of the most difficult features of the new situation will be created by the presence of British troops and German administration of the railroads through the Cologne bridgehead. The Germans have continued there the work of the railroads through the bridgehead normally as far as the French frontier, and unless some special arrangement is made with the British, the Cologne bridgehead will make a break in the continuity of the system which the new authority will be called on to administer.

Owing to interruption in the telephone service to Coblenz tonight it is impossible to obtain full details of this afternoon's decision. In British Army circles it is considered that the step must inevitably affect the British position on the Rhine and it is even stated that it may ultimately compel withdrawal if trouble with German railroad men breaks out.

With every day now the consequences of the French blockade are becoming more and more apparent within the Ruhr. In spite of efforts to keep the factories running, several have shut their doors and others are reducing the hours of work of their staffs. At Essen, which is a comparatively small centre, the number of men out of work is officially given at 8,000, and at one works alone 2,000 out of 15,000 employes have been pensioned off for an indefinite period.

Month Holiday With Pay for Miners.

In a number of mines in the Bochum district half the miners have been invited to take a month's holiday on full pay, and when they return to the mines at the end of March the rest will have a similar holiday. The employers are trying every means to avoid letting the men go on the streets, and in some cases whole shifts do nothing but sit around smoking during working hours.

The Director of one of the biggest concerns in the district, who forbade the use of his name, declared that so long as credits could be obtained from Berlin he would never let a single man leave his factory. But he, like others, refused to envisage the inevitable end of such a policy.

The belief is still strong that German patience and German marks can outlast French patience and French francs, and toward this end German propaganda in the district has been renewed with redoubled energy. The case is being represented to the workmen that the employers and Government are fighting on their behalf, and especially for their future. Imaginary pictures are being circulated of the district as it is supposed it will become if the French remain in occupation with factories crumbling to pieces and long lines of people emigrating from their homes into a workless Germany.

To these the French reply that there is plenty of work for the workmen to do sending coal into France and abroad and carrying out foreign orders by payment of the export license. But beyond the logic of this argument and the practical application there seems to be a wider gulf than easily can be bridged.

The problem for the French has now passed into its third phase. At first they stopped exports to Germany. That action has inevitably halted work within the Ruhr. Now they must begin getting work restarted and directing its product into France.

It is this third phase which is the most difficult of all. On the railroads they are partly succeeding by the employment of French railroad men, but in the mines and factories the situation is very different. There they must depend absolutely on economic pressure on the employers and on the workmen. As the weeks succeed each other the prospect of such co-operation seems to grow weaker rather than stronger.

Indeed with every week that goes by the French position seems to cost more and be less productive. During the last month they have collected all the loaded trucks of coal available on the railroads, and now they have begun to requisition at the pitheads. Their first experiment was attempted at Bottrop yesterday.

A strong patrol entered the mine with a company of sappers and began loading coal trucks. For this once they got away with it successfully. A big crowd of miners and townspeople gathered round, but they did not in any way interfere. For the next time, however, the local French commanders are not so optimistic. They fear that the miners will at least strike if they refrain from trying to defend the coal.

On the railroads there has begun organized persecution of those workmen who have signed to work for the French. As usual, this direct action is not spontaneous on the part of the workmen. It is a part of Berlin's campaign and orders for it came from the local resistance centres of Münster and Eberfeld. The French are making themselves responsible for the lives and safety of the men whom they are employing, and in spite of the persecution are still enrolling a small number of volunteers.

Belgium to Send Workers.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The Belgian military authorities today requisitioned telephone and telegraph material and called up railroad and telegraph workers for service in the Rhineland and Ruhr.

It was announced that employes sent to the occupied regions would receive extra pay.

FRENCH CUT OFF DORTMUND CANAL

Bochum Gives Elaborate Public Funeral to Workingman Shot by French Sentry.

By CYRIL BROWN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DORTMUND, Feb. 27.—The French today effectively bottled up the Dortmund-Ems Canal, the Ruhr's most important still open artery of commerce. The French merely placed a customs post where the occupation line intersects this heavy traffic canal and proceeded to attempt to collect 10 per cent. import and export duty. There were no takers, however. The Ruhr-bound Teuton canal boats were held back at Muenster and outbound canal boats stalled.

Dortmund was startled into believing itself occupied à la Bochum for a short time this morning. At 8 o'clock THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was awakened by undeniable French fanfares. A peek between the blinds disclosed flourishing trumpeters with a brass band attached, then a smart outfit, looking like chasseurs, moving at a fast gait up the hill of the main thoroughfare and past the central railroad station.

Dortmunders thought "der tag" had come for them, too, at last, as did the correspondent, but it proved only one battalion, and a subsequent search failed to find them in Dortmund. They must have passed straight through. It was apparently a prestige promenade designed to give Dortmunders a foretaste of coming events.

The snappy chasseurs in transit almost touched the plain granite shaft surmounted by an eagle, the war memorial of 1870-71, the black marble slabs reciting in washed out gold letters the victorious battles participated in by the pride of Dortmund, the late Third Westphalian Infantry Regiment, including Mars-la-Tour, Gravelotte, Chablis and Beaune.

Great Funeral in Bochum.

The French, sidestepping the funeral of Street Car Conductor Ross, shot on Friday by a French sentry, discretely withdrew the strong military cordon from Bochum today, leaving behind only one unostentatious platoon and ten tanks, which were parked around the war memorial of the Franco-Prussian War, facing basalt tablets engraved, "Strassburg" and "Paris."

The worker's funeral brought temporary relief from the strafe expedition to the Bochumites, who could and did roam all the streets ad lib. They stared their fill, Westphalianly, at the mighty tank flotillas and tough-looking tankmen with handy daggers at their black leather bosoms, then moved imperturbably on.

But the strafe was not up, by any means. General Caron's orders that all the stores, businesses, hotels, restaurants, cafes and movies within the deadlined heart of the Bochum remain closed till further notice was religiously obeyed. Even though the deadlining military cordon has been withdrawn, Bochum is still a dead city for practical business purposes.

The funeral was one of the most instructive THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent ever witnessed, not excepting those of one Emperor and two Kings. It epitomized the present phase of the Ruhr struggle. A high-strung French sentry, with or without cause, fired into a crowd. He killed a Catholic workingman and a widow's son who gets a picturesque public funeral while thousands of embittered workingmen and women watch the martyr's coffin pass with added hate of "militaism" in their hearts.

West Bochum, the poorer workers' section, turned out en masse doublelining tenderly blocks, for its most thrilling event of the occupation.

Against a typical Ruhr background, a giant battery of fivefactory chimneys, a mine and long line of dead boxcars crowded with onlookers on a siding, the body of the workingman, Ross started from his home for the cemetery, preceded by three choir boys, one bearing a crucifix, then the street car men's brass band blaring Chopin's and Beethoven's funeral marches and other suitable sombre tunes, then half the uniformed personnel of the Bochum surface lines, including two trim conductresses, then the venerable white haired and white robed rector of the Bochum cathedral with altar boys, then the hearse of the "martyr," followed by a line of mourners five blocks long, all on foot, including practically all of Bochum's silk-hatted officialdom that was not under arrest with silk hats of all vintages easily ruining back forty years.

The stern moral was, however, that to break the backbone of Borchum's resistance and smash the official machinery, not less than half of these silk-hatted mourners would have to be arrested and expelled from the Ruhr for this one town alone, for there looked to be plenty of hard-faced timber under those rusty silk hats to fill and several times refill all the vacancies in public office that might be caused by the French court-martial. This was the one feature making the Ross funeral so peculiarly instructive.

Catholic Dignitary Present.

The highest Catholic dignitary of this region, Mgr. Canon of the Dortmund Cathedral, went expressly to Bochum to officiate at the simple worker's funeral. He traveled in the same second-class compartment of the only available slow local train with THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. His shabby Gladstone bag contained one roll and a sandwich wrapped in wax paper, in addition to his regalia, into which he changed on the train just before reaching Bochum and en route, the correspondent overheard him remark to an aged accompanying priest, "You know I'm doing this for the cause," developing a new religious angle to the Ruhr struggle. The correspondent also learned that the Bishop of Münster has been and still is making a tour of the entire Ruhr incognito, for fear of being nabbed and subjected to the indignity of expulsion by the French before he could get back to unoccupied soil, undoubtedly an unfounded fear, but so thought that one German correspondent who got wind of the fact was begged to keep it out of the German papers.

The Bishop will be over the line back in Muenster by the time this appears in THE TIMES.

All the bells of Bochum tolled and the proletarian thousands with grim faces watched the procession pass. Only the older women dabbed handkerchiefs to their eyes. Probably through no fault of theirs the French made no friends in Bochum today.

The intensive punitive occupation is not futile, however, for the practical effect is completely to paralyze business indefinitely, and is calculated to cause business men to buckle up their backs to the strain as the spectre of ruin looms.

Despite the drastic military order to keep closed, the American open sesame gained THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent admittance to one hotel wherein he lunched with two trustry local guests.

"We used to do big business here before these last sanctions," the correspondent was told, "now the house is completely empty. No travelers stop off at Bochum."

More humorous was the dilemma of the manager of Bochum's theatre. In time, his idle artists and artistes all from Berlin were clamoring for pay. He does not know whether to pay in hopes General Caron will soon relent, and lift the ban off Bochum or fire them and get in bad with the metropolitan source of supply.

The French this morning occupied the Bochum railroad station for an hour and throughly ransacked every nook and cranny, and finally succeeded in catching and arresting Chief Inspector Bornhagezong, long wanted by them and whose existence they had come to doubt, so often had he made a successful getaway in the nick of time on tips of supposedly friendly German-speaking Alsatians. Local legend credits him with denouncing himself to searching French by walking boldly from his office and telling the French the inspector was within and they could get him if they were quick.

SEIZED BILLIONS STILL HELD.

French Action Causes Trouble for British in Rhineland.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press.)—The seizure by the French at Cologne last week of a large sum of German money, part of which was intended for the payment of the British troops in the occupied area, continues to be the most absorbing of the many difficulties which are confronting the British Administration in the Rhineland.

As far as can be ascertained in London the French have not yet released that part of the money seized which was for the British Army and which a dispatch to The London Times from Cologne places at 67,000,000 marks.

The remainder of the 12,000,800,000 marks taken by the French was intended for the payment of wages of workmen in the British zone, including those of the big Payer Dye Works at Leverkusen, the Humboldt Steel Works and the extensive Brown Coal Mines west of Cologne. The money is said to be urgently needed to meet month-end requirements.

The daily needs in the British zone are estimated at from 8,000,000,000 to 10,000,000,000 marks, and definite arrangements for the French permitting this money to pass through their lines is declared to be urgently necessary. One correspondent says that French circles in Düsseldorf thus far have shown no disposition to release the money seized, and that unless their attitude is changed the situation may become extremely serious.

Herr von Glasenapp, Vice President of the German Reichsbank, addressed the Reichstag Finance Committee today, says a dispatch to The Times from Berlin. He said the 12,000,000,000 marks of the sum seized by the French was destined for the Cologne office of the Reichsbank and the remainder for the Reichsbank branches at Solingen and Ohlig. All the money was intended to supply the Rhine area with currency. Herr Glasenapp further explained that the banknote plates taken by the French were intended for the presses used by the Reichsbank in the occupied territory.

The French, Herr Glasenapp added, were perfectly aware of all this and previously no difficulty had been raised against such shipments. Indeed, after Saturday's seizure another shipment for the Ruhr region passed through the French control station at Scharnhorst, near Dortmund, without difficulty.

Questions in Commons Elicits Admission the Debt France Claims Is £6,600,000,000.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—At question time in the House of Commons today questions put by Sir John Simon and the replies of the Prime Minister appeared to make it clear that the French Government practically contemplates remaining in the Ruhr in perpetuity.

Sir John Simon asked Mr. Bonar Law whether his attention had been called to a declaration of the President of the French Republic that France would allow nothing to turn her from her object, and to the declaration of the French Prime Minister that she would not let go her hold until the debt had been met, and whether his Majesty's Government had ascertained from the French Government what was her object in continuing to invade the Ruhr district and what was the amount of the debt which she required to be met as a condition of her withdrawal.

Most of the members expected the question would elicit some clear announcement of Government policy, in view of what semed to them the hardening of the French attitude, but the Premier contented himself with the reply:

"There is not, I think, anything new in either of these statements. I have nothing to add to what I have already stated in debate."

Sir John Simon persisted in his question whether the Prime Minister had on any occasion asked France what was the amount of the debt she required to be met as a condition of withdrawal and whether he had ever made any statement to the House on the subject.

"Yes," replied Mr. Bonar Law, "I think in answer to a question some weeks since I stated the reason given by France for going into the Ruhr. The amount of the debt is presumably the figure arranged in 1921. As to the figure mentioned that which the Prime Minister said it was impossible to collect?" demanded Sir John, and Captain Wedgwood Benn pointed the question by supplying the figure of £6,600,000,000.

Mr. Bonar Law admitted this was so.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—France's total indebtedness to Great Britain, including accrued interest, approximates £610,000,000, the House of Commons was informed today by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

TEN IRONMASTERS SEIZED.

Arrested While in Conference at Bochum—Penalties for Assaults.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—According to a dispatch to The London Times from Cologne, a French patrol entered a meeting which was being held by ten local ironmasters at Bochum and arrested all of them.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—One Belgian and two French news vendors have been assaulted outside of Bochum and a French officer and interpreter, in civilian clothes, were attacked in a restaurant. Penalties will be imposed for these offenses.

The Interallied Rhineland Commission, at Coblenz, has decided that sentences of imprisonment for not exceeding five years passed by military tribunals may be carried out in French, British or Belgian prisons.

Berlin Hears President Will Oust French From the Ruhr.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Commenting on a Berlin report that Washington is planning to intervene in the Ruhr situation, the Temps tonight says:

"Berlin newspapers announced last night that the President of the United States is going to intervene between France and Germany. He is to order France to get out of the Ruhr and is going to impose on Germany control by an international financial commission.

"There is no confirmation of this news from Washington. It is a reflection on President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes to believe them capable of thus becoming the allies of Germany against France. Besides, it is well for everybody to remember that the French Government is absolutely resolved to accept no intervention and no mediation.

"When the German Government has proposals to make, it must send them to the French and Belgian Governments, and to the other Allies' Governments if it wishes."

DE VALERA REJECTS APPEAL FOR A TRUCE

But Says He Will Consider Suggestions of Former Republican Soldiers for Peace.

CASTLE FORBES DESTROYED

Mine Blows Up Earl of Granard's Ancestral Seat—Widespread Disorders Continue.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A Dublin dispatch to the Press Association says that the Republican Bulletin publishes a reply by Eamon de Valera to the Association of the Neutral Members of the Irish Republican Army who recently proposed a month's truce. Mr. de Valera says that the desire of the "Government"—meaning the republicans—for an honorable understanding is not less than the Association of Neutrals, and adds:

"You can feel especially assured that you will have our most earnest support in any endeavor to give back to our country that internal unity which was her strength in the years of her struggle with England. We cannot, however, agree to your proposal for a truce.

"A truce under present conditions would not lead to peace; it would be regarded by both sides merely as a breathing space, in which to prepare for a more violent resumption of hostilities.

"Any proposal for peace which your organization has to put forward will receive from us fullest and most sympathetic consideration. We remind you, however, that previous efforts to secure peace have all failed through foolish persistence in an attempt to found it on the basis of acceptance of the so-called treaty and the recognition of usurpation as legitimate government.

"Our attitude on these matters is unchangeable. The soldiers and citizens of the republic have taken a resolution they will not depart from; they are determined to die rather than consent to the surrender of their national heritage or accept for themselves the status of helots, outlaws on their own land.

"There is an obvious way to peace, and you had it in mind probably when you wrote the lines which I have quoted from your letters, urging united effort toward removing the cause of war. Every individual in the nation who is not blinded by a desire to obtain a party victory knows that on the basis of such a national effort internal peace can be restored immediately. Every one knows also that with a tithe of the energy and determination shown in the present conflict, which can never result in more than a barren partisan triumph, the effort would be successful.

"Surely an honest national demand for an agreement with England, such that all classes of Irish men and Irish women could honorably accept, is more consistent with national dignity and interests than ignoble appeals for English loans and English guns with which to crush those whose sole aim is the preservation of our country's independence."

Ulster to Share in Customs.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—President Cosgrove announced in the Dail Eireann tonight that to April 1 the customs and excise revenues for the whole of Ireland would, under an arrangement with the British Government, be divided between the Free State and Northern Ireland on a basis to be agreed upon between the British Government and the Free State. The basis of division has not yet been determined.

From April 1, continued President Cosgrove, the duties on dutiable goods entering and the excise duties on dutiable goods produced in the Free State would be collected and retained by the Free State without question of allocation.

A bill will be introduced in the Dail tomorrow "to make suitable provision for the widow, children and sisters of the late President Griffith," in consideration of his eminent services to the nation."

It was announced today that the Free State Government has accepted an invitation to send representatives to the World Dairy Congress to be held in Philadelphia next October. The delegates will report especially on the economic aspects of the milk question.

ULSTER PARLIAMENT IS OPENED IN STATE

Duke of Abercorn Is Hailed as King's Representative—Loyalty Oath Obligatory.

BELFAST, Feb. 27 (Associated Press). The Parliament of Northern Ireland was opened in State today by the Duke of Abercorn, the new Governor, the ceremony following the general lines of that with which the British Parliament is opened at Westminster. The Duke rode through the streets on his way to the Parliament House, heartily cheered by throngs of the Belfast population massed behind the troops that lined the thoroughfares.

The royal address, which was read by the Governor, announced, as forecast, the Government's purpose to introduce a bill making it obligatory for all persons employed by the State in Northern Ireland to take the oath of allegiance to the King and the Government. In addition the speech proposed the appointment of a royal commission to consider and report how the natural and industrial resources of Northern Ireland can be developed.

The estimates of expenses presented to the House of Commons, the speech said, would be only tentative, pending the report of the committee appointed to consider financial relations with the Imperial Parliament.

The Governor remarked that the Parliament was opening under brighter auspices than might have been expected even six months ago.

King George has appointed the Marquis of Dufferin, Speaker of the Ulster Senate, to be an honorary Vice Admiral of Ulster.

Premier Sir James Craig told the Parliament that the British Government had pledged itself at a moment's notice to place at the disposal of Northern Ireland any troops necessary for action along the border. The troops, it was understood, would be instantly offered as and when required.

The Premier said he was well aware of the regret which had been caused by the removal from Ulster of the British regiments.

SENATOR AND JUDGE LOSE IRISH RESIDENCES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—Judge Wakeley's fine family residence in Queens County and the neighboring mansion of Miss Dame have been given to the flames by Irish rebels. The Judge got one hour to clear out, and saved most of his furniture and family valuables. His stables were spared because he said he had no place else for his horses, and many of his hands would be thrown out of work. Still a large quantity of hay was burned.

It is stated that Miss Dame got only ten minutes to get out and lost everything.

A bridge has been blown up near Blessington, County Wicklow, and the pumping engine at a reservoir station at Marlborough, Queens County, was blown up last night, resulting in cutting off the town's water supply and inflicting much local hardship. It was for creamery at this same town of Marlborough that Volunteer Gibson, formerly of the Free State Army post there, paid the death penalty yesterday morning.

Detectives of the Criminal Investigation Department, continuing their searches in Dublin, this morning discovered in a big hole covered by a huge stone slab in a fowl house behind a Rathfarnham residence enormous quantities of ammunition of various kinds, also bombs, fuse wire, detonators and telegraphic apparatus. They also arrested some men on the premises.

Merchants of Ballyboroughs, County Cavan, have been deprived of quantities of flour, flaxseed, boots, tobacco, leather, groceries and wine, seized by armed men, who compelled the driver of a motor truck to cart the goods away into the country, where they were dumped.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Castle Forbes, owned by the Earl of Granard and situated at Newtown Forbes, County Longford, Ireland, was destroyed by a mine explosion today, according to a dispatch to The Central News.

The Earl of Granard in 1909 married Beatrice, daughter of Ogden Mills of New York. He is a member of the Irish Free State Senate. At one time he was mentioned as a possibility for the office of Governor General of the Free State.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Official reports made public today record the arrest of twenty-four irregulars on Monday night in various places. Seven were apprehended in the Ballycastle area while attempting to cut a bridge, and another batch of seven was captured at Dromore.

The Free State troops continue to discover secret hoards of ammunition. They have unearthed a considerable quantity in a dugout near Cappa, in the Galtee Mountains. A house on the Ranelagh Road, Dublin, has been raided and a large quantity of ammunition discovered under the floor of a chicken coop. Several men on the premises were arrested.

Armed men today raided the income tax offices in Nassau Street and burned a number of documents. A shot fired in the street this afternoon wounded a civilian.

SEEKS FUND FOR GRAVES.

Overseas Association Will Consecrate American Cemeteries.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The American Overseas Memorial Day Association, which since the armistice has decorated American graves in France, will open a nation-wide campaign in the United States on April 1 to raise $300,000, the income from which will be used to decorate overseas graves in perpetuity, it was announced here today by Colonel Francis E. Drake, Chairman.

The campaign, which will last eight days, has been authorized and endorsed by all the American activities comprising the association. The American Legion, all veterans of the war, patriotic societies and eminent persons will be urged to assist in the enterprise. The American Ambassador and Consul General, the President of the American Chamber of Commerce of Paris and two prominent American Legion officials have become trustees of the fund.

Memorial Day of 1923, it is announced, will be celebrated by the association as the day of consecration of eight permanent American cemeteries, containing 30,587 graves of American soldiers.

According to the most definite reports the discussion in the council revolved about the alleged lack among Jewish male students of interest in athletics, except basketball, and in other activities on the Hill. It was pointed out that Jewish students had contributed to football, baseball and crew success in some measure, but it was said that the percentage of Jewish students who sought places on these teams was very small.

It is said that anti-Semitic feeling has been growing at the university since a report was made to Senior Council members a few weeks ago that a circular addressed by a university group to Jews in secondary schools throughout the country made the following statement:

"Come to Syracuse, the place where they treat the Jew boy right."

The group sending this out were said to be prominent Jewish students here.

This is the first time in the history of the university that a religious or racial question has ever been raised here. Consequently the reports of the council's discussion and action caused a great stir on the campus.

About 10 per cent. of the university enrolment is Jewish and there are five Jewish fraternities.

It was whispered during the day that steps which the interfraternity council had been proposing to limit the number of fraternities were directed against the growth of Jewish fraternities on the Hill.

The university ranks among its alumni many Jews prominent in legal, medical and other professions.

Several former athletes, including Joe Alexander, all-American football player, and A. H. Kallet, star football end, were Jewish, as well as Harry Herbert, a gridiron star whose back was broken in the Colgate game of two years ago. Basketball has had numerous Jewish stars.

SILZER INSISTENT ON HIS ROAD BOARD

Jersey Governor and Senate Republicans Both Refuse to Yield on Men Named.

GENERAL SCOTT A CALLER

Legislature May Take Matter Into Its Own Hands—Passes Bonus Time Extension.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 27.—Governor Silzer and the Republican majority in the Senate today continued to jockey for advantage in the impasse over the new State Highway Commission. When both houses of the Legislature adjourned tonight no agreement had been reached.

The situation seems to be that the Republicans do not want to take the responsibility of rejecting any or all of the four men nominated by the Governor, while Mr. Silzer does not want to admit defeat by recalling the names. There was talk tonight that the Legislature will let the matter drag along until the last week of the session and then, if the Governor does not weaken, enact a "ripper" which will create a board named by the lawmakers.

Following reports that the majority Senators were willing to compromise by confirming the two Democrats if the Governor would name two other Republicans in place of General Hugh L. Scott and Walter Kidde, Mr. Silzer summoned General Scott to the Statehouse today for a conference. He presented the army man to the reporters and declared that Scott had been a soldier too long to give up during a fight. This was interpreted as a challenge to the Republicans to demand recall of the nominations.

It is said that the G. O. P. Legislators want Walter J. Busby of Atlantic County as one of the Republican Commissioners, with J. Henry Harrison of Essex, Daniel E. Pomeroy of Bergen, or Senator Collins B. Allen of Salem as the other one.

May Be Ineligible.

Allen is believed to be ineligible in that he voted, as a member of the Legislature, to create the office for which he would be named. This is in violation of the Constitution. Busby was named to the original Highway Board when United States Senator Edge was Governor, but was ousted, with his colleagues, during the Gubernatorial régime of United States Senator-elect Edwards.

The Senate tonight passed the bill by Assemblyman Joseph A. Corio of Atlantic City for an appropriation of $50,000 "to advertise New Jersey." Democrats opposed this on the ground that its real purpose was to advertise Atlantic City rather than New Jersey.

The Senate also passed, over the veto of Governor Silzer, the Mackay bill creating a Bureau of Elections in first-class cities. The bill passed by a vote of 13 to 4.

The upper house also passed the Whitney bill, providing that school moneys be apportioned on the basis of percentage of pupils attending schools rather than county ratables, as at present.

The following nominations were confirmed by the Senate: Hudson County Court of Common Pleas—R. V. Kinkead; State Banking and Insurance Commission—Edward Maxson of Summit; Bergen County Court of Common Pleas Judge—William M. Seufert of Englewood.

Extend Bonus Period.

The House passed the bill of Assemblyman Dater of Bergen prohibiting the segregating of sexes in high schools unless separate buildings were used. The vote was 40 to 6. The measure was opposed by Assemblyman Moran of Hudson, who said it was designed to meet local conditions in Paterson only.

The House also passed the Wallworth measure extending the time for applying for the soldier's bonus in New Jersey. This bill had already passed the Senate and now will go to the Governor for signing.

Valentine's Widow Gets Estate.

The will of Charles F. Valentine, late Secretary and Treasurer of the Frank W. Woolworth Company, who died at his home, 8,607 105th Street, Richmond Hill, on Feb. 13, was filed for probate in the Queens County Surrogate's office, Jamaica, yesterday. The petition states that the estate consists of over $5,000 in real and over $50,000 in personal property. Egbert E. Alexander of Richmond Hill and Roy Creighton of Manhattan will receive the jewelry and books of the deceased. The residue of the estate is left to the widow, Anna. The will, dated Feb. 14, 1919, appoints the widow executrix.

ANGORA ASSEMBLY BEGINS TREATY DEBATE

Discussion Expected to Last Several Days—Curzon Predicts Victory of Peace Party.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The National Assembly at Angora this afternoon began discussion of the draft of the reply of the Cabinet to the Lausanne Peace Treaty. It is expected the debate will last for several days.

The press of Constantinople continues to insist that the National Assembly will accept nothing which tends to violate the National Pact.

The withdrawal today from Smyrna of the heavy foreign warships, leaving only the light station vessels there, is regarded as a reassuring feature of the situation. The withdrawal was made under an agreement reached between the Turks and the Allies.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Lord Curzon, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speaking at a luncheon at the Aldwych Club today, expressed the opinion that the Turks would accept the Lausanne Peace Treaty.

At Angora, as everywhere else, there was a peace party and a war party—a moderate party and an extremist party—but, Lord Curzon declared, he believed the former party, to which Ismet Pasha belonged, would prevail. He could not believe it possible that any people in the long run would reject a treaty so generous and considerate, and one which would enable Turkey to resume her sway in Europe and Asia.

Speaking of international affairs, the Foreign Secretary said the general situation was improving slowly but surely. Among the features in the international outlook which tended to encourage a spirit of confidence were the League of Nations and the improving relations with America. He said that the funding of the American debt—heavy as the burden was which it involved—was valuable evidence of Great Britain's good faith and was proof that England still did the honorable thing in the old-fashioned, honorable way. He saw nothing that was in the least degree likely to disturb the friendly relations with America.

HUGHES CENSURES TURKS.

Writing to Lodge, He Holds Them Responsible for Smyrna Disaster.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The statement that the Turks were responsible for the extent of the Smyrna disaster was made by Secretary Hughes in a letter to Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, placed in The Congressional Record today as a result of inquiries made in the course of recent Senate debates as to events in the Near East.

Several questions were submitted by Senator Lodge and answered by Secretary Hughes concerning the destruction of the American consulate at Smyrna and the treatment of the Americans during the fighting there.

"As far as the department is informed," said Secretary Hughes, "the authors of the fires, apparently of incendiary origin, which brought on the Smyrna conflagration have never been apprehended nor their identity discovered. On this point conflicting evidence has been received by the department, and the various antagonistic racial groups in Smyrna have each ascribed the origin of the fire to the other. However, the Turkish military authorities in occupation of Smyrna can scarcely avoid responsibility for their failure to maintain order in Smyrna, which undoubtedly was one of the contributory causes for the extent of the disaster."

Secretary Hughes said no Americans were present during the Smyrna disaster, although some American destroyers were in the harbor and landing parties of bluejackets were later stationed through the city.

"The record of American officials, of the American Navy, of American citizens and relief workers at Smyrna," he said, "is one of which all American citizens can justly be proud."

JAPAN HELPS REFUGEES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Word reached Washington through official channels today that the critical situation that confronted those Russian refugees from the maritime province of Siberia who fled into Korea after the Japanese evacuation of Vladivostok had ended. According to the advices received today, Secretary W. Taylor of the Foreign Relief Association, after a thorough investigation of the refugee situation at Gensan, had made a special report in which he states that, thanks to the efficiency of relief measures undertaken by the Japanese authorities, there is no longer distress among the refugees.

"When the Russian refugees arrived at Gensan," says the report, "many foreign residents criticised the Japanese attitude from a humanitarian standpoint and organized their relief association. My investigations at Gensan, however, have convinced me that there no longer is any necessity for continuing relief on the part of the foreign residents, as the relief furnished by the Japanese leave nothing desired.

"The buildings for the accommodation of the refugees are very good. The supply of foodstuffs is ample, and there is an abundance of coal and wood for fuel. The equipment for washing and bathing also is complete. As there is no use for 9,000 articles of clothing stored at Gensan for the refugees, they will be sent to the Russian refugees located in the Yenchi district of Manchuria. The steamship and railway companies have agreed to grant special reductions on the freight of these articles."

Too Busy To Die

THE very busy man may come to the office of the Kensico Cemetery at 103 Park Avenue, one block south of Grand Central Station, and in this office he may see maps, charts, photographs so complete and so graphic, that he may actually choose a lot in this way with a very clear idea of what he is selecting.

A small deposit will reserve the lot and your mind will be free of the fear of leaving this task to others at a time when it is difficult indeed.

The Kensico Cemetery sees the tragedies of delay—the sorrow of choosing a burial place while in grief.

To make this task as easy as possible private automobiles and escorts are at the service of families, taking them from their homes to the Park and return.

Besides this service, lots are held for a small deposit, and in every other way this important act is made as simple, as convenient and as helpful as kindness and courtesy can make it.

COAL BARGE FLEET RELIEVES SHORTAGE

GIVE 374 PRIORITY PERMITS

Bronx Emergency Appeals Will Be Filled by Tonight—Brooklyn Gets 10,000 Tons.

Encouraging reports on the fuel situation, both in the city and up-State, were received yesterday by General George W. Goethals, State Fuel Administrator. With the continued moderate weather towboat men are exerting every effort to keep the flow of coal from the New Jersey shore across the ice-clogged river above the normal. On Monday 30,000 tons were moved across and yesterday the tugs were straining to beat that showing.

The arrival of eighty-six barges of coal off East Ninety-sixth Street with coal for Harlem, Westchester, West Farms, Pelham and Mount Vernon was announced by the Fuel Administration. The barges held 43,000 tons of coal, and General Goethals sent an inspector to the point to speed up their landing, and notified the towboat men to hurry them to their destinations.

Twenty barges, carrying about 10,000 tons of coal have been received in Brooklyn. Coal received by seven dealers alone totaled 6,500 tons. Samuel J. Drummond, District Administrator for Brooklyn, said that emergency orders there could now be filled without delay. It became known yesterday that emergency orders received last week were subject to delays of two or three days.

Alexander J. Fraser, District Administrator for the Bronx, said that there had been a marked improvement in the situation in that borough within the last twenty-four hours. The number of emergency appeals dropped from 100 Monday to fifty yesterday. He said that these would all be filled by tonight.

Police Investigate 431 Cases.

Emergency appeals received at the office of the State Fuel Administration, 165 Broadway, took another jump yesterday. The police and health departments investigated 431 cases and issued 374 priority orders for immediate delivery. Twelve had given wrong addresses, twenty-two received coal since making their complaints and twenty-three were found to have had supplies sufficient for from two weeks to a month before sending in their appeals.

General Goethals received encouraging reports on the general situation throughout the State. The Saratoga district, which has been suffering keenly from the fuel shortage, is said to be rapidly recovering. The improvement in the conditions up-State is taken as an indication that the Delaware & Hudson has fulfilled its agreement of co-operation with the Administration in rushing coal to the points where most needed.

Two coal dealers charged with failing to observe the order of the Fuel Administrator to place tags indicating the amount of a delivery on their bags were held by Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in Harlem Court in bail of $50 each for trial in Special Sessions. They were Frank Neglara of 2,231 First Avenue and Michael Benedetto of 220 East 101st Street. John De Pallo, a coal dealer, of 35 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, was held in $300 bail by Magistrate Stout in Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, on a similar charge. He was summoned by Inspectors Hume and Miller of the State Fuel Administrator's office.

Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland said yesterday that many cases of accidental gas poisoning were due to a careless disregard of a few simple precautions.

"During the recent cold weather," Dr. Copeland said, "the use of gas heating appliances had become almost universal throughout the city. It is of the greatest importance that in setting up these various heating devices that caution be exercised to prevent the gas escaping. One of the most frequent causes of escaping gas is defective tubing. Every user of gas appliances should see to it that the tubing they purchase is of good quality, that the rubber is not dried up so that it will crack easily and that the connection at either end of the tubing are not loose."

LINER AND FREIGHTER CRASH IN RIVER FOG

Lenape, With Hole in Side, Transfers 170 Passengers—Towed to Pier—El Sud Also Damaged.

The Lenape of the Clyde Line, en route for Jacksonville, Fla., with freight and 170 passengers, yesterday noon collided off Pier 7, North River, with the Morgan Line freighter El Sud, incoming from Galveston. The stem of the El Sud struck the Lenape on the starboard side forward of midship and tore a large hole above the waterline. Both vessels were so badly damaged by the accident, which occurred in a dense fog, that they berthed immediately at nearby piers.

Several tugs, attracted by the sound of the crash, went to the rescue and towed the vessels to the piers. There was little excitement among the Lenape's passengers, most of whom were in their staterooms perparing for lunch. After inspecting the Lenape, officials of the Clyde Line decided to transfer the passengers to the Apache, which will leave at noon today. Among the passengers on the Lenape were two pitchers of the Brooklyn baseball team—Al. Mamaux and George Smith.

The damage to the Lenape is placed at $50,000, and the damage to the El Sud at about $10,000. Captain Ring of the freighter said he was about 900 feet off Pier 7 when the Lenape tried to pass between his vessel and the pier. He said he reversed his engine, but the Lenape drifted into the El Sud. No explanation of the accident was offered by the Clyde Line.

Philippines Legislature Rejects Amendments to Land Laws.

MANILA, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The bill creating a Department of Health and Sanitation for the Philippines was passed by the special session of the Legislature before it adjourned yesterday. The measure must be ratified by the United States Congress before it can become effective.

All the bills to amend the land laws for the purpose of encouraging rubber growing in the Philippines failed of passage. The Legislature also failed to amend the bookkeeping law, which requires that all commercial accounts be kept in English, Spanish or in one of the Philippine dialects. The law was strongly opposed by the Chinese merchants, who declared it would put all of their smaller shop owners out of business.

PHONE RATE BILL SAID TO HAVE 'JOKER'

Experts Say Proposed Public Utility Law Amendment Practically Bars Reductions.

BURDEN OF PROOF ON PUBLIC

Municipalities Have Option of Controlling Utilities Within Borders Under Last Smith Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—With the telephone rates throughout the State at a level which has evoked protests from many municipalities and private users, the New York Telephone Company is seen as the sole beneficiary of proposed amendments to the Public Service Commission law which, according to experts on such legislation, would render it exceedingly doubtful if any move looking to a rate reduction could be attended by success.

The proposed amendments, apparently, are part of the extensive changes in existing public utility statutes which have been in progress since the change of administrations here, to make such laws square with pledges embodied in the Democratic State platform. They were discovered by a public utility expert soon after the final bill in Governor Smith's public service series had been presented to the Senate and Assembly today by Senator Walker and Assemblyman Donohue, the Democratic leaders.

The man who made the discovery was William E. Capes, Secretary of the State Conference of Mayors. He called the amendments a "joker" which, unless eliminated, would put both municipalities and private users in a hole by requiring them to carry the burden of proof in any proceeding looking to a reduction of telephone rates.

Under the Miller Administration the Public Service Commission law was overhauled and amended. The Miller amendments placed the burden of proof on the public utility corporations, both in instances where the corporations were applicants for rate increases and where municipalities or consumers were applicants for reductions.

In a bill introduced last week which provides for the reorganization of the Public Service Commission there occurs an amendment under the terms of which the burden of proof relating to the justice of increases asked for is placed upon the corporation, in this case the New York Telephone Company, for the amendment has reference only to telephone rates. The mechanics of the amendment consisted in substituting for the phrase "where a change in rates is sought in the existing law" the phrase "where an increase in rates is sought." Legal experts here insisted that as long as there was no reference to a decrease the usual rule of law would apply and the burden of proof rest with the applicant for a reduction.

"With telephone rates unquestionably at peak and the fight from now on by municipalities throughout the State being for reductions, the injustice of this provision should be readily apparent, as well as the necessity of getting this 'joker' eliminated," said Mr. Capes.

"Unless it is, we may just as well give up every idea of making a fight. I regard it as very significant that this new provision applies only to telephone companies, and not to other utility concerns."

Senator Knight of Wyoming, who was Chairman of the Senate Public Service Committee in the preceding Legislature, said that undoubtedly the language of the amendment would shift to the applicant for rate reductions the burden of proof that existing rates were too high.

"That would inevitably follow this amendment in the pursuance of a well-established principle of law which places the burden of proof on the petitioner," said the Senator. "It was with this in mind that we changed the law during the last Administration because we were well aware of the disadvantage at which the public would find themselves in applying for reductions with all the records necessary to establish a case in the possession of the corporation."

Senator Knight said he had no doubt the proposed new language in the law would make any attempt at obtaining a reduction in telephone rates from those recently fixed by the Public Service Commission an undertaking beset with many difficulties and with the chances of success all against the applicant.

The final bill in the chain of public utility measures favored by the Smith Administration which was put in today gives "optional" home rule to municipalities throughout the State in public utility control. Cities can accept or reject this new grant of power. If they accept it, the municipal authorities would have every power now exercised by the Public Service Commission in the regulation of utility operations within their corporate limits.

Under the provisions of the bill cities can select to supervise one utility and not another and can take over from the Public Service Commission or return to it at will regulation of any or all public utilities within their corporate limits at any time they so desire. Some Republican law-makers who studied the bill said the provisions would result in chaos.

The bill reserves to the State Public Service Commission the power to establish through rates or charges for service rendered, whether alone or in conjunction with any other corporation, by any public utility whose operations lie not wholly within a city. To the commission is left the power, also, of supervising stock issues and of prescribing uniform systems of accounting by public utility corporations.

The bill covers the entire range of public utility operations so far as municipalities other than New York City are concerned. It does not apply to the regulation of transportation there. This is provided for separately in Mayor Hylan's transportation bill now pending. Should New York City exercise its option of supervising the operations of gas and electric light companies within its boundaries, it would mean the creation of a New York City Public Service Commission as well as a New York City Transportation Commission and that much more additional patronage.

S. W. Jones Named State Architect.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—The nomination of Sullivan W. Jones of Yonkers as State Architect was sent to the Senate for confirmation by Governor Smith today. Mr. Jones, who would succeed Lewis S. Pilcher, is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, class of 1900, and until recently has been technical director of the American Institute of Architects' Committee on Structural Service.

time to time, to acquire shares of stock or unsecured obligations of other corporations, unless it be to enable the company to so fix its charges that the net earnings of the company available for interest charges during twelve consecutive months out of thirteen months next preceding the proposed issue, shall have been not less than one and three-quarters times the interest during such period on the company's outstanding bonded debt."

Mr. Winkler said that the company would save $1,000,000 a year by the publication of only three issues of the directory and there was also a prospective saving of $10,000,000 a year through the automatic system when it is installed.

SEEKS TO LEGALIZE SUNDAY SHOWS HERE

Senator Levy Offers Measure to Permit 'Legitimate' Performances in First Class Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—A bill which if enacted would give legal sanction to theatrical performances on Sunday was introduced today by Senator Meyer Levy of New York. It amends Section 2152 of the penal law by providing that prohibition against Sunday theatricals shall not apply to legitimate dramatic or theatrical performances in a duly licensed theatre in a first-class city.

"This bill," said Senator Levy tonight, "is justified not only by popular sentiment in New York City, but constitutes a correction of the unfair discrimination which now exists in the matter of Sunday entertainments. It is difficult to see on what theory of public policy it is appropriate and permissible to give motion picture plays, vaudeville, cabaret performances, &c., and impolitic and immoral to give theatrical performances on the legitimate stage.

"The ordinary vaudeville and cabaret performance can hardly be said to be more edifying than the average dramatic performance. Considerations of simple justice require that all these entertainments be treated on the same plane, and inasmuch as it is the sense of the community that these other performances be permitted on Sunday, and not abolished, the logic of the situation, its equity and its justice, requires the extension of the same privilege to legitimate dramatic performances."

AT ODDS ON BONUS BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—World War veterans who are members of the Legislature made futile efforts today to prevent the proposed bonus amendment from being made a political football in the two lawmaking bodies.

Each house has passed a measure, but nothing constructive has been accomplished. The bill sponsored by Assemblyman Barnes of Oswego, which was adopted in the lower house, is held in the Finance Committee of the Senate. The Higgins measure, which passed the Senate, is held in the Ways and Means Committee in the Assembly, and both Republicans and Democrats appear to be sparring for time in an effort to have a member of their respective party receive the credit for whatever measure is passed.

When a delegation of veterans called on Senator Higgins today and asked him to have the Barnes resolution substituted for his measure in the upper house, he refused point blank. He intimated that he considered the Republican Assembly discourteous in not approving his measure.

The soldier legislators then decided to confer next Monday with Senator Walker, Democratic leader in the upper house, and Senator Downing, Chairman of the Finance Committee, to see if some amicable agreement could not be reached to dispose of the bonus matter. American Legion officials, while declaring they are not particularly concerned whether a Republican or a Democrat gets the credit for the proposed amendment under which the veterans of the State hope to receive a bonus of $45,000,000, insist that it should not be made a political football and be kicked about the legislative halls.

WOULD EVADE HYLAN VETO.

State-Wide Referendum Sought on Higher Police and Firemen's Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—As a means of overcoming the hostility of Mayor Hylan to salary increases for policemen and firemen, a bill was introduced here today providing for a State-wide referendum on that subject. By making the bill State-wide in its application, the promoters would avoid having the measure sent to Mayor Hylan for approval before it could become law.

The bill was introduced by Senator Shackno, Democrat, and Assemblyman Jesse, Republican, both New York City members. Bills are now before the Legislature increasing the salaries of first grade policemen and firemen from $2,280 to $2,500 a year. Only policemen with five years and firemen with three years of service would get the increase.

By practically unanimous action the Legislature has twice approved bills to raise the pay of policemen and firemen to these figures, but each time Mayor Hylan has intervened with a veto.

SEEKS INSURANCE INQUIRY.

Assemblyman Hamill Wants Fire and Casualty Companies Investigated.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—Investigation of the affairs of fire and casualty insurance companies is called for in a resolution offered today by Assemblyman Hamill, New York City Democrat. It would create a legislative committee with wide inquisitorial powers, such as compelling the attendance of witnesses and the submission of books and other records. An appropriation of $50,000 is provided, and the committee would report to the Legislature on or before Feb. 15, 1924.

In offering the resolution Mr. Hamill asserted he believed that an inquiry would result in disclosures as sensational as those unearthed by the Armstrong Committee which investigated life insurance companies in 1905.

FAVOR POOLSELLING BILL.

Assemblymen Report Measure Making Offense a Misdemeanor.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—The bill introduced by Assemblyman O'Connor, Democrat, of New York, designed to change the penalty for poolselling and bookmaking, met with no opposition at a hearing today before the Assembly Codes Committee and was voted out, 8 to 1.

The amendment of the penal law proposed would strike out the provision that the penalty for violation, on conviction, shall be imprisonment, leaving the penalty that of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment.

GEN. WOOD'S SON INJURED.

Car Overturns When Chauffeur Seeks to Avoid a Collision.

MANILA, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Lieutenant Osborne Wood, son and aid of Governor General Leonard Wood, was slightly injured when an automobile in which he was returning from Baguio overturned last night.

The Lieutenant suffered a lacerated hand. His Filipino chauffeur steered the car into a rice paddy to avoid collision with an automobile driven by Speaker Manuel Quezon of the Philippine House of Representatives. The chauffeur sustained internal injuries and a Chinese valet was cut by glass.

Senate Adopts Savings Bank Bills.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—The Senate today passed the Russell bill, designed to permit savings banks to provide safety deposit boxes for rental to depositors. A companion measure, permitting savings banks to open one branch in the county in which the bank is located, was passed.

WOMEN DIVIDED ON 48-HOUR WEEK BILL

CALLED BANE AND BLESSING

National Woman's Party and Manufacturers Hostile—Industrial Commissioners Favorable.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—Woman clashed with woman at a three-hour hearing this afternoon in the Assembly Chamber on the Smith eight-hour day and minimum wage legislation. Every seat in the Chamber was taken, and 90 per cent. of those present were women. Senator Reiburn, Democrat, of New York City, Chairman of the Labor and Industries Committee, presided.

Representatives of industries and manufacturing throughout the State opposed the measures on the ground that eventually they would drive virtually all industries out of the State. Some women opposed them on the ground that they would drive them out of their present jobs, while other women urged favorable action, asserting that such legislation would mean health and happiness to the working women of the State.

Former Judge Randall J. Leboeuf of Albany, who represented several large cotton mills, asserted that a "shorter work day is being camouflaged behind a woman's skirt in this legislation." He said the measures were being put forward as health legislation when the real motive behind them was to provide shorter working hours with increased wages.

In speaking for the bills, Bernard L. Shientag of the State Industrial Commission asserted they would accomplish splendid results for the working women of the State. He denied a statement made earlier in the hearing that the legislation had been drawn by paid welfare workers and said the bills were almost exactly the same of those presented to the Legislature in 1914 by the New York State Factory Investigating Committee.

"I have always favored and will continue to urge removal of unjust discrimination against women in industry," Commissioner Shientag said. "The measures, despite all that has been said against them, are sound, progressive and in the interest of the health of the women workers of the State. They will be of untold benefit to the thousands of unorganized women workers who now are in no position to help themselves and have to depend upon the Legislature to help them."

He stated that while there were more than a million women workers in the State, only about 38 per cent. would be affected under the proposed legislation. He said that seven States had eight-hour day laws and that the shorter workday for women was being considered by many others.

Frances Perkins, also a member of the State Industrial Commission, asserted that the "problem of women in industry is the problem of the flapper in industry." She said that thousands of young girls working for a bare living in the factories of the State would be aided greatly by the proposed legislation. She recalled the time, twelve years ago, when manufacturing interests of the State fought the proposed fifty-four-hour week "just as they are here fighting the forty-eight-hour week."

"They told us then," she said, "that they would never be able to operate under the fifty-four-hour week, but statistics show that production in the factories has increased under that law, and there is no reason to think that it will not do the same under the forty-eight-hour week. Industries have gone forward in this State and new ones are coming in all the time, and the workers have been giving better results under the fifty-four-hour week, just as they will, I am sure, under the forty-eight-hour week."

M. J. Hart, representing the associated industries of the State, asserted the minimum wage law and the eight-hour day would boost prices, and that finally the conditions throughout the State would be exactly as they are today.

"Both of these proposed laws would really be a detriment to the good workers," Mr. Hart said. "Their real purpose is to protect the inefficient worker, and just as certain as such laws are enacted scores of old employes who are not now really earning the money they receive would be dismissed."

Members of the National Woman's Party opposed the bills, not because of the principle involved, but because their speakers said they did not provide for working women equal opportunity with male workers. They asserted that if the word "women" was stricken from the measures and the word "persons" substituted they would be in favor of the legislation.

Miss Doris Stevens, wife of Dudley Field Malone, spoke for the National Woman's Party.

"The members of our party are not welfare workers or women who work with their hands, but we rather consider ourselves as experts as to how the conditions of men and women in industry should be bettered," Miss Stevens said.

More than a dozen women workers spoke in favor of the measures. These included Halina Scott, representing the textile workers. She said that "thousands" of other women workers from all parts of the State would have appeared in favor of the bills, "but they were afraid of losing their jobs." She said there was a great difference between the women who actually worked in the factories and the welfare workers who thought they worked. Several members of the Equal Rights Association spoke against the measures.

SAYS HE OWNS BARGE CANAL

Lumberjack Writes State Engineer He Bought It for $468.18.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—At the demand of State Engineer La Du, the State Land Board at its session this morning started what will be a far-reaching investigation into the sale of the New York State barge canal system to a private party. Mr. La Du, in asking for this investigation, presented documentary evidence showing that the State barge canal system, which was constructed at a cost of $170,000,000, had been sold to a private individual, the transaction involving considerable money. The evidence presented by Mr. La Du is contained in the following message which he received yesterday, a certified copy of which is in the hands of the Land Board:

FAVOR POOLSELLING BILL.

Assemblymen Report Measure Making Offense a Misdemeanor.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—The bill introduced by Assemblyman O'Connor, Democrat, of New York, designed to change the penalty for poolselling and bookmaking, met with no opposition at a hearing today before the Assembly Codes Committee and was voted out, 8 to 1.

The amendment of the penal law proposed would strike out the provision that the penalty for violation, on conviction, shall be imprisonment, leaving the penalty that of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment.

MRS. RAIZEN TO SERVE TWENTY YEARS TO LIFE

Slayer of Dr. Glickenstein Is Calm as She Hears Sentence Imposed.

Mrs. Lillian S. Raizen, convicted slayer of Dr. Abraham Glickstein, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Cropsey in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to serve from twenty years to life in Auburn Prison. There was no sign of hysteria. She was composed and kept her eyes straight ahead as she heard the sentence.

The courtroom was filled when Mrs. Raizen was led in. She appeared to take an interest in the spectators, at whom she smiled. She was asked if she had anything to say why sentence should not be imposed. Before she could reply Albert Conway, her attorney, interposed.

"Your Honor," he said, "I move to set aside the verdict, first, because it is contrary to the weight of evidence, and, second, that it is contrary to law."

"We have discussed this before, Mr. Conway," said Justice Cropsey. "I deny the motion."

Leaning across the bench Justice Cropsey said to Mrs. Raizen, "The punishment for this crime is prescribed by law, and I sentence you to the State Prison at Auburn, N. Y., for not less than twenty years and for not more than the term of your natural life."

The Justice then gave his attention to the papers before him indicating he had dismissed the case and Mrs. Raizen was led from the room.

"I am resigned," she said. "I have always upheld the law and my record was spotless up to that time. I have never justified the taking of human life. My conscience does not condemn me, for I did not know what I was doing."

FEWER PALESTINE TROOPS.

Bonar Law Says Reduction of British Garrison There Has Begun.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Reductions are already being made in the British garrison in Palestine, but the proposal to withdraw completely is impracticable, according to Premier Bonar Law, who made the statement to the House of Commons in the course of a debate on economizing in the budget.

The Premier's declaration was made in reply to a proposal by Mr. Harris that all British forces in Palestine be evacuated on the ground that the maintenance of the troops there was proving a great drain on his Majesty's exchequer.

The question of reducing the garrison, Mr. Bonar Law said, was receiving "active consideration". "Arrangements are already being made," he said, "for withdrawal in the immediate future of one or two Indian infantry battalions now there." The Indian cavalry regiment, he said, was also being reduced in strength.

Confidence that Mr. Bonar Law's statement means that "the first instalment of complete evacuation which is bound to come has begun," is expressed today in The Daily Express. The Premier is chided for "hesitating" by The Daily Mail, and the proposed reductions in the Palestine forces are characterized as small.

TO ANNEX SOUTH RHODESIA.

Bonar Law Announces Reorganization of South African Territory.

LONDON, Feb 27 (Associated Press).—Great Britain is about to annex Southern Rhodesia and grant a responsible government to the people of that country, in accordance with their desire as expressed in the recent referendum, Prime Minister Bonar Law stated in the House of Commons today.

Southern Rhodesia at present is under the administration of the British South Africa Company, which holds a royal charter granted in 1889. The territory has an area of 149,900 square miles and includes Matabeleland and Mashonaland. It is bounded on the north by the River Zambesi, on the east by Portuguese East Africa, on the south by the Transvaal and on the west by Bechuanaland.

The European population, according to the census of May, 1921, was 33,500; the native population is estimated at 770,000, and there are approximately 3,000 Asiatics.

The country is rich in gold and other minerals and has also been developed considerably for agriculture. The capital is Salisbury.

TO HELP END DRUG EVIL.

Physicians Appointed by Smith Will Study Rural Health Problem.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—Appointment of a committee of physicians to assist in solving the rural health and narcotic drug problems was announced today by Governor Smith. A conference will be held not later than March 10 at which plans will be formulated for a State-wide program designed to relieve the shortage of physicians in rural districts and to combat the drug trade.

The committee consists of Dr. Arthur W. Booth of Elmira, President of the Medical Society of the State of New York; Dr. James N. Vander Veer of Albany, Dr. Orrin S. Whitman, President of the New York County Medical Society; Dr. Simon Flexner, Director of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research; Dr. J. Richard Kervin of Brooklyn; Dr. Edward Livingston Hunt, Secretary of the Medical Society of the State of New York; Dr. Wendell C. Phillips of New York; Dr. Walter G. Niles, Dean of Cornell University Medical College; Dr. Carleton Simon of New York; Dr. Frederick E. Sondern of the Academy of Medicine; Dr. Jacob Diner; Dr. William C. Cuffer of Albany, Secretary of the State Board of Medical Examiners; Dr. Herman M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner, and Dr. Samuel J. Kopetzky, Vice President of the New York County Medical Society.

AGREE TO ECONOMY PLAN.

Republicans Will Not Oppose Smith's Reduction of Departments.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—Republicans in the Legislature, it is understood, are reconciled to the plan recommended by Governor Smith to eliminate several of the State departments and commissions and consolidate more than a score of others. Speaker Machold of the Assembly this afternoon conferred with the Governor, and it is understood the statutory reorganization programme was discussed at length.

While the Governor's plan is expected to bring about a material saving to the State through the abolition of many of useless bureaus and commissions, the Republicans realize that it will not directly affect any of the more important Republican officeholders, and for that reason will not offer strenuous opposition.

The New York City Board of Education would be required to furnish free eyeglasses for pupils requiring them and who are unable to pay for them, under a bill introduced by Assemblyman Mandelbaum today. Another Mandelbaum measure would require Boards of Education in all first-class cities to provide food for all needy school children.

TAXI BONDING LAW UPHELD.

Court of Appeals Rules Fares Must Be Secured Against Injury.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—The so-called taxicab bonding law, passed by the Legislature last year, was upheld as valid by the Court of Appeals today. The statute provides that operators of automobiles carrying passengers for hire in first-class cities must give bonds or insurance policies as security against injury to their fares.

Charles Martin of New York City, a taxicab driver, arrested and charged with violating the law, carried the case to the highest State court.

CONTROL OF TRANSIT BY CITY IS SCORED

Citizens Union Says Walker-Donohue Bill Would Keep Subject in Turmoil of Politics.

VAST POWER GIVEN MAYOR

Statement Points Out That Members of Commission Would Be Merely His Creatures.

The Walker-Donohue bill abolishing the Transit Commission and creating a City Department of Transportation with power to regulate transportation companies and to have charge of the municipal ownership and operation of transportation facilities was attacked yesterday as keeping the whole subject of transit in "the turmoil of politics" in a statement issued by the Executive Committee of the Citizens Union.

The action of the Executive Committee was taken on the report of the Special Traction Committee and the Public Utilities Sub-Committee of the Union, which summarized the bill's provisions and pointed out that it vested in the proposed commission of three members, to be appointed by the Mayor and removable by him or the Board of Estimate at pleasure, all the regulatory powers of the former Public Service Commission for the First District and the present Transit Commission.

The report condemned municipal operation of the transit lines which is authorized by the bill, but declared that this feature was of little immediate practical importance because the city, due to its limited borrowing capacity, could not find the money to do anything of this sort beyond the establishment of a few municipal bus lines.

"The enactment of the regulatory provisions of the bill would end genuine transportation regulation in this city," the report read; "would keep the whole subject in the turmoil of municipal politics and in the opinion of the Union would tend toward a progressively worse utility service and likewise toward worse municipal government.

Would Be Creatures of the Mayor.

"Under this bill the new commission would be creatures of the Mayor, continually subservient to him and to the Board of Estimate, whose power to remove and supersede them without reason is the power to dictate for merely political motives, policies and rulings which should be based upon impartial non-political and quasi-judicial investigation and findings. No Commissioner could count on holding his office for a moment after he had refused to do the Mayor's bidding or that of the Board of Estimate, on a matter within his jurisdiction. The results of such a situation are inevitable.

"Orders relating to service, equipment and other matters will be made as the expediences of politics dictate. The ordinary administration of the city government will become demoralized. Every motive for holding to high standards will disappear, for the regulation of public utilities will always offer a demagogue the opportunity and the temptation to distract public attention from the shortcomings of his administration by a popular regulatory order however unenforceable it may be. For instance, a crooked police administration might readily be continued under protection of the popularity momentarily enjoyed by reason of an order for a 4-cent fare.

"Such regulatory orders, moreover, would not improve the service given by the companies or reduce the fares charged by them. Endless litigation would ensue. After years of mal-administration concealed under cover of popular but futile public utility orders, the orders would be invalidated, with service meantime worse than ever.

Sees End of Efficiency.

"In short, while recognizing the purpose of those who would shut the mouths of Hylan and Hearst by giving them the power they have been clamoring for, with the attendant responsibility, the Citizens' Union believes that to be a policy of political desperation. It will tend to keep the dominant political party temporarily united; but it will destroy honesty and efficiency in the government of the city and will achieve nothing of public value in the regulation of the transit companies."

The report approved those features of the bill which require the approval of the Board of Estimate for any plan for reorganization of existing transit facilities and those which eliminate the sole right in a State body, such as the present Transit Commission, to supersede existing contracts and franchises. It also approved the provisions for the construction by the city itself of lines it was to pay for and own, but suggested that the following changes in the measure should be made:

Suggests Changes in Measure.

"First, while the city should be competent as a matter of municipal policy to engage in the operation of a transportation utility which will not be self-sustaining, the public should be apprised in advance of that prospect, and the statute should also provide that in such case the engagement in the enterprise shall be the subject of a referendum.

"Second, the union objects to those provisions of the bill which would give the city unrestricted power to establish a utility. The union believes that past experience has clearly demonstrated the wisdom and fairness of requiring a quasi-judicial regulatory body to determine whether the establishment of a new facility will serve the public interest.

"Thirdly, the union believes that the bill should expressly provide that all employes engaged in the municipal operation of public utilities should be in the competitive class of the civil service.

"Finally, with reference to the municipal construction and operation features of the bill, the union believes that the immediate practical importance is not great—extending perhaps no further than to the establishment of a few bus lines—because of the constitutional limitation upon the city's borrowing capacity and its necessary commitments, present and prospective, for completion of the present subways, schools and other necessary public buildings and enterprises."

16 I. W. W. MEMBERS JAILED.

They Accept 30-Day Sentence in Preference to Leaving Centralia.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Feb. 27.—Sixteen Industrial Workers of the World, arrested here on Saturday on vagrancy charges, today began a grind of eight hours hard labor daily for thirty days on a diet of bread and water, choosing that in preference to the other alternative offered them in Police Court yesterday of leaving town within an hour. The seventeenth defendant decided to leave Centralia.

Two other men believed to be I. W. W. organizers were arrested yesterday and held on open charges. As a measure of precaution seventy-five citizens were sworn in as special officers and were on duty last night. There was no disorder, however, and no apparent increase in the number of I. W. W. members in town.

HARDING ABANDONS SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

Regrets Its Failure, but Will Not Try to Revive It in Next Congress.

TO LIQUIDATE SHIP BOARD

Speeches Keep Subsidy Measure Alive One More Day, Postponing Its Death Until Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—While the Senate continued filibustering today on the Ship Subsidy bill, postponing its death until tomorrow, President Harding has no regrets for having sponsored the measure, and on Sunday, the day before he leaves for Florida, the details will be announced of the Administration's plan to liquidate the affairs of the United States Shipping Board.

It was said at the White House this morning that the President believed Congress had missed the greatest opportunity in the history of the country to establish a great merchant marine. No secret was made of Mr. Harding's disappointment that a subsidy program was prevented from passing at this session. His particular regret was that, while the majority of Senators appeared to be behind the bill, they were incapable of expressing their will over the filibuster group.

Failure of the Senate to vote on the bill, however, has turned the entire shipping question back upon the President, and he has announced that he will try to solve the problem without the further aid of Congress. The solution, it is said, will consist of liquidating the affairs of the United States Shipping Board so as to build up and encourage privately owned shipping lines. The details of the plan still are being considered by the Shipping Board, and Chairman Lasker said today that the final plan will not be announced until Sunday.

It was emphasized at the White House that no effort will be made at the next session of Congress to bring up the subsidy measure again, because it is expected that the Administration's policy of liquidation will be in the process of completion by next Winter.

Subsidy Filibuster Still On.

For some reason, which Senate leaders of both parties seemed unable to explain, the filibuster against the Ship Subsidy bill was maintained for several hours this afternoon, with the result that very little business was done in the Senate. Time and again it looked as if a vote was at hand on the Robinson motion to recommit the bill to the Committee on Commerce, but in each instance before the Vice President could put the motion some Senator was on his feet demanding to be heard.

The subsidy is dead. Everybody admits it, yet for two whole days it has been impossible to get the bill out of the way so that the Senate could take up other important measures which, unless passed by noon of next Sunday, will die with the Congress.

"For three days," said Senator Robinson, the acting Democratic leader, "every Senator in this Chamber has realized the fact that this bill is dead. Yet its bones continue to rattle right along."

Senator Jones, in charge of the measure, finally submitted a unanimous consent agreement calling for a vote on the Robinson motion at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Leaders on both sides pleaded that the agreement be entered into, and although several Senators appeared ready to interpose with "I object," they managed to keep quiet and the agreement was made. So the bill will officially die tomorrow.

Seek to Defeat Milk Bill.

One reason advanced for the prolonging of the subsidy filibuster is that opponents of the Filled Milk bill took advantage of the motion to recommit in order to filibuster the milk measure to a point where it cannot be [illegible] this session. The motion to take up that bill will be made as soon as the vote on the Robinson motion is concluded and is certain to start a lively debate, for there are Senators on both sides who oppose the milk bill on the ground that the ends sought are unsound and that it marks another adventure into the realm of private business regulation by the Government.

Senator Townsend of Michigan started the subsidy talk today when he declared that the defeat of the measure was due to politics, while Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who followed, denied that the country had passed adversely on the bill at the November election. Senator Hitchcock, replying to Mr. Pepper, challenged his statement. No matter what any Senator favoring the bill might say, he declared, the people had repudiated it.

"It was one of the principal reasons for my defeat," added Senator Hitchcock, "for so strong was the feeling in Nebraska against the proposition that my opponent pledged himself to vote against it if elected. But for that pledge thousands of Republicans who supported him would have voted against him."

Senator Heflin made two speeches. He denounced the subsidy bill as a "monstrous steal." The motto of the opposition, as exclaimed, was that of Verdun, "It shall not pass!"

CARAWAY IN FIGHT WITH CAR PASSENGER

Senator Wields Umbrella, Wallerstein His First, in Washington Jostling Incident.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Blows were exchanged by Senator Caraway of Arkansas, and another passenger, at first unidentified, on a Washington street car today after the man had been accused of jostling the Senator and using offensive language.

The altercation took place at Fourteenth and H Streets, northwest, after both men had left the street car, the unidentified passenger striking Senator Caraway on the face and the Senator retaliating with blows from his umbrella on the man's back.

Some hours after the encounter, Harry A. Wallerstein, a veterans' bureau employe, announced he was the man with whom Senator Caraway had clashed. He said that the Senator had made an unjustified attack on him. A lurch of the street car had thrown him up against Mr. Caraway, he said and although several Senators appeared ready to interpose with "I object," they managed to keep quiet and the agreement was made. So the bill will officially die tomorrow.

Wallerstein said that he had served as an officer in the army during the war and was receiving Government compensation for disability incurred in service.

According to Senator Caraway a passenger standing behind him insisted on knocking the Senator's hat down over his eyes. The Senator's gentle remonstrance was returned, it was said, with advice not to get "so grouchy about it," and to "shut up."

The Senator replied with the quick repartee which has attracted some attention on the floor of the Senate and offered to exchange cards and have a meeting later. To this the stranger responded by leaving the car with Senator Caraway in pursuit.

In the street the passenger squared off and shot a short jolt to the Senator's face. Mr. Caraway returned the compliment with his umbrella and in the thrashing both men lost their hats. The Senator's opponent cried "enough!" it was said, whereupon Mr. Caraway returned his hat to him and the fight was [illegible]

HARDING PUTS WORK AND NEW IN CABINET

Nominations Confirmed—Tobin Named Envoy to Hague, Moss to Treasury Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Nobody was surprised, but many were disappointed, when President Harding sent to the Senate today the nominations of Hubert Work of Colorado, the present Postmaster General, to be Secretary of the Interior, and Harry S. New of Indiana, whose term as Senator will expire on March 4, to be Postmaster General. There had been several candidates for the Secretaryship of the Interior, among them Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, the floor leader of the House, who was defeated for the Senate last November.

Following the rule of Senatorial courtesy, the nomination of Senator New was confirmed promptly. The nomination of Dr. Work was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and afterward confirmed.

Republican politicians had known for several days that the President had determined to transfer Postmaster General Work to the Interior Department and appoint Senator New to the vacancy, but some of them clung to the hope that a last-minute change might take place. Western Senators and Representatives were interested particularly in the Interior portfolio.

According to one story, it was intended when Postmaster General Work was promoted from First Assistant Postmaster General on the retirement of Will H. Hays, a year ago, that Dr. Work would retire from the Cabinet on March 4 next, and if Senator New then desired the postal portfolio he would receive it. The resignation of Albert B. Fall as Secretary of the Interior made the carrying out of such an arrangement unnecessary and a place for Mr. New in the Cabinet was opened by the transfer of Dr. Work to the Interior Department.

New Confirmed in Open Session.

The nomination of Mr. New was confirmed in open session. No Senator took up the cudgels in behalf of the opposition of Representative William R. Wood of Indiana to Mr. New's appointment.

Mr. New is personally popular on both sides of the Senate Chamber.

Postmaster General Work gave out a statement in which, after expressing his appreciation of the cordial support he had received from President Harding, he reviewed the work of the Post Office Department during his incumbency.

"The great deficit of the department has been tremendously reduced," said Dr. Work. "A policy of Federal ownership of public buildings in every part of the United States has been approved by the Congress in the interest of the people; waste and lethargy in the service have given way to a more wholesome atmosphere; the rank and file of the army of employes are contented in their work for their Government; the public and the great business world receive a personal service as nearly perfect as human ingenuity can make it."

Dr. Work paid a tribute to Senator New, whom he described as "a man eminently qualified in every way to carry on the work of constructive administration in the interest of good government."

Tobin Named Envoy to The Hague.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Richard M. Tobin of San Francisco was nominated by President Harding today to be Minister to The Netherlands, filling the vacancy caused by the appointment of William Phillips as Under Secretary of State. The nomination was confirmed this evening without opposition.

McKenzie Moss of Kentucky was nominated to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Moss, who takes the place vacated by Elmer Dover about nine months ago, is the present head of the estate tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau. In his new position he will have charge of the internal revenue and customs bureaus, now under the jurisdiction of Assistant Secretary Clifford.

Prior to his appointment in the Internal Revenue Bureau Mr. Moss was [illegible] the staff of counsel for the Alien Property Custodian. During the controversy between Commissioner Blair of the Internal Revenue Bureau and Mr. Dover he remained loyal to his chief, and his appointment to the Assistant Secretaryship was said to meet with the full approval of Mr. Blair.

Charles H. Verrill of Maryland was nominated by the President today to be a member of the United States Employes' Compensation Commission.

ALASKA OIL LANDS RESERVED FOR NAVY

President Reserves 35,000 Square Miles Within Arctic Circle to Insure Naval Fuel.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Harding, by Executive order, has set aside an area of more than 35,000 square miles in the northwest section of Alaska as an oil reserve to insure fuel for the navy. This reserve will exceed by 20,000,000 acres the combined area of the three other reserves—one in Wyoming and two in California—which is less than 3,000,000 acres.

The new reserve adjoins the corner of Alaska between Icy Cape and Cape Farrow, and is bounded by the Arctic Ocean on the north and west and the Endicott range of mountains and the Colville River on the south and east. It is for the most part flat, grassy tundra, devoid of vegetation, sparsely populated and entirely within the Arctic Circle.

The reservation, according to Secretary Fall of the Interior Department, will be of the greatest importance to the navy, since for years seepages of oil have been found all along the seacoast. How much oil the reserve will produce, Secretary Fall said, is not yet known, as no Government surveys have been made. The petroleum possibilities, however, have attracted private investigation, and about 125,000 acres have been allotted to fifty applicants for development. No drilling has been done.

In case further exploration should show the land worth developing, Mr. Fall said, it will be necessary to erect huge storage tanks on the land to hold the oil until vessels could take it away during the three or four months in which the sea in that region is free from ice, or to pipe it several hundred miles to Fort Hamlin, on the Yukon, or to Fairbanks, on the Alaska Railway.

While the section reserved includes the fifty grants mentioned, provisions of the reservation do not include the privately owned land which, Secretary Fall declared, is a small part of the area. The land set aside for naval purposes is to be so reserved for six years for classification, examination and preparation for development, and thereafter until otherwise ordered by Congress or the President.

"By a line running due south from Icy Cape, on the northwestern extremity of Alaska, at approximately latitude 70 degrees 21 minutes, longitude 161 degrees 46 minutes, to the crest of a range of mountains forming the watershed between the Noatak River and its northern tributaries and the streams flowing into the Arctic Ocean; then east along this crest to a mountain peak at approximately latitude 67 degrees 30 minutes, longitude 156 degrees 8 minutes; then true north to the highest high water mark on the western bank of the Colville River, following downstream to the seacoast; thence westward to point of beginning.

"The outer coast line of islands and sandspits forming a coastal barrier are to be the sea boundaries, and the Flower Islands, which are outside the three-mile limit, also are included.

"The reservation so established is for naval use only and will not interfere with other use of lands or waters within the area."

HINES CHOSEN HEAD OF VETERAN BUREAU

Harding Nominates General Who Rose From Private to Succeed Colonel Forbes.

BUREAU INQUIRY FAVORED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Almost coincident with the appearance in the Senate of a report recommending a joint Congressional investigation of the United States Veterans' Bureau, President Harding sent to that body the nomination of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines as successor to Charles R. Forbes, whose resignation as Director of the Veterans' Bureau will take effect tomorrow.

The special Senate Committee on Soldier Hospitalization which has had under consideration for nearly two weeks a resolution calling for investigation of the Veterans' Bureau, reported that in its opinion Congress should take a hand in attempts to straighten out affairs of the bureau. The report stated that charges of such serious nature, involving so many angles connected with the Government's treatment of disabled service men, had been made that it was desirable to ascertain their truth or, if found to be untrue, to prove their falsity.

It was suggested that the proposed investigation be made by a committee composed of three Senators and three members of the House, but the committee reported that if the House declined to join in an investigation the work should be undertaken by a committee of five Senators, two of whom should be members of the special committee making the report. As the terms of Senators Sutherland, Pomerene and Calder, three of the five members of this committee, will expire March 4, this would leave Senators Walsh of Massachusetts and Weller of Maryland virtually to sit with the investigating committee.

The report recommended that the investigation be held between March and the next session of Congress and that the committee be authorized to visit such sections of the country as it chose in order to complete its investigation.

The resolution will be brought up for a vote in the Senate tomorrow and indications are that it will be passed.

President Harding's selection for the new head of the Veterans' Bureau was head of the Army's Transportation Service that made arrangements for the carrying of 2,000,000 men to France during the war. General Hines's appointment was urged by Senator Calder and several members of the New York delegation in Congress. President Harding is said to have received the suggestion with instant favor because of General Hines's past performances in Government service, for he sent for him on Washington's Birthday and offered him the appointment. Secretary Work also is said to have favored General Hines.

General Hines entered the United States Army as an enlisted man during the Spanish-American War. His first position was that of Artillery Sergeant. In July, 1906, he was commissioned as Second Lieutenant in the regular army, and at the outbreak of the World War had attained the rank of Captain. During the World War he rose to the rank of Brigadier General and was made Chief of Transportation. His duties gave him complete charge of all army transportation, both in the United States and abroad.

Protest Making Ely a Major General

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A resolution protesting against the promotion of Brig. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, whose nomination as Major General is pending in the Senate, was adopted today at a meeting of members of the Oklahoma and Texas delegations of the House. The meeting was called by Representative Sumners, Democrat, of Texas, and the resolution cited reports that General Ely had "seriously and unjustly reflected upon the Thirty-sixth Division and its services in France." A committee was appointed to confer with Texas and Oklahoma Senators in an effort to hold up confirmation.

BANK TAX MEASURE DELAYS FARM CREDITS

But House Leaders Promise a Vote on the Agricultural Bill Today.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Farm credits legislation was sidetracked in the House today for a conference report on the National Bank Tax bill, but Republican managers gave assurances that it would be called up tomorrow, and, if possible, pressed to a vote at a single session.

The bank tax matter led to a five-hour fight and a further tightening of the legislative jam. Even should the rural credits measure be disposed of by tomorrow night, it is certain that a considerable part of the legislation which the Rules Committee has voted to give privileged status on the floor will die with the Sixty-seventh Congress at noon Sunday.

The decision as to what matters are to be acted upon by the House after tomorrow rests largely with the leaders, but the prospect is that several measures which the House will pass will fail in the Senate.

Bills now virtually conceded to be dead include those for Government purchase of the Cape Cod Canal and for the establishment of a women's industrial home at Mount Weather, Va., and an industrial reformatory at Camp Grant, Ill.

The Norris resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment to advance the time of inauguration of President and the convening of the first regular sessions of newly elected Congresses, is conceded to have only a very slight chance. Another proposed constitutional amendment, that by Representative Foster, designed to give the Federal Government concurrent power with the States in control of child labor, is in a similar position.

Present plans of the Republican managers are to put through the Post Office Omnibus bill and several measures from the Military Committee.

Other legislation on the special rules calendar includes an amendment to the China Trade act, urged by Secretary Hoover; a bill for Government purchase and re-sale to the farmers of $10,000,000 of nitrate and calcium arsenate; the Alaska Fisheries bill; a measure to extend the time for making payments on reclamation projects, and the proposal to create a special veterans' legislation committee in Congress.

FIGHTS HAWAII LABOR BILL.

House Minority Report Says It Would Bring Scotch Influx.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The temporary admission of otherwise ineligible common labor into Hawaii, proposed in a resolution reported yesterday by the House Immigration Committee, was attacked today in a minority report filed by Representative Box, Democrat, of Texas, who said that it would introduce peonage among Chinese coolies, who would flow into the islands and into the United States.

Representative Raker of California, later signed the minority report. Mr. Box said that Representatives Maloney, Massachusetts; Wilson, Louisiana, and Rainey, Alabama, would also sign it.

Mr. Box urged that the passage of the resolution would violate the act of union between Hawaii and the United States.

"It will make Hawaii still more Oriental and less American," his report said, "and it will menace the United States by creating a bountiful source of Chinese immigration into continental United States and the opportunity for much fraud.

"If the Hawaiian sugar growers and manufacturers are entitled to a liberal supply of the cheapest and most degraded labor on earth, with what face will the supporters of this resolution deny a like supply of cheap labor to the great numbers of Americans who want it? It is unfair to the American beet and cane producers to enable a few favored competitors in Hawaii to enjoy such an advantage over them."

The passage of the resolution, Mr. Box's report declared, or any action taken under it by the Department of Labor in ascertaining a labor shortage in Hawaii, would justify Japan in sending her laborers there under the terms of the "gentlemen's agreement" governing Japanese immigration.

"Therefore," the report continued, "those who propose this measure not only propose to admit the coolies, but they probably will open the way for the admission of Japanese laborers."

NEW CARNEGIE BODY TO PROMOTE PEACE

Justice Guy Approves Application of Endowment in Europe for a Charter.

WILL OPPOSE ALL WAR

Root and Butler Among Directors—Organization Plans Work Here and in France.

Elihu Root and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler are among the seven Directors seeking incorporation of the Carnegie Endowment in Europe, Inc., whose application for a charter was approved yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy. The application was made by Coudert Brothers, 2 Rector Street. The papers forwarded to Albany for filing with the Secretary of State, after their approval by Justice Guy, describe the Carnegie Endowment in Europe, Inc., as an organization interested in the promotion of world peace. The corporation is to operate largely throughout the United States and France, according to the statement of its purposes.

The names and places of residence of the persons who are to be the Directors of the corporation until its first annual meeting are listed as follows:

Elihu Root, Nicholas Murray Butler, Austen G. Fox, Henry S. Pritchett and Robert A. Franks, all of New York City; James Brown Scott, 1,201 Nineteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., and Andrew J. Montague, 1,111 Grove Avenue, Richmond. The first meeting of the corporation will be held on the second Friday in April.

The application for a charter says some of the objects are:

"The advance the cause of peace among nations, to hasten the abolition of international war and to encourage and promote a peaceful settlement of international differences and in particular:

"(a) To promote a thorough and scientific investigation and study of the cause of war and of the practical methods to prevent and avoid it.

"(b) To aid in the development of international law and a general agreement of the rules thereof, and the acceptance of the same among nations.

"(c) To diffuse information and to educate public opinion regarding the causes, nature and effects of war and means for its prevention and avoidance.

"(d) To establish a better understanding of international rights and duties and a more perfect sense of international justice among the inhabitants of civilized countries.

"(e) To cultivate friendly feelings between the inhabitants of different countries and to increase the knowledge and understanding of each other by the several nations.

"(f) To promote a general acceptance of peaceable methods in the settlement of international disputes.

"(g) To maintain, promote and assist such establishments, organizations, associations and agencies as shall be deemed necessary or useful in the accomplishment of the purposes of the corporation of any of them."

The principal place of business of the corporation is to be located in the Borough of Manhattan, in the city, county and State of New York.

Dr. Butler explained last night that no important change in the work of the Carnegie Peace Foundation was foreshadowed by the incorporation of the Carnegie Endowment in Europe, Inc.

HARDING CONSULTS OCULIST

Wants to See If He Needs New Glasses After Four Years.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Harding today visited the offices of Dr. W. H. Wilmer, an eye specialist here, and had his eyes examined.

At the White House it was said that the President's eyes were not bothering him, but that in view of the fact that he has had his present glasses for four years he thought it desirable to see if a change were needed.

SENATE MUST VOTE ON THE WORLD COURT

around to the question which the President presented to it.

This spokesman said that the criticism that the President had been too tardy in presenting his proposal to the Senate was not at all disagreeable to Mr. Harding in view of circumstances which prevented earlier action on his part. It was pointed out that he could not undertake to pledge the United States to the world court until he obtained the Senate's approval, and on the other hand, it would be idle to go to the Senate until there was a reasonable assurance that the nations responsible for the world court would assent to such reservation as the United States would find it necessary to make.

Sounding these nations took time—in fact, soundings had been on for a year—and the proposal was submitted to the Senate at the first available opportunity. As for the Court of Justice, it was termed a going concern, and the point was whether the United States should recognize that fact or attempt to set up a court of its own.

Borah Asks for More Facts.

When the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations met today, Senator Borah presented a resolution which called on President Harding for further information as to the world court and its functions, asking the President to answer certain questions. The main question was whether he favored an agreement among all the powers obligating them to submit all disputed international questions to the court. Under the terms of the protocol setting up the court, a signatory power may exempt itself from submitting certain matters to the court's jurisdiction, and most of the powers have taken advantage of this provision.

Before the Borah resolution was adopted it was agreed among the members of the committee that it should be presented to Secretary Hughes, and not to the President. Senator Lodge will consult Mr. Hughes on the subject within a day or two.

With the exception of Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, the members of the committee present were in favor of Senator Borah's proposal. Senator Kellogg advocated reporting the President's proposal to the Senate immediately with a favorable recommendation.

There was some debate in the committee. Senator Williams of Mississippi, while expressing himself in favor of the United States joining the World Court, said he would like to know whether there was any provision by which force could be used to guarantee the court's decisions. If no force were available, he contended, the decisions of the court would be useless.

An inquiry by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, was intended to ascertain to what degree the United States, if it adopted the President's proposal, would become involved under the provisions of the Versailles Treaty relating to labor. There were other inquiries as to whether any nations now signatory to the protocol had made reservations to it.

Terms of Committee Resolution.

Part of the discussion related to whether the League of Nations World Court was a real court of justice or merely an arbitration tribunal. This phase of the discussion was reflected in Senator Borah's resolution which reads:

"That the President be requested to advise the committee whether he favors an agreement obligating all powers, or Governments which are signers of the protocol creating the court to submit all questions about which there is a dispute and which cannot be settled by diplomatic efforts relative to:

"(a) The interpretation of treaties.

"(b) Any question of international law.

"(c) The existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation.

"(d) The nature or extent of reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

"Secondly, if the President favors such an agreement, does he deem it advisable to communicate with the other powers to ascertain whether they are willing to obligate themselves as aforesaid?

"In other words, are those who are signers of the protocol creating the court willing to obligate themselves by agreement to submit such questions as aforesaid, or are they to insist that such questions shall only be submitted in case both, or all, parties interested agree to the submission after the controversy arises, the purpose being to give the court obligatory jurisdiction over all purely justiciable questions relating to the interpretation of treaties, questions of international law, to the existence of facts constituting a breach of international obligation, to reparation for the breach of international obligations, to the interpretation of the sentences passed by the court, the end that these matters may be finally determined in a court of justice."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—President Harding was reminded, today by Elliot H. Goodwin, Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, that representative business organizations connected with the Chamber were in favor of participation by the American Government in the Court of International Justice. In a letter to the President Mr. Goodwin said that the question was brought before the Chamber's annual meeting last May, with the result that a resolution was unanimously adopted urging that the United States join the court.

CECIL SEES NO EVASION OF FULL COURT DUTY

Harding Plan Means Assuming Equal Responsibility, British Expert Says.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The desire expressed by President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes for the participation of the United States in the permanent Court of International Justice is characterized by Lord Robert Cecil, recognized as one of the leading British experts on the League of Nations, as "particularly pleasing," but has not caused him to jump to the conclusion that the United States is about ready to take out membership in the League and dispatch delegates to Geneva.

"The only constructive comment I can make," said Lord Robert in a statement to The Associated Press today, "is that I see no reason why Mr. Hughes's reservations should not be accepted.

"Naturally, I know the temper of the League Assembly, and in the Assembly, I believe, there will be no objection to American participation in the permanent court under the American conditions. I have heard some comment that America seems to be trying to obtain the advantages of the League without incurring the responsibilities, but it does not appeal to me in that light, for the League and the court are distinctly separate bodies, as is the Opium Commission, in which America is co-operating.

"President Harding's proposal seems to include full responsibilities by sharing the expenses of the court and in other ways, and I see no justification for such criticism."

Lord Robert added that the proposal of President Harding and Mr. Hughes was of the greatest personal interest to him, in view of his forthcoming visit to the United States.

CALLED A POLITICAL MOVE.

Harding Is Seeking Votes in Advance, Paris Paper Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The Journal des Debats warns its readers tonight not to consider President Harding's wish to make America a member of the World Court as an immediate prelude to American participation in world affairs, but rather as an endeavor by Mr. Harding to win in advance votes in next year's election.

"It would be imprudent to think that this move means that the United States is coming right into international councils," the paper says. "It would be better to say that Mr. Harding, feeling disturbed about the next presidential election, seeks to satisfy a constantly increasing number of citizens who are dissatisfied with his foreign policy.

"Americans are coming to see more and more that they cannot live in superb isolation, that continents separated by oceans nevertheless have common interests and that the short-sighted policy of the farmers of the Middle West is bad both for the farmers and for the country. Consequently, without going back to the grandiose policy of Wilson, Harding makes a sidestep toward Europe. That is all that has happened so far."

SAYS ALOOFNESS IS WORN OUT.

London Times Asserts It Was for Past Conditions.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—President Harding's proposal for the participation of the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice is welcomed by The London Times, which says that "the policy of aloofness is a creed worn out, wise and useful in its time, but formulated for conditions of a world which has passed away."

Noting that the constitution of the International Court is so closely interwoven with that of the League that participation in the former might seem difficult for a nation not a member of the League, the paper asserts that Mr. Harding's proposal would nevertheless be received favorably by all members of the latter body and would be warmly welcomed by the British Empire.

From the Founder's Writings

It is Not Wise to Hoard Money

but it is wise to lay it up for "a rainy day" without becoming miserly.

Have you ever read George Eliot's lovely story of "Silas Marner," the linen weaver, who buried his earnings under the loose bricks of his hearth stone, and the wonderful miracle that was wrought out thereby in his pitiful, overwhelming sorrow, when all his savings vanished overnight?

To squander money unthinkingly because one has so much that it "makes no difference," as they say, or, knowing many things, does not know enough to take care of what he has, is deplorable.

To do our best should be our daily study.

TOMB OF PHARAOH NOW NEARLY HIDDEN

All Work Suspended for a Week While Carnarvon and His Staff Go Away for a Rest.

LUXOR, Feb. 27.—The royal sarcophagus enclosure in the Valley of the Kings presented the strangest sight today when the work of closing in the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen was continued amid dense clouds of dust and sand which a strong south wind blew all over the valley, making everything most unpleasant to the visitors there. The whole operation of closing in the tomb will take about twenty-four working hours, truly a noteworthy achievement considering all that is to be filled in.

The first essential was the blocking of the doorway, and to this Howard Carter personally attended. With his own hands he removed the wooden framework and the grille with which the mouth of the tomb has been closed since it was first found and put in their place the balks with which it had to be blocked. About a score of these balks were used, some 63 inches long and 10 inches wide. They are of Turkish oak, the hardest wood that could be found in the country, and in between these were placed planks of plane wood. These planks were inserted owing to the vital necessity of protecting the tomb from any possible risk of inundation, the idea being that in the event of water getting through the rubble the plane wood would tend to strengthen the barrier.

It was a most fascinating sight to watch Carter fitting these balks and planks, wedging each with little plane wood wedges, buttressing the whole with huge batons of similar wood, firmly lodged against the rock steps and finally secured with extra wedges.

Entrance Strongly Protected.

By the time he had finished—it was a three-hour job—Carter had completely covered up the actual entrance door and practically the whole mouth to within a foot of the rock above, with a barrier resembling an old fashioned sluice gate which, thanks to the wonderful precision with which he had fitted in the pieces, should afford all possible resistance to attack, by elements or by human hands.

Yesterday I briefly described the process of filling in the ntrance to the mouth and well. It has been calculated that over seventeen hundred tons of sand, rock and rubble were used for this purpose. The rapidity and industry with which the four-score of boys and men worked were remarkable. While about twenty dug diligently in the refuse heaps on the other side of the roadway filling baskets as quickly as they were emptied, the remainder kept running in a continuous chain for several hours on end, to the peculiar sing-song chant without which Eastern laborers seem unable to work, dumping the contents of their ten-pound baskets into the well in a manner which made the small heaps increase to high mounds with almost magical speed. In some such manner, though of course with a greater number, the Fellahin of those times must have toiled at the excavation and subsequent covering up of this very tomb thirty centuries ago.

Marks of the Tomb.

By tomorrow at noon the well of the outside shaft will have been completely filled up to the level of the connecting wall. The only outward and visible indications of the position of the sepulchral chamber where the King lies immured and surrounded by all his funerary paraphernalia will be the stone wall forming the parapet, and the kiosk which has served as a temporary office in the well. This will be put back on top of the rubble.

The tomb, which it will take at least three days to clear, will remain covered up until Autumn, when it will be possible to handle the mass of objects which still repose in the sepulchral chamber and the annex of this anti-chamber.

It is unfortunate that owing to the attention attracted by the discovery so much time has been taken up in showing round notable visitors who have applied in their hundreds to see the objects. Not only has this seriously delayed the work but it has also entailed such a great strain on the staff that now that the tomb has been closed it has become imperative for the sake of future work that they should all take a complete rest. It has therefore been decided to suspend all work for a week. Mr. Lucas leaves tonight for Cairo, Callender goes to Armant and Mace to Assuan. Lord Carnarvon may possibly also go to Assuan, to be joined there by Mr. Carter. Until today week therefore there will be no activity at the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen and Seti II.

The other day I mentioned that among the visitors to the tomb was Essayed Abdul Malakel, the Diplomatic Representative of the Hedjaz Government. He was most enthusiastic and declared to me that "the treasures far exceeded in beauty anything I had ever imagined."

LEGION TO IDENTIFY DEAD.

Color Delays Burial of 19 Unknown Ward's Island Fire Victims.

At the request of the American Legion, the funeral of the nineteen unidentified victims of the fire in the Manhattan State Hospital on Ward's Island has been delayed for three or four days, pending an effort to identify some of the dead. Four of the dead inmates of the asylum were ex-soldiers suffering from shell shock.

Officials of the legion visited Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, yesterday and requested the delay. In the meantime, Commissioner Coler will proceed with the funeral arrangements. He is to confer with the asylum officials on details.

The present plan is to obtain a burial plot in some nearby cemetery, where the victims may be buried in one grave. Mount Olivet Cemetery has been suggested as a suitable place, but definite arrangements have not as yet been concluded, Commissioner Coler said. It also is planned to have a funeral services at which clergymen of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths will observe the rites of their churches.

EXPLAINS 'ATEN' ON THRONE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Discussing the Aten symbols on the Tut-ankh-Amen throne Professor Newberry pointed out today that its base was undoubtedly made in his heretic days and there were signs that its original carvings of Tut-ankh-Aten had been altered to Tut-ankh-Amen.

Moreover Professor Newberry is not satisfied that the Aten believers ever achieved pure monotheism. The sign of Horis is even found in Akh-n-aten's inscription, for the boiler in many gods was deeply implanted in the Egyptian mind and it is common to find an inscription declaring a man to be "dedicated to the great god," meaning thereby not Ra or Amen, but merely the god of his particular village.

I., $25,000; Christ Church, Bayridge, Brooklyn, $20,000; Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, Manhattan, $50,000; Brooklyn Free Kindergarten Association for the creation and maintenance of a free kindergarten, $50,000; the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, $10,000, and St. Luke's Church, $10,000.

Fannie Bliss Mathews, an aunt, residing in the Hotel New Weston, Forty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, Manhattan, receives $5,000 and Elsie Bliss Whittlesy, a cousin of Berkeley, Cal., gets $5,000. The sum of $1,000 is left Roger Whittlesy, a godchild, of 80 Broadway, Manhattan, while Sarah Peck More, a friend, of 141 East Fifty-sixth Street, Manhattan, is to receive a necklace and $1,000 in cash. Other relatives receive sums ranging from $1,000 to $5,000.

The executors are directed to set aside a sum of money for investment to yield $600 per annum to be given Harriet Wright, a servant.

James W. Lane, the husband, an official of the E. W. Bliss Company, receives 900 shares of preferred stock in the company and all money on deposit in banks that is not disposed of otherwise, besides the country estate at St. James. The residue of the estate is to be divided equally among the four surviving sons, Mortimer Bliss Lane of Chevy Chase, Md.; Arthur Bliss Lane of the American Legation, Berne, Switzerland; James W. Lane of Brooklyn and St. James and George Bliss Lane, a student at Yale.

The estate is believed here to be about $2,000,000.

Jeweler Thinks Unset Stones Were Stolen When He Was Jostled at Grand Central.

Detectives of the East Fifty-first Street Police Station admitted last night that they were investigating the loss of $87,000 in unset diamonds by Isaac Levinson, a jeweler, of 87 Nassau Street, who believes that the gems were extracted from his pocket in the Grand Central subway station. News of the robbery was not made public at the time.

Men detailed to the case were off duty when the news of the loss got out despite the efforts of the police to keep it secret, and exact details could not be had. It was understood that Levinson was carrying the diamonds in a pouch in his pocket, having brought them from New England. He was about to board a subway train to go down to his place of business, it was said, when he discovered that just after he had been jostled in the crowd the gems disappeared.

If Levinson was correct in the surmise that the jewels were taken from his pocket by some nimble-fingered person, working with the jostling confederates, the haul is one of the biggest made by pickpockets in recent years. So far as could be learned last night, no trace has been found of the jewels and no arrest has been made. The diamonds are understood to have been insured for only a few thousand dollars less than their value.

RADIO MAKES DEAF HEAR.

British Surgeon Succeeds With a Boy Deaf From Birth.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Wireless telephony has achieved another wonder, making the deaf hear.

Inspired by the report that a 77-year-old man, deaf for thirty years, had listened-in successfully at a friend's home, scientists have conducted a series of experiments at Marconi House, where Harry Shwer, aged 13, deaf from birth, heard music and the human voice for the first time in his life.

The boy was taken before a loud-speaking device, over which a fox-trot was transmitted. He quickly caught the beat, and to it patted his feet rhythmically. Then a receiver was placed to his ear and he heard a voice. It was found that he could hear through one ear, but not the other. Two of his companions from a deaf institution were tested. One heard the fox-trot; the other could hear nothing.

Dr. MacLeod Yearsley, famous aural surgeon, said the fact that Shwer heard through one ear but could not hear through the other proved that he possessed some remnant of ability to catch sounds which the ordinary tuning fork experiments would never have revealed.

"The most hopeful line of discovery," said Dr. Yearsley, "is that of the possibility of re-educating the deaf to hear by means of wireless. The cases of all deaf persons, however, are individual."

Dr. Yearsley is consulting otologist to St. James's Infirmary at Balham, and formerly was senior surgeon to the Royal Ear Hospital.

MR. CHILD REFUSED HONOR.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—It became known today that when the Near East conference was being organized at Lausanne, the presidency of the conference was offered to Richard Washburn Child, American Ambassador to Italy and senior official observer of the United States. Before taking action Mr. Child communicated with the State Department. After considering the matter President Harding and Secretary Hughes decided that it was unwise to have a representative of the United States Government take such a post.

This became known in connection with the effort of the Administration to have the Senate sanction full American participation in the League of Nations Court of International Justice. The offer to Mr. Child was cited as an instance of the position of influence occupied by this Government in European affairs.

EARLY SKULL KEPT HIDDEN FOR SCIENCE

HEARD OF ANOTHER NEAR

Scientist Says That His Patagonian Discovery Is Almost Beyond Belief.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The fossilized human skull, supposedly of the Tertiary period, seen by Dr. J. G. Wolf of La Plata Museum in his recent explorations in Patagonia, was found near Paso Iranes, in the Territory of Santa Cruz, Southern Patagonia, about twenty miles from the Atlantic Coast, according to a statement made today by Dr. Wolf to The Associated Press.

The skull was picked up there by a white settler, who has since moved westward to the Andean region and who now has it in his possession. On learning that the fossil had been found, Dr. Wolf traced the settler across the almost treeless plains of the Pampas region, which runs from the Andes to the Atlantic, and found him in his new home.

"I saw and examined the skull," said Dr. Wolf today. "I am keeping the name and the place where this man lives in reserve until arrangements have been made by an authoritative commission to examine the fossil and investigate the circumstances of its discovery.

"Should the identity of the settler become known, I fear that the relic might fall into unscientific hands; that some person might purchase it and hold it for a high price. The settler now has some realization of its value, but I am sure he would be content to part with it for a reasonable sum offered by the Museum."

Wants His Data Verified.

At present Dr. Wolf is waiting for the authorities of La Plata Museum to take some action with regard to sending a mission southward to obtain the skull and verify his data. Their decision is not expected until the return of Director Luis M. Torres, who is on an excavation expedition, but is expected to arrive in a few days.

Dr. Wolf told The Associated Press that he had heard among the settlers of another fossilized human skull having been found when a well was being dug. He intends to search for this skull on his return to Patagonia, where he expects to remain for another two years.

"Yes," he said, "it does seem almost beyond belief that this skull I have seen could be a human relic of the Tertiary period, but it is a fact that the skull is a fossilization of the sandstone abounding in that part of Patagonia and which geologists describe as of Tertiary formation. I am not a geological authority, although I have had experience in geology.

Found a Tertiary Formation.

"I have examined the geological formation where the skull was discovered, and I believe it is Tertiary. It is the same region where Professor Elmer S. Riggs, Associate Curator of Paleontology of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, is searching for animal fossils of the Miocene period, which is one of the divisions of the Tertiary period.

"Plenty of animal fossils of the Tertiary age have been found in Patagonia. Why, then, not one of the human animal?

"I am exceedingly anxious to have this discovery verified. I saw Professor Riggs on the Rio Galiegos, in Southern Patagonia and told him I had made what I believed to be a most important anthropological discovery. But I did not tell him what it was, as I believed that my first duty was to make known the fact to La Plata Museum, which I represent."

In describing the skull Dr. Wolf said that it was highly polished, this having been effected by the sands blowing upon it as it lay on the surface of the ground where it was found.

"It looks as if it had been varnished," he remarked.

SAYS WIFE DRUGGED MATE.

Father Contesting Son's Will, Accuses Rochester Widow, Beneficiary

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Contest of the will of Charles W. Bergman, once a saloonkeeper, who died suddenly on Dec. 11, leaving more than $50,000, was featured today by the charge of John Bergman, his father, that Mrs. Ella M. Bergman, had plied her husband with liquor and then caused his death by an injection from a hypodermic needle.

As further ground for contesting the will which makes the widow sole beneficiary, the father charges that Mrs. Bergman was not the legal wife of his son. He alleges she married Milton Shatz at Oswego, N. Y., in 1897, and that Shatz is now a seaman on a United States warship. He further alleges that she once claimed to be the wife of a man named Brooks.

Attorneys for the contestants are seeking a court order permitting them to examine several persons said to have been present at the death scene.

SALVATION ARMY IN INDIA.

Gen. Booth Inspects Work There and Finds It Helpful in 4,000 Villages.

The Salvation Army has 3,000 stations in India and carries on its work in more than 4,000 villages, General Bramwell Booth announced recently in Calcutta after a trip of inspection that carried him through a large part of the country. He declared that the work of the Salvation Army was progressing most satisfactorily in India, and he hoped that what was being done for these 4,000 villages would ultimately be done for thousands more.

General Booth was particularly gratified by the work being done among the criminal classes and the people of the lower castes. He visited the convict settlement in the Telugu country, where 2,000 families are provided for. He reported that most of the families were self-supporting, and that where three or four years ago there had been the utmost ill-will, since the advent of the Salvation Army there was a spirit of contentment and prosperity. The Government had previously to provide a large police force, but now, he says, there are few police needed, and but few run away, and they generally return later.

These 2,000 families, he declared, had been settled on the land, some as cultivators and others as weavers. He examined their condition of life and asserted that he found the children intelligent and bright. He said that nearly all of them had become members of the Salvation Army. The Army, he declared, had more than 12,000 of the criminal classes under its care in India.

General Booth said that he was making inquiries into the lepers of India, and expressed the hope that the Salvation Army might be able to do something for them. But he added that the existing work for them was very good indeed. Another matter in which he expressed interest was the beggars of India. He declared that the Salvation Army had already cleared Colombo of them, and was carrying on an interesting experiment in Bombay. In the latter city the plan was to take the beggars to a home provided by the municipality and there teach them to lead more useful lives. He said that the fame of the clearing of Colombo had so spread that he had received requests from other cities to help them.

Questioned on how he found education in India, General Booth asserted that he thought the schools were proceeding along wrong lines in that they were making the children unfavorably disposed to the industries by which they would have to earn their livelihood, and dissatisfied with the villages in which they would have to reside. He expressed the fear that there would soon be immense numbers of would-be clerks and would-be teachers with nothing to do.

Secretary Vickrey Reports 115,000 Orphans Cared For—Smyrna Refugee War.

The story of lives saved and distress alleviated through American relief to the Near East was told yesterday by Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief, at a meeting of the Trustees in the Yale Club. The report showed disbursements of $12,280,325 during 1922, which was $3,000,000 more than in the preceding year. The increased expenditures, he said, were due to the Smyrna disaster and the ensuing evacuation of practically the entire Christian population from Turkish territory. The report quoted the Bishop of Smyrna as saying that American relief workers saved at least 200,000 lives.

Some idea of the magnitude of emergency operations immediately following the fire appears in the report from the Island of Mitylene, where 2,173,022 rations of bread, flour and hard tack were issued; 33,229 rations of milk for babies, 10,550 persons supplied with old clothes and shoes and 11,090 hospital and clinic treatments. Similar emergency service was rendered at Chios, Brusa, Crete, Saloniki, Rodosto and other refugee centres.

In all areas on Dec. 31, 1922, over 115,000 orphans were being cared for by Near East Relief; 55,883, without known relatives or guardians, in orphanages; approximately 60,000 more orphans or half-orphans supported under the care of widowed refugee mothers, relative or other guardian.

Greece is now sheltering about 15,000 orphans, mostly Armenian, in palaces, public buildings and Summer hotels. Near East Relief follows them after taking them into this new area.

GYMNASTICS FOR INFANTS.

Good Results in Rickets Obtained by Them in Germany.

The Berlin correspondent of The Journal of the American Medical Association says that Detley Neumann, a former army officer and athletic director at the Militarturnanstalt, after many experiments extending over a period of years, has worked out a system by which the muscles of infants may be strengthened by gymnastics and a favorable effect on the whole organism secured. Judging from the practical trials of the system, which were carried out with healthy and sick infants with the aid of Professors Bier and Langstein, the results are said to be very satisfactory.

For the gymnastic exercises a table is used that is large enough to allow the child to tumble about on it at will, but not so large but that the assistant can control his movements with the hands. A well padded underlay is the only requisite for the Neumann-Neurode system of gymnastics for infants. After three or four repetitions of the same exercise the child usually knows what is expected of him. The child must never be allowed to lie on the table without supervision, for the motions may become so exaggerated as to lead to unexpected results.

In incipient cases of rickets, exceptionally favorable results have been obtained by the use of this system. It is indicated also for children that learn to walk late and do not make the proper effort, that find it difficult to sit up straight, that have a flabby musculature, and that cannot stand on their feet without assistance. In all such cases, according to a report issued by the Empress Augusta Victoria House, marked improvement was noted in two months and later a complete cure was effected.

1,400 "MOVIES" IN JAPAN.

Japanese the Greatest Fans in the World, Says W. B. Hall.

"The Japanese are the greatest 'movie' fans in the world," said W. B. Hall, a merchant of Tokio, who is stopping at the Hotel Astor on a business trip. "There are 1,400 moving picture theatres in Japan, and they are building more every day. They charge about the same prices as in this country, but they only have two shows a day, each of which runs five hours, with three feature pictures. Lon Chaney is the favorite star in Japan. The Japanese are a very emotional people and love either to laugh or cry, so both the comedies and the blood-and-thunder pictures go well there. They use the entire output of the world each year in the first-run houses there in the period of nine months, so the gap is filled by native-made pictures, which are interspersed with the others to complete the year's program. In Tokio alone there are 140 picture houses.

"Living is very high in Japan, and food costs about 20 per cent. more than in this country. Clothing is much cheaper, however, but rents are high. Salaries have increased there five to ten fold in the last five or six years. The country is making good strides in the direction of progress, and is more sanitary than it has ever been. Business is good there now, and they have the biggest silk crop in twenty years.

"The Japanese are trying their best to combat the war talk in this country. They don't know who starts it or how it gets started, but they don't want war with anybody, and they have lived up to every agreement made in the Washington conference. They need help very much. The country is tremendously overpopulated, and they need more territory badly. They are kind-hearted and as nice people as you can find in the world when you get to know them."

CAETANI IS GUEST OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

SEES NATION RECOVERING

Says Energies Have Never Manifested Themselves In More Efficient Manner.

As guest of honor of the Italian Chamber of Commerce of New York, Prince Gelasio Caetani, the Italian Ambassador to the United States, addressed a gathering of his countrymen for the first time since his recent arrival at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria last night.

"Never have the energies of Italy manifested themselves in a more efficient manner than at the present moment," declared Ambassador Caetani in his native tongue. "War has caused great suffering and sacrifices, but has not been devoid of, and will in time make, in fact, more commensurate the benefits bound to ensue. It has crystallized the national conscience and leveled those political prejudices and inveterate customs which, like worn-out walls, barred the path of progress in Italy, obliterating the sight of wider and brighter horizons.

"The Italian nation is called upon to solve ancient and new problems of an essentially economic order, political and social questions being in the last analysis but problems of correlated economy. It may well be said that the deep unrest which troubles the world is not so much a consequence of the political and social upheaval originating from the great war as of the difference of economic level which it brought about between man and man, nation and nation."

He called upon the Italians in this country, through the Chamber of Commerce, to raise higher the prestige of their mother country. This will create an indissoluble bond between the two countries from which, he said, "we shall draw the strength to overcome the difficulties confronting us at the present moment, in common with almost all other peoples of the earth, and to lead us in the path of peace and progress."

Robert Underwood Johnson, former United States Ambassador to Italy, praised that country for her repudiation of Bolshevism and the bloc system and gave glowing praise to her envoy to America.

Dr. A. H. Giannini, the Chairman, read a letter from President Harding in which the President expressed the hope that the dinner would be "the means of further cementing the long-established relations of amity and intimacy between the American and Italian nations." Other messages came from Senator Wadsworth, Governor Smith, Nicholas Murray Butler and John F. Sinnott, Secretary to Mayor Hylan.

W. L. BROWER 50 YEARS IN CHURCH CONSISTORY

Friends in Middle Collegiate Mark His Golden Jubilee With Reception and Social.

The Middle Collegiate Reformed Church, Second Avenue and Seventh Street, was crowded last evening with friends, including former Sunday School pupils, of William Leverich Brower, the occasion being a reception in his honor by the Consistory of the Collegiate Dutch Church to celebrate the golden jubilee of Mr. Brower in that body. Formal exercises were held in the church and were followed by a social in the parish house, where Mr. Brower was assigned to cut a huge "birthday" cake with fifty candles burning.

In front of the pulpit were fifty red roses from the women of the church, the first time in the half-century that Mr. Brower had not supplied the church flowers himself. Each organization of the Reformed Church of which Mr. Brower is an officer presented resolutions, those passed by the Consistory being in a leather-bound book.

There were five-minute speeches, and at the conclusion Mr. Brower himself thanked everybody and talked about the Collegiate Chuch, in which his ancestors have been since it was founded in this city in 1628.

The Rev. Edgar Franklin Romig, pastor of Middle Church, who presided, said that after teaching a Sunday school class of children about Jesus, he asked, "And now, children, who is it that loves you?" Mr. Romig said that in a chorus they answered, "It is Mr. Brower who loves us."

GIRL QUIETS ANNOYER.

Grabs Man by Collar in Theatre, Holds Him for Police.

Charles Goodyear, 33, of 501 West 122d Street, was found guilty in Night Court last night and held in $200 bail for sentence on Firday night for annoying Miss Pauline Habernick, 19 years old, of 253 West 127th Street, in the Apollo Theatre yesterday. Goodyear became so annoying that she left the seat. When he followed, she said she grabbed him by the coat collar and held him until theatre attendants called Patrolman John Quinn of the West 123d Street Station. When she returned to her seat, she was applauded.

MRS. KEMAL CHARMS AMERICAN VISITOR

men. Peasant women, who engage in every phase of men's work, cultivation of the fields, raising of livestock, and heavy timber jacking, after the day's work is done participate in the same social life as the men. Besides doing men's work as well as men, they know more. For each man who is able to read and write there are two women.

Part of the other 20 per cent. of women, in big cities like Constantinople, which the Europeans see, are restricted, according to Kemal. Neither the seclusion nor the veil are racially or religiously Turkish, but are an inheritance from the outside.

"Certainly, he said, some of the 20 per cent. had fixed ideas and probably would retain them, but the freedom of Turkish women was inevitable, as it was based not only on the will but on the practice of the majority. He told it was not revolution, but evolution. His study and experiences with revolution had satisfied him that success came only when the majority favored the ideal advanced. That, he said, was the secret of the success of the Nationalist Government, despite the obstacles. Had not the Nationalist spirit permeated the masses the movement would have failed in the beginning.

Kemal's wife, since their marriage, has accompanied him everywhere he has had to go—to the front, to inspect troops, to social and diplomatic functions, banquets and receptions—yet no where has the majority failed to endorse her action, because she has been doing exactly what the majority of women wish to do.

Kemal is usually pictured as austere. He appeared to be anything but that, laughing with the others when the conversation took a humorous turn. Once when explaining that Turkey never would accept any regime depriving her of economic independence in the slightest, his stern face set smooth. Instead of the Kemal the world knows on the battlefield snapping orders or in the Chamber haranguing the Deputies, here was Kemal in his slippers.

A Beauty of the Circassian Type.

Mrs. Kemal is a beauty of the Circassian type, with dark eyes, flashing through long eyelashes. Her small mouth, when laughing, reveals a perfect set of teeth. She wore the usual black satin Turkish dress and was unveiled. She had bracelets on both wrists, but she had only two rings, one a four-karat diamond in a deep platinum setting, and the other a platinum ring which Ismet Pasha, who dropped in in the course of the interview, brought from Lausanne.

Kemal was dressed in a sack suit and wore a soft collar. Tea was served in the dining room, which was decorated with Oriental tapestries, the sideboard containing Oriental and Occidental services, the gold and silver goblets and vases in themselves being sufficient to fascinate a collector.

Kemal and Ismet remained in the dining room while Mrs. Kemal served tea to Raouf Bey and the foreigners. She chatted gaily and recounted humorously the story of her three months' imprisonment by the Greeks in Smyrna and her liberation when Kemal arrived. She said she was accused of espionage and understood that a sentence of death was contemplated. She neither admitted nor denied the charge.

Then she told about her marriage. She said she had always been against marriage and had devoted her life to study which eventually she desired to bring into service for the nation. She and Kemal had discussed the educational and political needs of Turkey and were so in harmony that it had brought them closer together. Their marriage surprised her friends. Kemal had wanted her to work independently, and she had desired to work with him actively in the educational and political work.

It is difficult to impart the idea of the charming personality of Mrs. Kemal as well as to give the impressions of the guests as they sipped tea and listened to her talk on the rejuvenation of Turkey; but her enthusiasm was catching, and even in the presence of the powerful personality of her husband every one felt that she, too, was dedicated to do [illegible]

ART-IN-DRESS
Ready for Wear

Q A year ago we founded a new department, which through scientific production made it possible to offer genuine Art-in-Dress models, ready for wear, at eighty-five dollars.

Q The new department is an emphatic success because it is based on the sound principle that the art in a dress is not reflected in the price but in the lines.

Q Today a new opportunity presents itself to carry forward and broaden the message of our semi-fitted department.

WE HAVE ENLARGED THE SCOPE AND RANGE OF OUR EIGHTY-FIVE DOLLAR GROUP TO INCLUDE MODELS FOR AFTERNOON AND SEMI-FORMAL WEAR.

First presentation today comprises a notable exposition of dresses available for immediate wear for all occasions.

RUBBER MEN RECORD PROTEST TO BRITAIN

Restriction of Colonial Production and Export Is Declared Needless and Harmful.

BRITISH MAKERS ALSO HIT

They May Join in Protest—Firestone, Wallace and McCormick Urge Plantations Here!

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A movement was launched in Washington today at a meeting of several hundred American rubber, automobile and accessory manufacturers, under the leadership of Harvey S. Firestone, for a protest by manufacturers of rubber products in the United States, Great Britain and other countries to the British Government against restrictions on rubber exportation from the British colonies.

The conference authorized Mr. Firestone, who acted as its Chairman, to appoint a committee to co-operate with rubber makers in Great Britain and elsewhere in the protest and to take appropriate steps toward obtaining the repeal of the restrictive laws.

It was also resolved to co-operate with the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture for the building up of an American rubber production industry, with a view to making this country, which consumes the bulk of the world's supply of raw rubber, independent of the British control over the present world supply.

Among the speakers were Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, Senator-elect Press of Ohio, Senator Couzens of Michigan, Secretary Wallace, Major Gen. Frank McIntyre of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, Major George P. Ahern, former Philippine Director of Forestry; Assistant Secretary of the Commerce Department Huston, Franklin H. Adams of the Pan American Union, Philip H. Lockhart, Chairman of W. and A. Bates, Limited, of Leicester, England; W. H. Smith, research engineer of the Ford Motor Company, and A. C. Miller of Miller, Wales & Noxon of Chicago.

Two resolutions were adopted by the conference late this afternoon. The first one recounts that "export duties placed by British colonies in November last upon the rubber exports of each plantation in excess of 60 per cent. of its production for the year 1920 have resulted in increasing the cost of crude rubber at Singapore from 14 cents per pound to about 37 cents per pound;" that a "careful investigation of the state of the rubber producing industry has disclosed that there is no danger and has been no danger of the price of crude rubber sinking to such a point as would leave efficiently managed estates without a profit;" that "the consumption of rubber is rapidly increasing throughout and gives clear promise of being greater in 1923 than ever before;" that "investigations indicate that the restrictive legislation is likely to curtail the production of rubber to a point very materially below the demand, and the present development of the rubber plantations is requisite to enable them to produce sufficient rubber to meet the demand;" that "the increased price of rubber will cost the American public at least $160,000,000 per year, without any assurance that the price will not be still further increased;" and that "the restriction act was enacted over the protest of Great Britain and many of the rubber-growing industry, who consider the measure economically unsound and unnecessary." The resolution then recommends that a committee be appointed to co-operate with the manufacturers of rubber products in Great Britain and other countries in presenting this protest to the British Government, and taking such other steps as shall seem appropriate, with the purpose and object of securing the repeal of the above-mentioned restrictive laws.

The second resolution endorsed the proposed legislation now before Congress calling for an appropriation of $500,000 for investigations and experimentations to establish new sources of supply of rubber, sisal, nitrates and other products largely consumed in this country, and provided for the appointment of a committee of five to co-operate with the Government in the event of the passage of such legislation.

Mr. Firestone told those present that the conference had not been called to antagonize Great Britain, but to protest against the methods employed by a "small coterie of British shareholders in plantation interests" in forcing legislation which increased their profits at the expense of the American and other manufacturers.

He thought that the Philippines and South America offered splendid opportunities for American manufacturers to develop their own sources of crude rubber.

In explanation of the fact that the Rubber Association of America did not participate officially in today's conference, it was stated that while the organization was understood to be in favor of awaiting the effect of the recent visit of a British trade commission which took the subject up with American manufacturers, Mr. Firestone favored direct action by means of this conference. Mr. Firestone said there was no factional difference in the industry, but merely a difference of opinion as to methods.

Secretary Wallace outlined the plans of the Department of Agriculture for experimentation with rubber-producing plants in the United States, which, he predicted, would come. He thought there was as much prospect of developing an American rubber industry as there was of the sugar beet industry a hundred years ago.

Senator McCormick declared that sound policy "forbids the United States to countenance the continuation of a monopoly in this product at a point where the supply could be cut off from the United States in time of war."

HURT IN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

Firemen Rescue Man Wedged Between Car and Wall.

Members of the Rescue Squad, Hook and Ladder Company 10, and doctors worked at top speed yesterday afternoon releasing Owen Kelly, a laborer, who was caught between an elevator and the shaft wall on the fifth floor of the ten-story office building at 95 William Street. Dr. Koalka of Beekman Street Hospital administered stimulants, while members of the Rescue Squad burned away a portion of the elevator with acetylene torches.

Kelly, who lives on Staten Island, was riding on top of the elevator when he slipped and fell. The elevator was moving slowly at the time. His cry as he was slowly wedged was heard by the operator, who brought the car to a sudden stop.

Members of the hook and ladder company made their way to the sixth floor and ran their ladders through the shaft to the elevator. Members of the Rescue Squad finally lifted Kelly out and sent him to the Beekman Street Hospital, where it was said he probably was fatally injured.

GALE STALLS BERENGARIA.

Big Liner Cannot Enter Southampton—Lighters Take Passengers.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The steamer Berengaria, bound from New York, has been anchored for many hours off Ryde and unable to enter Southampton owing to a fierce gale. The liner arrived on Tuesday morning, but was compelled to abandon an attempt to enter the harbor.

It was decided to land the passengers and mails yesterday afternoon, and this proved a stiff three hours' job. The tenders which removed the passengers were tossed about like corks, giving their occupants unpleasant experiences. All were put safely ashore with their baggage, however. The Berengaria is expected to enter port some time this morning.

During the round trip from Southampton to New York, the Berengaria picked up eight calls of distress, most of them from long distances. The vessel went to the aid of a French trawler, but found the little vessel already receiving assistance.

The wildest kind of weather prevails all over Great Britain. The wind varies from forty to seventy miles an hour. Several deaths and much damage are reported.

JUNKMAN HELD FOR THEFT.

Is Accused of Stealing Handbag While at Work in Cellar.

Carlo Targalia, a junk dealer of 2,455 Third Avenue, was arrested yesterday and locked up at Police Headquarters charged with stealing a hand bag containing $450, the property of Mrs. Lillian Croft of 78 West Ninety-fourth Street. In the morning Targalia and Benjamin Santo, his helper, went to the house where Mrs. Croft lives, to remove some old papers in the basement. While cleaning out some boxes it was said Targalia found the bag and the money.

Detectives Harrison and Reilly, who arrested the junkman, said that after finding the money the two men went to Santo's home. Targalia gave Santo $10 and his wife $5 and went away. He had only been gone a few minutes when Santo went back to the Ninety-fourth Street house and canvassing the tenants found that Mrs. Croft had missed her hand bag and the money. On the strength of his information she informed the police and Targalia was arrested.

LEFT $1, TO SHARE $110,000

Death of Legatee Benefits Three Relatives of Mrs. Jemima Simms.

Three relatives of Mrs. Jemima Sinclair Simms, who died May 5 last at the Hotel Empire, who got only $1 each in her will, now share in $110,000 by the accounting filed in her estate yesterday, because of the death of a residuary legatee before the estate was distributed. Mrs. Simms gave $1 each to her sisters, Elizabeth Sinclair, Annie S. Stewart of Alloa, Scotland, and a brother, Andrew Sinclair of London. The residue was left to her nephew, Robert Hendry; her sister Charlotte Cheetham, and mother, Mathilde Sinclair.

Mrs. Simms's mother died, and the three $1 legatees will divide her $10,000 share with the sister. The value of the estate was $535,000. Mr. Hendry got $20,000 outright, and an equal amount was left to the Masonic Hall and Asylum Fund and Roosevelt Hospital, and $10,000 each to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary and the Manhattan Eye and Ear Infirmary.

BURNED IN "PROP" FIRE.

Los Angeles Movie Actor Saves Actress, Who Faints From Her Injuries

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—A "prop" fire at Universal City, a motion picture suburb, today resulted in painful burns to ten persons, including Esther Ralston, Kathleen Calhoun and William Desmond, actors.

Desmond and Miss Ralston were playing a cabin set and flares were in use to simulate flames igniting woodwork. They did their work too well. Desmond carried the actress out of the cabin and extinguished her burning clothing by rolling her in the weeds. She was burned about the face, hands and body and fainted before reaching a hospital. Desmond's hair was singed.

The property damage was estimated at $10,000.

GEN. O'RYAN PRAISES BRITISH SOLDIERS

"Mud Is Thicker Than Water," He Says, Referring to American Campaigns With English.

SPEAKS TO 650 OFFICERS

Hopes They Will Advocate "Marching With the British" When We "Make a Real Start.

Colonel John J. Bradley, Regular Army, Chief of Staff of the Seventy-seventh Division, U. S. Organized Reserves, marshaled 650 officers of that division last night at the second annual reunion dinner at the Hotel Astor. The men and seen action in Flanders fields, Baccarat, Vesle, Oise-Aisne and the Meuse-Argonne. Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, Superintendent of West Point, and others spoke of the need for the Organized Reserves and the great showing the Liberty Division made in being the first Reserve division in the country to fill its commissioned personnel.

Declaring that "mud is thicker than water," Major Gen. O'Ryan said:

"The army of the United States consists now of the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Organized Reserves. The Seventy-seventh Division, which won such enviable records in the great war, is a unit of the last mentioned element of the army. The division which I have the honor to serve in is a National Guard division. The two divisions have this in common: they are both from New York State and they both served with the British Army, the Seventy-seventh for the early part of the active service and the Twenty-seventh throughout its entire foreign service.

"There is another circumstance which should bind the two divisions together in intimate relations and that is the number of your present officers who formerly served in the Twenty-seventh Division. Your two infantry brigadiers, Palmer Pierce and De Bevoise, were brigadiers in the Twenty-seventh during the war. General Stimpson commanding your artillery brigade, formerly served in the cavalry of our division.

"We, the officers of these two divisions, understand our mission to help develop the citizen army of America. To do this we must have a reasonable spirit of rivalry, but we must guide it in the interests of the army as a whole.

"There is another mission which has to do largely with human nature, which I believe to be one we should take on. That has to do with world law and order. Do you know that the most disturbing factor in the peace problem is the readiness of the average people to get excited over some alleged international affront or to develop suspicions or dislike for some other people which is stimulated by influence, of which the reason is unconscious.

"Here for example we have these two divisions which served with the British Army. Our men were from New York, all products of the public schools, nearly all with some parent or grandparent who were by tradition or training hostile to the British. We went across to help the French and to our amazement found we were assigned to the British. We played the game but in playing it found the British to be brave and generous, determined and optimistic in revenge and sober in victory. We found them friends.

"Why don't we say so and tell our people here that if they had been with the British in the British area they would think of the British as we think of them? We know them. We served with them in the mud of Flanders, and we know as soldiers that mud is thicker than water.

"There is a great work to be done in this world. We have been shy about doing our part. Apparently we are soon to make a real start. When we do, I hope you will advocate marching with the British. We have done it before. It is not wholly sentimental. It is in their interest that we do this, that is true, but it is equally to our interest."

The Seventy-seventh Division is now organized to the extent that it can be mobilized in case of an emergency within twenty-four hours, said Colonel Bradley, who reorganized the division after the war and is still at its head. Colonel Bradley said that all plans had been perfected and all commanding officers in the division know their stations and their place of mobilization. The division, which now has its full complement of commissioned officers, already has 125 technical non-commissioned officers on its rolls. An intensive drive will be started between now and the Summer camp to fill up the non-commissioned personnel.

Among those present were Bishop William T. Manning, Brig. Gen. William Weigel, Brig. Gen. William S. Graves, John J. Cornwell, former Governor of West Virginia; Colonel Wade Hays and Lieut. Col. Harold A. Herrick, President of the Seventy-seventh Division Association.

ACCUSED OF STORING GUNS.

Case of Hoboken Man Is Put Over Until Tomorrow.

Arthur Loewinger, owner of a marine supply store at 94 River Street, Hoboken, was arraigned yesterday before Recorder Adolph Carsten at Hoboken, on a charge of having explosives stored in the basement of the building in which he lives at 94 River Street without a permit. The explosives consisted of 200 revolver and rifle cartridges. They were found in the basement on Monday, it was alleged.

Recorder Carsten is counsel for Loewinger and he paroled him until tomorrow for hearing. It was understood that Assistant Corporation Attorney William A. Kavanagh will sit as Recorder in the case.

Loewinger's arrest resulted from a police investigation following the seizure in New York of a consignment of ammunition and rifles in the basement of a house in West Twenty-fourth Street. He has denied any knowledge of the ammunition found in New York.

CLUE TO POKER BANDITS.

Clues to the bandits who held up a poker party at the home of Harry Berkowitz at 1,237 Fortieth Street, Brooklyn on Sunday night were furnished to the police yesterday by Nat Nathan, one of the players. Nathan, following his arraignment in the Flatbush Court, was taken to the District Attorney's office, where he was questioned about the hold-up. During the robbery Miss Sadie Jacobs of 1,323 Forty-first Street, resisted an attempt to take a ring from her finger and was shot in the breast.

According to District Attorney Dodd of Kings County, Nathan said he met several men at a dance on Saturday night one of whom is said to have asked him whether there would be much money in the game and he replied there might be.

Mrs. Harrison Reaches Riga.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A cablegram to the State Department today from Riga said that Mrs. Marguerite Harrison of Baltimore had been released. The dispatch stated that Mrs. Harrison was at Riga and planning to leave that port tonight for Berlin. Her release has been reported in news dispatches, but this was the first official word of it.

7 HURT IN WRECK; ICE HOLDS UP CARS

Boston & Maine Train Goes Down Embankment Onto Frozen River.

ORANGE, Mass., Feb. 27.—Seven persons were injured and many others suffered bruises when three coaches comprising the eastbound Boston & Maine Greenfield-Boston accommodation train were derailed at a spur track switch here early today and plunged down a fifteen-foot embankment to Miller's River.

Thick ice on the river held up two of the three cars until the occupants escaped. The day coach in the rear of the train remained upright and did not go completely down the bank. The baggage car was completely overturned on the embankment. The train was rounding a curve where the track skirts Miller's River. At this point there is a switch which connects the main line with a spur track. The locomotive passed over the switch safely, but the rear tender trucks jumped the track, pulling the three cars attached to the train down the embankment.

Two wrecking crews with cranes from Fitchburg and East Deerfield are working tonight to clear up the wreck. Officials of the road said that the debris would probably be removed by midnight. The most difficult task facing the wreckers is the removal of the ninety-ton steel baggage car, which was overturned and badly damaged. A long section of track was torn up by the wrecked cars. Trains were being routed over the westbound track tonight.

None of the seven men injured are in a serious condition.

DELVES INTO GEM ROBBERY.

Pecora Questions Biddulph on Schoellkopf Theft.

Matthew D. Biddulph, one of three men under indictment in connection with the $500,000 Schoellkopf gem robbery, was questioned for three hours yesterday by Acting District Attorney Pecora. He was brought from his cell in the Tombs to the Criminal Courts Buildings, and, in the presence of his counsel, Frederick J. Sullivan, amplified a statement eh made to detectives when he was arrested several weeks ago in Albany.

At the conclusion of the examination Mr. Pecora said: "He told me a number of things which we did not know before and gave some additional information about the hold-up, but for obvious reasons I cannot divulge it. I expect to question him again."

Biddulph, who was indicted under the name of Marshall, refused to make a formal statement when he was brought to this city after his arrest. It was understood, however, that there were several incidents in his statement to detectives who arrested him that were doubted by the acting prosecutor.

As Biddulph was being taken back to the Tombs Mr. Pecora said to him: "Now, you think that over, Biddulph." Biddulph nodded his head and conferred with his lawyer for a few minutes.

Biddulph, Albert Horowitz and Eugene Moran were indicted under the names of Marshall, Lewis and McGowan. Biddulph had sublet an apartment under that in which Mrs. C. F. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo and ten others engaged in the card game on the invitation of its occupant, Frank Barret Carman, a vaudeville actor. Although a country-wide search for the other two men and the gems had been made by the police, no clue to the fugitives has been obtained.

HUNGARY TO PAY AUSTRIA.

Court Awards the Latter 3,000,000 Francs' Burgenland Reparation.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The first satisfactory result of the recent interchange of visits between the Austrian Chancellor and the Hungarian Premier was obtained today in a definite peaceful settlement of the Western Hungarian question by arbitration.

A court held under the presidency of Dr. Zimmerman, Burgomaster of Rotterdam, decided that Hungary must pay 3,000,000 Swiss francs to Austria as reparation for damages caused to the Western Hungary population by Magyar insurgents. Other points at dispute between the two countries also were settled.

Chancellor Seipel and other high Austrian officials visited Budapest early in January, returning the visit of Count Bethlen, Hungarian Premier, to Vienna. This interchange was hailed as the beginning of a rapprochement between the two sections of the former Dual Monarchy, which had been at loggerheads over the district of Burgenland, or Western Hungary. This district was awarded to Austria by the Treaty of Trianon, but later was divided as the result of a plebiscite.

Arrangements for a commercial treaty were made by the statesmen, and it was agreed that all political dissensions be brought before a special court. It is this body, apparently, that has now made its decision.

Dr. Zimmerman, who in addition to his post as Burgomaster of Rotterdam is one of the most prominent of Dutch bankers, was appointed Controller of the Austrian loan for the League of Nations last November.

DISMISSES AVANTI STAFF.

Director of Milan Paper Names Communists After His Visit to Moscow.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A dispatch to the Central News from Milan says that Menotti Serrati, Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies and director of the newspaper Avanti, who has just returned home from Moscow, yesterday dismissed the entire editorial staff of the Avanti and appointed a new personnel, composed of Communists.

The old staff refused to leave work and were in their old posts this morning. They threatened to throw out the director and any new staff which put in an appearance at the offices of the Avanti to take their places.

FRANCE MAY SAVE DAYLIGHT

Government Decides to Introduce a Bill Looking to That End.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The Government has decided to introduce in the Chamber of Deputies a bill providing for definite adoption of daylight saving. The majority of the members of Parliament are understood to favor the proposition, so that again this year the clocks will be set an hour ahead on the date to be fixed in the bill.

Daylight saving was maintained last year temporarily on the understanding that standard time would be restored this year unless Parliament decided otherwise.

WOULD FIX DATE OF EASTER.

British Advocates of the Plan Seek Co-operation of the Holy See.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Lord Desborough, President of the British Imperial Council of Commerce, will go to Rome in March to propose to the Congress of International Chambers of Commerce a resolution favoring a fixed date for Easter.

Suggesting the second Sunday in April as a permanent Easter Day, Lord Desborough admits that the success of his proposal depends largely upon the views of the Holy See. His plan is supported by a large number of influential commercial organizations in Great Britain.

AFFECTS 2 OTHER CONTESTS

Chandler Will Use the Decision in the Bloom Case and Frank Will Invote It Against LaGuardia.

Representative Martin C. Ansorge, Republican, defeated for re-election by 345 votes on the face of the returns by Royal H. Weller, Democrat, won a point yesterday in his attempt to unseat Mr. Weller, in a decision of Judge Learned Hand of the United States District Court, dismissing an injunction obtained by Mr. Weller to prevent the opening of the ballot boxes and a recount of the votes cast at the election last November. Judge Hand held that the House of Representatives was the judge of its own membership and that, as Mr. Ansorge had obtained the issuance of subpoenas for the production of the ballot boxes under a Federal statute, the Federal courts had no jurisdiction to interfere.

The decision had a definite bearing on the contests started by Representative Walter M. Chandler, Republican, defeated by Sol Bloom, Democrat, in the recent special election in the Nineteenth Congresional District and by Henry Frank, Democrat, against F. H. La Guardia, Republican, elected Representative in the Twentieth District at the regular election last November. Leonard J. Obermaier, counsel for Mr. Chandler and Mr. Frank, said he would start similar recounts in those cases as a result of the decision.

In the case at issue, Mr. Ansorge recently subpoenaed the Board of Elections to produce and open the ballot boxes before a notary public. Mr. Weller opposed this and obtained a temporary injunction from Judge Hand. George W. Olvany, Chairman of the Tammany Law Committee, contended that Mr. Ansorge's petition did not present a single legal ground for a recount and said the Committee on Contested Seats of the House of Representatives had full power to order a recount if it saw fit. Former Senator Edgar T. Brackett, counsel for Mr. Weller, argued that the court had power to vacate the subpoena.

Jacob H. Corn, attorney for Mr. Ansorge, asserted that the subpoena was a valid one. He contended that the court had no jurisdiction, as the subpoena really was issued by the House of Representatives.

Judge Hand in his decision held that the House of Representatives was the final arbiter of the qualifications of its membership and that the courts had nothing to do with contests except in so far as they might expressly receive jurisdiction. He held that he had no power to punish for contempt of the subpoena and had no jurisdiction whatsoever over the matter.

"I recognize that the Board of Elections, at least formally, is in a position of some embarrassment," said Judge Hand. "I venture to believe that that embarrassment is more formal than real. I do not think that there is any genuine danger that an honest effort to take what, between cross-fires, seems to be the best escape will bring the board to any real difficulty.

"You must remember that this is not a question alone for one District Court Judge, because if the petitioner is right and there is any jurisdiction in this court, this would be a final order, or would be in the end become such. If an appeal lies from such an order, it lies to the Circuit of Appeals and conceivably in a proper case on certiorari might go up to the Supreme Court. If that should be the result, who would suggest that there was any propriety, to say nothing of the Supreme Court, of the Circuit Court of Appeals making a decision on the validity and propriety of this petition which was going to come for final decision before the House of Representatives?

"Therefore, I have no doubt whatever that this procedure is not possible. If the statutes are insufficient, that misfortune can be remedied only by Congress itself."

"OOM" LOSES BY ONE VOTE.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Feb. 27.—P. A. Bernard, "the omnipotent Oom" and head of "the Mystic Order of the Tantrik," came within one vote of gaining political control of Upper Nyack here last night when his candidate, M. M. Whitaker, made a determined effort to defeat Frank R. Crumble, head of the Rockland County Trust Company for Village President. The feud between Crumble and the Oom is more than two years old; it started in the Summer of 1920 when Bernard favored Sunday ball games and Crumble opposed them. At the village caucus last night, Crumble was informed that "Oom's" followers had placed Whitaker in nomination. Only by quick work was the banker able to muster enough votes just before the polls closed to defeat Whitaker 16 to 15. For village trustee Oom's candidate, Julius S. Eaton, a New York lawyer, defeated John J. Bell, a retired lumberman of Upper Nyack, by 16 to 15. Trustee Bell's friends will run him on an independent ticket and renew the fight at the polls on March 20.

MAIL THIEF GOT LITTLE.

Post Office Inspectors seeking to find the robber who stole a registered package from a mail train on Sunday at Grand Central Terminal said yesterday that they had a good description of the man and were hopeful of arresting him. They were more than ever convinced that the same robber was responsible for a small theft on the same train a week ago at a point between Syracuse and Albany.

Acting Chief Inspector O. M. Schaeffer, who received his information from Chicago, disclosed that the package taken in the robbery at the station had little value. He said that the package contained only lists of securities and checks which were part of the records of business exchanged between a Paris bank and one in Chicago. He said the list could be duplicated by the Chicago firm without trouble.

SAYS 4 YOUTHS BEAT HIM.

Atlanta Man Seeks Arrests—Denies Insulting Girl as Alleged.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 27.—Peace warrants have been issued for J. E. Fincher, an Emory University student; "Pub" McWhorter and Claire Frye, Georgia Tech football stars, and Henry Lyons, a young clubman, at the instance of Carl Davis, who charges that the four men took him from the Y. M. C. A. Saturday morning and, after beating him, forced him to kneel in apology before a society girl for an alleged insult, according to a story published in The Atlanta Constitution.

The men are under bonds of $200 each for appearance in police court Saturday to answer charges of disorderly conduct made by Davis.

Davis told the police Saturday that he had been beaten and forced to go before the girl and apologize for the alleged insult. He denied the accusation, admitting, however, that during a dance he uttered an oath which, he said, was not directed at the young woman.

J. B. HARRIMAN ACTS, MAY BE STARRED SOON

Youth Appears in Children's Theatre, Where His Mother Applauds Him.

J. Borden Harriman hopes to become known as "Michael Dawn." The young man made his first public effort in that direction last night in the Children's Theatre of the Heckscher Foundation, appearing with the Stockbridge Stocks, a semi-professional organization. His choice of a stage career evidently is approved by his mother, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, as she sat in the first row, with Mrs. Caruso as her guest, and joined the audience in enthusiastic applause.

The program consisted of three one-act plays, "The Jewel Merchant," by James Branch Cabell; "The Hundredth Trick," by Beulah Marie Dix, and "The Beast of Bitronto," by Dorothy Stockbridge. Mr. Harriman was in the first and last. As an actor he has perhaps less faults than the average beginner and he makes up for his lack of experience by his attractive appearance.

Miss Mary Hone, daughter of Mrs. Augustus Hone, and a recent acquisition of the professional stage for society, played opposite young Harriman last night. She knew him when she rode in a perambulator, while their mothers both lived in Louisville. Later she rode in horse shows with him, when the families had adjoining country places in Westchester County. Miss Hone now is acting in "R. U. R." but in the near future she and Michael Dawn will be appearing together on Broadway, according to rumors in the playhouse. C. P. Grenaker and several Broadway producers attended the performance.

Michael Dawn wore blue tights and a fur-trimmed cape which Jack Barrymore might have envied. Others who also were picturesque as well as talented were George Barker George, Romeyn Benjamin, John Humphrey, Dorothy Stockbridge, Dorothy Sherman and Doris Webster.

Mr. Harriman is one of three sons of Mrs. Oliver Harriman and a nephew of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. Before joining the Stockbridge players he studied for the professional stage with the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

EXPECT TAPESTRIES TO BE RELEASED TODAY

Whatever action the French Minister of Fine Arts may take with regard to the sale of six de la Rochefoucauld tapestries to John D. Rockefeller Jr. for $1,100,000, little trouble is expected in getting the "Hunt for the Unicorn" past the local customs authorities. The order to release the six pieces may be issued late this afternoon.

Frederick H. Kracke, United States Appraiser of Merchandise at New York, will inspect the tapestries this afternoon. He will be accompanied by one of his staff of experts on the trip to a safe deposit vault where the precious tapestries are being kept. The inspection will be merely a routine matter, and if Mr. Kracke finds, as he probably will, that the tapestries are genuine antiques, they will be admitted duty free under that provision of the law which admits antiquities of 100 or more years of age. Ordinary tapestries are assessed at 45 per cent. of their value.

Officials here said that any action by France seeking to punish the seller of the tapestries would be taken at the discretion of the Minister of Fine Arts in Paris. If any action is taken it will be aimed solely at the seller, since Mr. Rockefeller's part, according to the statement he issued on Monday, was merely that of a purchaser who acted after a diligent inquiry had failed to unearth any reason why the French owner should not dispose of the relics.

UPHOLDS DEATH PENALTY.

Boston Judge Tells Jurymen It Violates No Religious Principles.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—The returning of a verdict carrying the death penalty by a jury violates no principle of the Christian or Jewish religion, Judge Joseph F. Quinn, in the Superior Court, today told prospective jurors at the opening of the trial of Mrs. Theresa Marangi and Ignatzio Carluccio for the murder of Leo Marangi, the woman's brother-in-law. Leo Marangi was shot to death on the night of Nov. 24 in the doorway of Mrs. Marangi's home in the West End. The Judge's remarks called forth vigorous protests from attorneys for the defense. Eleven jurors had been selected when the court adjourned tonight.

"There are very few who have conscientious scruples against the death penalty within the meaning of the law," Judge Quinn asserted. "It violates no principle of the Christian or Jewish religion to return a verdict of first degree murder. It is the duty of every juror to accept the law until it is changed.

"The call to jury service is as imperative as is that to war. Liberty outside the law is anarchy."

William F. Scharton, attorney for the two defendants, objected to the Judge's talk and asked that the entire venire be discharged on the ground that the remarks by the court were prejudicial to the rights of the defendants. The objection was overruled.

WILL READMIT DR. McKOIN.

Johns Hopkins Raises Ban on the Accused Mer Rouge Physician.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 27.—Permission has been granted by faculty members of Johns Hopkins Medical School for Dr. B. M. McKoin, former Mayor of Mer Rouge, La., accused of alleged Ku Klux Klan murders there, to continue his post-graduate work.

The readmission of Dr. McKoin has been the subject of controversy between the physician and medical school authorities, who intimated that his return would probably cause undue publicity to fall upon the institution. He is still under $5,000 bond in the Mer Rouge charges.

A statement issued by medical authorities tonight said that to refuse readmission to Dr. McKoin "would, undoubtedly, prove a very serious handicap" to him and also "might prove a great injustice." "It, therefore," the statement continued, "has been decided to allow Dr. McKoin to continue with his work until it shall become apparent that in the interest of the university and hospital other action is indicated."

Dr. McKoin returned to this city soon after the hearing on the Mer Rouge murders ended at Bastrop.

FIRE HALTS MOVIE SHOW.

Stanley Theatre Patrons Flee Blaze in Operating Booth.

Fire in the operating booth at the Stanley Theatre, a motion-picture house on Seventh Avenue, just south of Forty-second Street, drove the audience to the street yesterday afternoon. The flames were held in check by Anthony De Mott, operator, who stayed in the booth until the arrival of the firemen, when the blaze was quickly extinguished. A. Benk, manager, said that the damage was slight and that the theatre would open in a few hours.

The rush hour crowd on Seventh Avenue stopped to watch a few patrons demand their money back, while at the same time, would-be patrons, who were unaware of the fire, scrambled to get in the same line. With the aid of a tactful patrolman, order was established. The theatre gave passes to those who had been forced to leave.

POLYCLINIC REOPENS AS PUBLIC HOSPITAL

Relinquished by Government a Year Ago, It Has Been Completely Modernized.

TRIBUTE TO FOUNDER WYETH

Dr. Charles G. Child Jr. Says Experience Has Proved That the Institution Can Be Self-Supporting.

The Polyclinic Hospital, 345 West Fiftieth Street, which was turned over to the Government in October, 1918, for treatment of disabled veterans, was formally thrown open to the public yesterday with memorial services to its founder, Dr. John A. Wyeth, distinguished surgeon and scholar. The Government relinquished the hospital more than a year ago after the trustees, aided by business men who were anxious to have adequate hospital provision for the Times Square district, had complained that the Government was holding the Polyclinic beyond the term of the lease. The hospital has undergone an entire renovation. The institution, founded by Dr. Wyeth to provide post-graduate study for young doctors, is now equipped like a new hospital. In the course of its reorganization small numbers of patients were admitted gradually, and, according to Dr. Charles G. Child Jr., a member of the Board of Trustees of Polyclinic, with a comparatively small number of patients, has demonstrated that "a public hospital can be self-supporting."

Dr. Child said it long had been realized that the "usual form of charitable support from without so weakens any organization thus made dependent that, like the individual relieved of the necessity of self-support, it becomes more and more dependent and less and less productive.

"So much emphasis has been placed upon the free work done by general hospitals," he said, "that many self-respecting and independent citizens of small means often refuse to avail themselves of what they regard as 'charity' assistance. Distress rather than poverty should be the plea for help; not the giving of alms, but intelligent relief the means, so that the individual shall not suffer in loss of self-respect and lessened economic worth.

"Hospitals are primarily relief stations to meet the demands of distress, but the fact should not be lost sight of that such demands have always a tendency to increase unless regulated by a proportionate return on the part of the individual for the relief received. Wholesale relief is bad, and the development of the hospital has not been in conformity with economic conditions—it has held out the hand of relief too freely. The open-handed hospital has created a new order of mendicants by failing to recognize the importance to the community of encouraging rather than discouraging self-support."

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, President of the Polyclinic Hospital, presided at the memorial services. Samuel W. Fairchild of the Board of Trustees spoke on the "Past and Present" of the hospital, and Marion J. Verdery, also a trustee, described the youth of Dr. Wyeth, his struggles, his service in the Confederate Army, his study of medicine, his founding of the Polyclinic and his achievements as a writer of prose and poetry. A wreath was placed at the base of the bronze bust of Dr. Wyeth, inscribed, "John Allan Wyeth, M. D., LL. D., surgeon, author, teacher, in recognition of his pre-eminence as foremost founder and surgeon-in chief of this institution."

VOODOO CHARMS SOLD AS FIRE EXTINGUISHER

Newark Negro Had 'Magic' Words for Toothache Cure and to Make Buyer Shotproof.

A series of recipes and prescriptions with cabalistic incantations and voodoo practice whereby a toothache might be cured, fire extinguished without the aid of water, and enemies made to vanish were found by police yesterday in the room on Walnut Street, Newark, in which Parker C. Wescott, negro, has been living. He is in jail at Arlington on a charge of burglary.

The police found a number of prayers written by Wescott in which he invoked divine aid in flowery phrases. The prayers, recipes and prescriptions were all typewritten. A typewriter was found in the room. Letters found by the police indicated that the negro did an extensive business selling these queer instructions at prices ranging from 50 cents to $10 each.

"How to make yourself shotproof," sold for $5 and directed the purchaser: "In June, on St. Peter and St. Paul's Day, dig blue waywort roots 15 minutes before 12 o'clock; also procure the heart of the plant and carry it with you, and all ropes, fetters and locks will spring open. Neither can you be shot."

The recipe for curing a toothache sold for $1 and is more complicated: "Quosum siniobs zenni tantum lect veni. Hang these words on a string over the back of the person with a toothache and they will be speedily relieved."

"The art of extinguishing fire without the aid of water" was obtainable for $1. "Inscribe the following letters on each side of a plate and throw it into the fire and forthwith the fire will be extinguished: arepo tenet opera rotas."

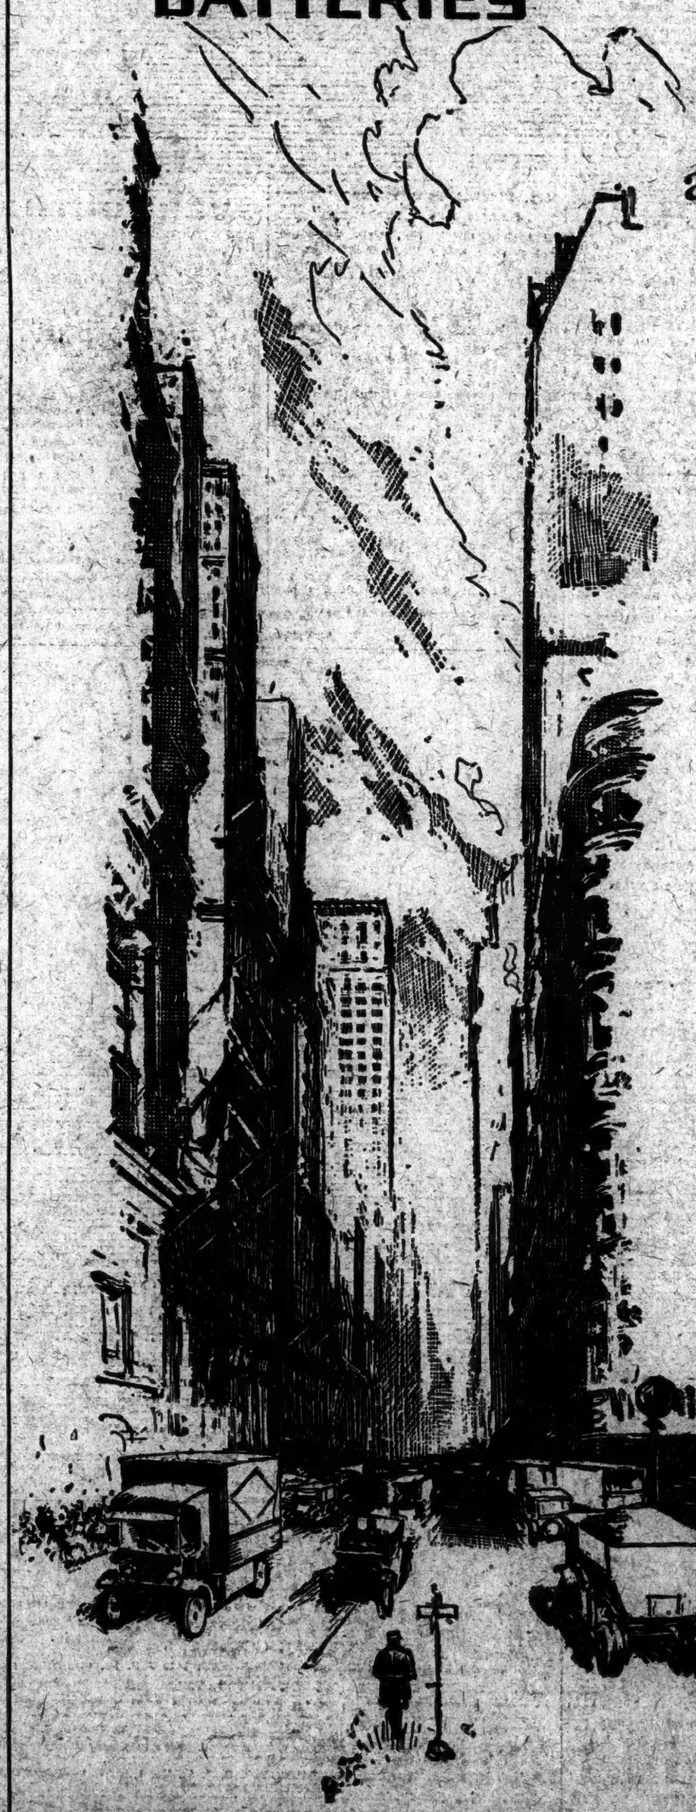
Exide BATTERIES



The laundry, the baker, and the ice cream maker

HAVE you noticed the great increase on the city streets of those busy trucks that make deliveries from door to door and do it all with such silent efficiency? They are propelled by storage batteries—powerful Exide Batteries—and their unique service is becoming generally recognized by department stores, laundries, and other businesses that have short hauls and frequent stops to make.

There is scarcely a kind of transportation in which Exide Batteries do not play an important part. They light railroad trains and operate switches. They propel those man-saving, burden-bearing little industrial trucks and tractors that you see in railroad stations and modern industrial plants.

Airplanes use Exide Batteries for the spark of ignition. A majority of the world's submarines are propelled under the sea by huge Exides. Beneath the surface of the ground Exides run the locomotives that gather coal.

For your automobile

Of all the Exide Batteries used in transportation, perhaps the one that interests you most is the battery that starts and lights your automobile. The first electric-starting car used an Exide, and more cars leave the manufacturers' hands today equipped with Exides than with any other battery.

Ruggedness and power are built into the Exide Battery. It keeps its youth and lasts so long in continuous service that it is the most economical battery for you to own. There is a nearby Exide Service Station where you can get the right size Exide for your car.

Inquiries about batteries other than automobile batteries should be addressed to our New York Branch.

GRAND JURORS HEAR 3 IN ANDERSON CASE

Bookkeeper, Confidential Assistant and Prosecutor's Stenographer Called.

PECORA HITS PLOT STORY

Challenges Anti-Saloon Head to Make Unequivocal Charge—Dry Directors Meet.

Acting District Attorney Pecora yesterday examined two women employes of the Anti-Saloon League in the Grand Jury's investigation of the allegation that William H. Anderson, its Superintendent, had presented a bill to the league for $24,700 which he did not need. Mr. Pecora later announced that he would finish the presentation of evidence on Thursday. He intimated that the Grand Jury on that day would in General Sessions hand up a report on the inquiry.

Mr. Pecora also stated that he would call other witnesses to testify before the body in the interim, but he refused to reveal their identity or the nature of their testimony. This statement was taken to mean that Mr. Pecora had obtained witnesses in the preceding not heretofore mentioned in connection with the charge against Mr. Anderson.

The prosecutor said he would not call O. Dertzail Phillips, formerly financial agent of the league under Mr. Anderson, or Raymond B. Fosdick, representative of the Rockefellers in their contributions to the league. He explained that he did not think their testimony would be of any service in the inquiry. He declared, however, that he considered the testimony of Dr. David James Burrell, President of the league and pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, of much importance to the inquiry, and was hopeful that the clergyman would appear as a witness before the body before Thursday. Ex-Senator Edgar T. Brackett, counsel for Mr. Anderson, had not communicated to him Dr. Burrell's consent to testify, Mr. Pecora added, but he expected to hear from the lawyer today.

Directors Meet in Secret.

It was learned that in the afternoon the Directors of the Anti-Saloon League held a closed session in the headquarters of the league, 906 Broadway, and discussed the inquiry before the Grand Jury and the proceeding in the Supreme Court in Albany on the application of the Association Against the Enforcement of the Prohibition Amendment to have the league declared a political organization because of alleged activities in the last primary and general elections.

A report was in circulation that the Directors had decided to issue a statement. When Mr. Anderson was questioned about the matter at his home in Yonkers last evening he refused to discuss the report, and added that if the Directors had any statement to make they would issue it at the proper time.

It was said that most of the Directors attended the meeting, many of them coming from points out of the city, and that some of them favored issuing a reply to certain statements concerning Mr. Anderson and the league since Mr. Pecora began his preliminary inquiry into the charge against Mr. Anderson.

Miss Mary Hill, head bookkeeper and Assistant Treasurer of the league, and Miss Maude M. Odell, confidential assistant to Mr. Anderson, were the two witnesses called before the Grand Jury yesterday. Miss Hill was before the body one hour and thirty-five minutes. Miss Odell then was called into the Grand Jury room and was questioned for thirty-five minutes. Later Mr. Pecora said that she would complete her testimony today.

Pecora Replies to Anderson.

At the close of the Grand Jury's session for the day, Mr. Pecora, referring to Mr. Anderson's second statement on Monday, said:

"I don't believe it is necessary for me to engage in a public controversy with Mr. Anderson with respect to explanations between him and Mr. Anderson or any one else. Neither do I think it would be profitable or advantageous for Mr. Anderson if I were to do so.

"Any suggestion that the District Attorney's office is taking a 'knowing part' in any conspiracy against Mr. Anderson is best answered by the statements publicly made several times during the course of this investigation by Mr. Anderson's own counsel, Edgar T. Brackett, who saw fit to express appreciation of the spirit of fairness in which the investigation has been conducted.

"This office has never been in receipt of any charges against Mr. Anderson from Mr. Fosdick, directly or indirectly, and I know of no secret preparation of any case against Mr. Anderson for presentation to the District Attorney's office. The case has been prepared by me. I have been guided in my work very largely by the information that came from Mr. Anderson himself in my several interviews with him.

"If Mr. Anderson wishes to assert or charge that the District Attorney has entered into any conspiracy against him let him make his charge to that effect unequivocally and without ambiguities. Then I will take notice of it and make my answer thereto. The answer, however, would probably not take the form of a public statement."

Mr. Pecora explained that he had uncovered the charge involving the $24,700 while he was investigating the assertion of Mr. Phillips that Mr. Anderson had split with Mr. Phillips commissions on subscriptions to the league. The $24,700 Mr. Anderson alleged he spent for the league in 1918 and 1919 on "confidential publicity promotion," but in his statement to Mr. Pecora he refused to reveal from whom he got the money or to whom he gave it. Mr. Phillips's statement to the Acting Prosecutor did not clear up those points. Mr. Pecora explained, and for that reason his testimony was considered of no value in the Grand Jury inquiry.

Mrs. Eleanor Fitch, a stenographer in the District Attorney's office, will be another witness called before the Grand Jury when it convenes today. She took stenographic notes on Mr. Anderson's examination by Mr. Pecora in the preliminary inquiry, which led to the decision to place the matter before the body when Mr. Anderson would not reveal to the Acting Prosecutor the source of the $24,700.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Chicago, National President of the Anti-Saloon League, speaking today before the convention of the Official Board Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, said:

"William H. Anderson's associates in both the State and National Anti-Saloon Leagues have known him intimately for many years. They believe him to be as honest as he is effective and expect him to win now as he always has won."

Ernest H. Cherrington, Secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, another speaker, expressed similar views.

Mr. Anderson was to have addressed the meeting but wired he would be unable to come.

PERFUME SHOP RAID YIELDS MUCH LIQUOR

Brooklyn Concern Had Permit for Still, but Illegal Use of It Is Charged.

Reports of a raid on Maison-Maynard, Inc., manufacturers of perfume, at 271 Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn, were received at prohibition headquarters last night. Fifteen cases of gin, five of assorted whiskies, two cases of kuemmel, four barrels of grain alcohol, eighteen barrels of denatured alcohol and three stills were seized by agents, Leo Garaman, said to be a member of the concern, was arrested, it was said.

According to Gus J. Simons, Chief Enforcement Agent, the company has a permit to use denatured alcohol. The stills were registered at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue as used in the legitimate manufacture of toilet preparations, he said. Mr. Simons charged that the stills had been diluted by the firm to negate fraud. The raid was conducted under a search warrant. Some time between Saturday night and Monday morning thieves broke into the warehouse of the East Penn Distillery, 221 Madison Street, Hoboken, and carried away 304 cases of whisky. The intruders made their way through a mass of burglar-alarm wires and broke open a door leading into the steel vault in the basement.

When Gustav Gertz, manager of the warehouse, discovered the robbery he notified the police. Prohibition officials are co-operating in investigating the robbery. The East Penn Distillery operates under a Federal permit.

Mrs. Tessie McLoughlin, 28 years old, of 1,638 Third Avenue, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Oberwager, in the Harlem Court, on a charge of violating the Mullan-Gage act. According to Detective August Leopold, she sold him a half-pint flask of whisky for $1. He confiscated a quantity of whisky, he said.

A new method of getting liquor on prescription was described yesterday by Gus J. Simons. He said that men representing themselves as prohibition agents had visited doctors, asking for samples of signatures, on the ground that they were checking up forgeries. These signatures were then forged on fraudulent prescription blanks and presented at drug stores, where they obtained liquor.

DRY LAW REPEAL BILL KILLED IN COMMITTEE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—By a vote of 8 to 5 the Assembly Codes Committee, of which Assemblyman Duke of Allegany is Chairman, decided this afternoon to kill the Miller bill providing for a repeal of the Mullan-Gage State Prohibition Enforcement law. Wets in the Assembly, however, claim that this action does not express the real sentiment of the lower house on the repeal of the dry law.

Earlier in the day Assemblyman Cuvillier served notice that he would move next Monday to discharge the Assembly Excise Committee from further consideration of his measure, which is more drastic than the Miller bill and calls for a complete abolition of all provisions of the State enforcement law.

"A careful canvass shows that I will have seventy-eight votes, two more than necessary, to uphold my motion," Mr. Cuvillier said. "There has been enough talk about repealing the Mullan-Gage law and now I intend to get some action on the floor of the House."

Assemblyman Jesse of New York, who is generally regarded as the leader of the wet Republicans in the lower house is understood to be co-operating with Mr. Cuvillier in an effort to bring the fight on the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law into the Assembly. Mr. Jesse has asserted that there are enough wet Republican votes in the House to repeal the law, provided all the Democrats will vote with them.

Some Republicans who are expected to vote for the repeal measure will do so, it is said, because they are really opposed to State enforcement. Others have declared they believe it would be good politics to have the Republican Assembly pass one of the repeal measures and put it squarely up to the Democratic Senate. Some of the Republicans are convinced that Governor Smith would prefer to see the repeal bills smothered in committee, so that it would not be necessary for him to veto or sign any measure.

Another Republican—Assemblyman Kaufmann of New York—voted with the Democrats—Cronin, Lyman, Gavagan and Walsh, all from New York—to report out the Miller bill in the Codes Committee. The Republicans who voted against favorably reporting the measure were Assemblymen Campbell, Livermore, Robinson, Hutt, Stone, Duke, Esmond and Carpenter.

With the Miller bill killed in Codes Committee, the only way the Mullan-Gage Repeal bill can be brought before the Assembly, unless passed in the Senate first, is by forcing it out of the Excise Committee, which is regarded as dry by a safe majority.

PRIEST LAUDS WET SATIRE.

Would Distribute Copies of Cana Painting Throughout Country.

The reproduction and distribution throughout the country of J. Francois Kaufman's painted version of the Marriage at Cana, which shows Christ turning water into wine, while William J. Bryan spills the contents of the wine jars and William H. Anderson and Volstead look on approvingly, was advocated last night by the Rev. Dr. William F. McGinnis of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Thomas Aquinas, Fourth Avenue and Ninth Street, Brooklyn. Father McGinnis is President of the International Catholic Truth Society and editor of Truth.

"I am thoroughly in accord with the theme of that picture," Dr. McGinnis said. "I'm in favor of that picture being distributed throughout the country. This is damnable hypocrisy when we have to sneak around carrying a little bottle on the hip. Why, I was at a luncheon of the South Brooklyn Board of Trade several days ago. There was plenty of wine and beer, which I thoroughly enjoyed. Prohibition is doing more to bring about hypocrisy and degradation than anything else. I stand for the old liberty."

POLICEMAN IN RUM TRIAL.

Witness Says He Was Not in Deal Charged by Another Policeman.

Policeman George M. Boeckle Jr. of the Richmond Hill Police Station, denied yesterday before First Deputy Police Commissioner Leach, in the trial room at Police Headquarters, Brooklyn, that he was concerned in an alleged deal for the sale of $2,350 worth of bootleg whisky. M. J. Walsh of 1,703 Palmetto Street, Queens, who is charged with having agreed to furnish the whisky which forms the basis of the complaint, also denied that Boeckle had anything to do with the scheme.

The charge against Boeckle is made by Policeman Harrison of 101 Field Avenue, South Ozone Park, who states that he entered into an agreement with Walsh for the sale of the whisky. He charges that Walsh agreed to have a policeman on the automobile when the stuff was delivered and that when the automobile drove up to his home to complete the arrangements for the sale, Boeckle was on board the car. The hearing was adjourned pending the appearance of other witnesses.

SEIZE ELTINGE AND LIQUOR.

Four Other Actors Arrested at Seattle on Arrival From Vancouver.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 27.—Julian Eltinge and four other actors must appear before United States Marshal Benn tomorrow and explain their possession of sixteen quarts of liquor, it was announced today. The liquor was seized Sunday night when they disembarked from a steamer arriving from Vancouver, B. C.

Held before customs officials, they paid fines totalling $50 for violation of the customs laws. Later they were formally arrested by prohibition agents and turned over to Marshal Benn, who released them on their personal recognizance until tomorrow. Those arrested with Eltinge were Mrs. Ed. Donegan, A. Cogan, L. Nevada and W. G. Parker.

CALLS UNDERWOOD A WET.

Wheeler Says Liquor Interests Want Him for President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, addressing a man's club at a church here tonight declared the liquor interests, having failed to elect a "wet" Congress, were "planning to write a moist plank into the Democratic national platform."

"As their first choice on such a platform," he asserted, "they have suggested the former Democratic leader of the Senate, Senator Oscar W. Underwood. Not even his 100 per cent. wet record in the Senate, however, can make one believe that he will sponsor any nullification program, as suggested by the wets, or that he would be a party to an attempt to legalize what the Constitution expressly forbids."

BAR KLAN AND ANTI-SALOON

Opposition to Dry Law Disqualifies Many—Case Involves $10,000,000 Liquor Plot.

Prospective jurymen were asked whether they were members of the Anti-Saloon League or the Ku Klux Klan before they were qualified yesterday for the trial of former Prohibition Director Harold L. Hart, William A. Orr, former Secretary of Governor Charles S. Whitman, and others charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government by means of forged liquor withdrawal permits. The case was begun before Judge Francis A. Winslow in the Federal Court. It has been pending since Jan. 4, 1922.

Prosecution and defense exhausted the peremptory challenges allowed them, and the result was that the jury as first seated underwent an almost complete change of complexion. From time to time four different foremen were selected. The organization of the jury proceeded rapidly until Frederick J. Lucius, juror No. 11, was called. He gave his occupation as President, and his address as 417 Riverside Drive, office Woolworth Building.

"I have a feeling of regret for the defendants," said the prospective juror, "as I am opposed to the Prohibition law and am sorry for any one in trouble on that account. I have no quarrel with you on the Volstead law. I'm just prejudiced against this law."

Assistant United States Attorney Maxwell S. Mattuck, who with John M. Cashin is in charge of the prosecution, then addressed all the jurors and said:

"All are entitled to prejudices. I have no quarrel with you. If you have these prejudices, tell me so the Government can proceed. Does any one feel he can give the Government a fair trial?"

Colonel Thomas B. Felder is principal counsel for the defense. The defendants in addition to Hart and Orr are Thomas Reddy, chief assistant under former Director Hart; Thomas Duffy of the Bronx, Herman Levin, Max Gordon, Barney Braustog, Louis Bloom of the Central Drug Company, John Corini of the Alps Drug Company, Charles J. Steinberg of the Reliance Distributing Company and Bonfiglio Venuski, John Lo Natale, Isaac Feld and Arthur Kraus, dealers in druggists' supplies.

The corporate defendants include the Central Drug Company, the Alps Drug Company, the Reliance Distributing Company and the S. and B. Specialty Company. The alleged illegal withdrawals of which these defendants are accused are said to amount to $10,000,000 worth of liquor.

The jury boxes were nearly full when the court recessed at noon. When the session was resumed two men were excused because they disclosed they were decidedly biased, two were excused for personal reasons by the court, four were challenged by the prosecution and eight were challenged by the defense.

After both sides had used all their peremptory challenges the jury was finally selected and sworn in. It consists of the following: Irving D. Zimmer, salesman, 508 West 121st Street, foreman; Frank H. Wyman, agent, 324 West 103d Street; Samuel Rappaport, cigar dealer, 68 East 114th Street; John R. Stroh, plumber, 371 Wadsworth Avenue; Harry S. Clark, clothier, 321 West Seventy-seventh Street; Harry Abrams, contractor, 208 West 113th Street; James J. Horan, electrician, 27 Lawrence Street; William F. Herbst, real estate dealer, 2,674 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx; James E. Cullen, sign merchant, 317 West 58th Street; Louis Berg, tailor, 120 West Eighty-sixth Street; Henry F. Strodtmann, real estate dealer, 630 West 135th Street, and Stephen C. Brelhon, heater dealer, 2,620 Briggs Avenue, the Bronx.

In opening, Assistant United States Attorney Mattuck indicated that the Government would try to show that five times the amount of liquor called for by permits was withdrawn by the drug companies whose officers are under indictment. He said the Government would also endeavor to prove that 300 withdrawal blanks disappeared from the Prohibition Office early in August, 1921, and that the theft was not reported until three weeks later.

The prosecutor disclosed the Government's case somewhat more in detail when he charged that the Alps Drug Company in July, 1921, withdrew 21,557 gallons of liquor in excess of what its permit called for; that the S. and B. Specialty Company overdrew to the extent of 1,400 gallons.

Mr. Orr was described as the go-between for the drug companies and the Prohibition Office, and the allegation brought forth a vigorous protest from Colonel Felder, who said that charge could not be proved, and tried unsuccessfully to have the remark stricken from the record. The hearing will be continued this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

DIES AFTER WINE DINNER.

Brother Dying, and Autopsy Will Be Held to Determine Cause.

Dr. K. Sellars Kennard, Assistant Medical Examiner of the Bronx, will perform an autopsy at the Fordham Morgue this morning to determine the cause of the death of Dominic Troiano at the home of his mother at 1,053 Carroll Place, the Bronx, yesterday morning. His brother Robert is dying in Lincoln Hospital, from apparently the same cause.

Dominic and his brother went to their mother's house Monday afternoon for dinner, and the whole family drank wine, but none of the others felt any ill effects. The police believe the brothers ate or drank something before going to their mother's home.

WHY ROCKEFELLER IS 'DRY.'

Broussard Says He Fights Alcohol as a Rival to Gasoline.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Some "contributors" to prohibition enforcement organizations have aided them financially with an eye to the possible effect of the use of alcohol in competition with gasoline, Senator Broussard, Democrat, of Louisiana, said today in a speech in the Senate.

"Mr. Rockefeller must not be credited with an entirely unselfish object in his contribution to the cause of prohibition," he said. Then he called attention to the fact that there were "more than 160 regulations" in effect under authority of the Volstead act dealing with restraint of production and distribution of denatured alcohol.

FRENCH TO FREE STORY FOR LIQUOR TRIAL HERE

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—New York's request for the extradition of Samuel Story has been withdrawn, and his release from the Palais de Justice prison is expected soon. Mrs. Story was told tonight. The Americans will leave for the United States on the first steamer available and they will travel unaccompanied.

Mr. Story says that charges of forgery are only a pretense to get him back to the United States, where prohibition officials accuse him of violating the dry laws. Mr. Story's Paris lawyers requested a withdrawal of the extradition papers on the understanding that he will return to New York voluntarily. After his experience here he is anxious to be gone.

Mr. Story was arrested on Saturday at the request of the American Government, on a charge of falsifying public documents, and he has been in jail since. He was manager for the La Montagne brothers, recently sent to prison in New York for violation of the prohibition laws.

"My husband is very sick from his sufferings during four days' solitary confinement and bad food," Mrs. Story said. "He is under no charge of bootlegging, and he will go back to fight. The forgery charge was only a pretext. After waiting for three hours yesterday I was permitted to speak to my husband through the steel-barred doors, but he was so ill that he could scarcely stand up and carry on a conversation."

Mrs. Story said that from the time her husband was arrested the prison officials constantly refused to permit him to consult lawyers. Joseph Du Vivier, a former New York District Attorney, and Russell H. Porter are representing Mr. Story legally. It is their opinion, as well as that of their clients, that he is being made the victim of a ruse trumped up by prohibition agents who want him to return to New York in connection with the bootlegging charges against the La Montagnes.

Mr. Story asserts his willingness to return and face a Judge, but he protests against the "deceitful and underhanded defamatory methods" taken.

Samuel A. Story is former Vice President and manager of the firm of E. La Montagne's Sons, four members of which are now serving sentences for participation in a bootlegging conspiracy. Colonel Hayward said yesterday that the Federal authorities had evidence that Mr. Story forged permits for the withdrawal of liquor from Government bonded warehouses. He said he had received word that Mr. Story would return here and that proceedings for his extradition had been withdrawn.

"Mr. Story having consented to return and face pending proceedings against him in relation to alleged forgery of liquor permits," he said, "removes the necessity of pressing extradition proceedings. Mr. Story has adopted the easiest way for all concerned."

DEFENDS POLITICAL 'BLOCS'

Mrs. Pinchot Tells Women Present Parties Are "Too Rigid."

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—Political parties today "are largely failing to meet the real issues as they arise," Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Pennsylvania Governor, told a group of women meeting here today to form the Pennsylvania State Council of Republican Women.

"They are too easily content to depend on old slogans created to meet problems that are past with the generations that gave them birth," Mrs. Pinchot declared of present political parties. "In other words, the parties have become too rigid, too formalized, too inflexible—have lost their touch with reality and, as a result, have fallen into the hands of professional politicians who have neither the vision nor the desire to move out of the old ruts.

"Now, of course, the cure is not less politics but better politics, and that is where groups such as this council can be of the utmost value to the parties."

Mrs. Pinchot defended the political "bloc" as an evidence of the effort to improve conditions, and declared it was the formation of such a bloc that resulted in the organization of the Republican Party.

NATION'S BUSINESS SHOWS MARKED GAIN

INCREASE IN RETAIL FIGURES

Department and Chain Stores Share in Advance, Says the Federal Reserve Review.

Wholesale trade in January, as shown by sales reports in dollars, from dealers in ten commodities, was about 23 per cent. above sales of January, 1922, according to the March issue of the monthly Review of Credit and Business Conditions, by the Federal Reserve Agent of New York. The Review says:

"January sales in all lines were largest gain was in the distribution of machine tools, largely due to buying by railroads and railroad equipment plants. Hardware sales were about 40 per cent. above those of last year, a reflection of the large amount of new construction work now under way."

Stating that the annual inventories of the department stores in this district, taken recently, showed that as a result of active Christmas business and January clearance sales, stocks were reduced to the lowest point since a year ago, the Review points out that the ratio of stock to sales was now as low as at any time in the last year and a half. It continues:

"The dollar value of January sales was 10 per cent. above that of January a year ago. Some department store executives are of the opinion that prices at present are slightly above those of a year ago; others believe that there has been no change, or that prices today are a little below those of January a year ago. Because of the wide variety of articles handled by the department stores it is difficult to estimate the relationship of prices this year with February, 1922. Retailers assert that the price advances which have occurred in wholesale markets have not been fully reflected in the retail field. Retail prices are more stable and seldom go as high as wholesale quotations.

"February sales of furniture have been large, partly because of the construction of many new homes. Mail order sales in January were 36 per cent. above those of January, 1922, about the same increase as shown in December over December, 1921.

"The large distribution of merchandise, reflected in department store reports, is also evident in sales figures submitted by chain stores. Sales of apparel were nearly 30 per cent. larger than a year ago, while sales by 5 and 10 cent stores and by grocery stores show substantial advances. There were smaller gains in sales of drugs, shoes and tobacco."

CITY TAXES IN 1922 TOTAL $298,905,180

Receipts for 1922 from tax collections, including arrears, reached a total of $298,905,180.73, an increase of $36,904,921.73 over the collections during 1921, according to the annual report of the Controller, made public yesterday by the incumbent, Charles L. Craig. The report showed that the actual financial transactions of the city during the year amounted to a gross total of $1,950,012,108.53 and that the turnover in the Controller's office was at the rate of about $6,000,000 for each working day.

The report also showed that the city had $17,604,507.99 in cash in banks at the end of the year, against which were warrants outstanding to the amount of $7,016,283.44. An official summary of the report follows:

"Upward of $15,000,000 of liabilities heretofore incurred have not yet been charged on the books of the Department of Finance because the various departments incurring such liabilities have not forwarded the vouchers to the Controller's office.

"The General Fund accounts appear to have an unexpended balance on Dec. 31, 1922, of $36,771.20, compared with $9,770,421.73 at the close of business of the year 1921. This $36,771.20 balance is subject to the liability to refund the whole or any part of the national bank taxes received in 1920 and 1921, aggregating $9,575,696.

"The actual deficit resulting from the invalidation of the tax on national bank shares will not be known until all of these vouchers and claims have been presented to the Controller's office for payment.

"The bank tax collected in 1922 amounted to $1,153,087.57, compared with $5,912,134.05 in 1921, a decrease of $4,759,046.48.

"At the end of the year 1922 the city had in banks a cash balance of $17,604,507.99. Against this were warrants outstanding of $7,016,283.44, as well as others ready to be released.

"Cash receipts from tax collections for the year 1922 amounted to $263,842,892.09, and by the Collector of Assessments and Arrears $35,857,648.64, or a total of $298,905,180.73. This is an increase in collection of taxes over the year 1921 of $36,904,921.78.

"The city received from the State income tax for the year 1921 $9,747,892.65, which represents about one-half of the income tax collected by the State Government from residents of the City of New York. It received a total of $17,471,823.08 of State school moneys to assist the city in the support of the public schools costing about $90,000,000, exclusive of the requirements for City College and Hunter College and teachers' pensions. The city paid the State $14,430,513.24 taxes collected by it for the State's account.

Expenses of the city and county governments, &c.	$270,377,269.45
Interest on the city debt	50,635,467.80
Redemption of the city debt	13,276,404.90
Outlays for permanent improvements	59,927,055.89

"The principal items of outlay for permanent improvements were:

Rapid transit construction	$5,154,343.92

RUTH ST. DENIS GREETED.

Presents a Varied Program of Dances at the Town Hall.

Ruth St. Denis, assisted by Ted Shawn and the Denishawn dancers, was greeted by an audience which filled the Town Hall for their program of dances there last evening. A wide assortment of dances was given with an abundance of scenic, lighting and costume effects, as well as bold and pleasing contrasts of colors.

The first group of dances was listed as "music visualizations," and the dramatic portrayal of the emotional content of Beethoven's "Sonata Pathétique," Chopin's "Revolutionary Etude" and shorter pieces by Schumann, Brahms, Liszt and Mana Zucca was effective. In the Spanish group which followed, Miss St. Denis gave a Castilian dance of broad, graceful movements and joined Mr. Shawn in a coquettish number, after which they were recalled several times. There was the usual group of Oriental dances.

GREEN RING INCORPORATED.

Nyiregyhazi in Recital.

Erwin Nyiregyhazi gave a piano recital in Aeolian Hall last evening including the thunderous arrangement by Liszt of Schubert's "Erlking." Also on the program were compositions by Mozart, Brahms, Scriabin, Grieg and a transcription of Tchaikovsky's "Flower Waltz" by Grainger.

In the first act of "Humoresque," Laurette Taylor gave a performance of character acting, indeed of emotional acting of the finer sort, that was incomparably subtle and beautiful. The scene was in the down-town Jewish quarter—a single room that did for kitchen, dining room and bedroom, with social life mainly via the fire escape.

Sarah Kantor was the young mother of four, skimping to save pennies, yet overflowing with love for her own and all other children, especially with ambition for little Leon, who was already destined in her prophetic heart to be a great violinist. Nothing was ever more homely or more familiar, even to the stage—except as Miss Taylor acted it.

Here was a creation of great external virtuosity and of far greater spirit within. Her walk and gestures were racial in the extreme, yet always with an indefinable dignity. How it was done escaped analysis, but she positively drooped in the nose, slanted in the eyes and bowed orientally at the lips. It was a face of surpassing beauty, alight with the fires of deep maternal passion.

Cooking a birthday cake, humorously scolding her eager, unruly, brood, or fighting for the musician's future foretold by the song in her own heart, here was the eternal Madonna. Most notable of all—and this was a fact one remembered later with a pang—was the maternal courage. No obstacle was too great, no sacrifice too deep, for the love in her heart.

Sixteen years later Leon has won fame and fortune and Sarah is still the loyal, humorous and astutely managing mother. But it is now wartime and there is need of another kind of courage, another kind of sacrifice. Though in the first flush of his success as a violinist, Leon feels the call to service. The scene is played in a fine y heroic vein by Lutha J. Adler. But Sarah is not moved to heroism. She fights astutely and with abundant resource to bind him over to a fiddling tour—and he goes to Flattsburg.

In the third act Leon is called to the steamer to embark for France, and Sarah is stricken with fear. The character is true enough. Many a mother in all lands felt and acted quite like this. Miss Taylor's performance remains a thing of surprising virtuosity in every detail of her demeanor and dress—and in every prompting of this spirit of fear within. But it is too painfully craven, and especially when one remembers the woman of the opening scene. How Sarah should have in her herself is a question indeterminable; one feels only that the play as Fannie Hurst has written it goes wrong. An audience that thrilled and melted to the beauty of the first act and warmly applauded the second act turned cold at the final curtain.

It is, of course, quite possible that there is enough of humor and fine feeling in the early part of the performance to attract the public. Certainly Miss Taylor's work in the tenement room should be seen by every lover of subtle character acting, of intrinsic beauty and nobility. When a production has so much to offer, what does it matter that there is no play—or, worse, a bad one?

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

The Philadelphia Orchestra offered a program last evening at its seventh concert in Carnegie Hall that contained things—mostly unfamiliar to its audience—new and old. The old things were a set of fine pieces from four different operas by Lully, a concerto grosso by Vivaldi in D minor; Mr. Stokowski's orchestral transcription of Bach's organ passacaglia in C minor. The new were Ernest Schelling's orchestral fantasy, "The Victory Ball," and Tcherepnin's concerto for piano and orchestra, played by Benno Moiseiwitsch.

The pieces by Lully were fine music and had a singular freshness. Mr. Stokowski played them no doubt with something of a modern spirit; certainly with an entirely modern orchestral richness and fullness. So played, the music did not seem the product of a wholly "dry and superficial soul," however undestirable Lully's personality may have been.

Vivaldi's concerto grosso has suffered the fate of some other seventeenth and eighteenth century music in being attributed to somebody else—this one to Wilhelm Friedemann Bach, the great Johann Sebastian's son—and being put in the right place only by the investigations of musical scholars, and in its form for the organ being proved to be a transcription by the elder Bach, who was given to doing such things. But no doubt these details failed to interest the audience, who got much pleasure from the old music itself—old but not antiquated. It was also played with a modern richness and fullness by the string orchestra. The "concertino," or solo group, is made up of two solo violins and a solo 'cello.

And of the same period, though the work of a greater man, was Bach's organ passacaglia. Mr. Stokowski is entirely in the modern fashion in making his transcription for the fullest modern orchestra and the use of all sorts of modern orchestral color. The piece was played at these concerts last season. It is skilfully made to display all kinds of orchestral sonorities one after another; and ends with a tremendous blare as of an immense organ with all the stops pulled.

There Mr. Stokowski discontinued his antiquarian researches and came to the most modern matter. Mr. Schelling's "Victory Ball" was composed within a year, and its performances in Philadelphia last week and in New York last night were its first public ones. It was suggested by Alfred Noyes's grim poem of the same title, which calls up a scene of mad dancers watched by the shadows of men killed in the war, ironically commenting on their forgetfulness of the cataclysm. As Mr. Gilman describes it in his note, it is a bacchanale traversed by a vision of troops marching to victory or disaster; to desolation and death. The music is wholly descriptive, and it may also be said to have an ethical purpose. To a certain extent purely musical quality is sacrificed to both.

Mr. Schelling has been successful in evoking the hot revelry of the ball, the dancing being in a way symbolized in suggestions of polonaise, fox trot and tango, wrapped in discordant harmonies and garish orchestration. There are trumpet calls such as are used in the army; the "Dies Irae" is intoned. The Scotch pipers are heard. A wild tumult of warlike sounds and marching men comes on, and the dance is again heard through the din. The cross purposes of the two elements are embodied in the uproar. There is a long and diminishing drum roll. Behind the scenes "taps" are sounded and the end comes.

It is a dramatic and vivid conjuring in tones of the poet's vision, by a musician who goes with him eye to eye. The means used are manifold and skillfully and impressively applied. Mr. Schelling has before this showed his imaginative power in dealing with the orchestra, in conjuring visions, laying on colors. Musical ideas are the substance of the piece; but "beauty," in an accepted sense, is sacrificed to expression, to the exposition of ideas of another sort and the huge irony underlying them. From this point of view and in consideration of the composer's purpose, he has achieved success, and in no ordinary measure.

It was obvious that the piece had made a deep impression on the audience. There was much applause, which Mr. Schelling came forth to acknowledge. Two large wreaths were given him.

Mr. Moiseiwitsch is a pianist who is restive under the conventional limitations of the modern program, and seeks to evade them. His choice of Tcherepnin's concerto is a result of this; but it cannot be said to be wholly successful, or likely to open a path of glory for this composition. There are some striking ideas in it, not Russian ideas, for the composer has not here shown himself a "nationalist." But they are developed with a certain ineptitude and lack of skill. The music is full of "rosalias," passages repeated upward and downward with no great significance.

The orchestra is made to speak with an almost brutal power. The program notes call attention to a triangle and a xylophone in the score; if only these were all! The piano part is devoted irrevocably to virtuosity, and Mr. Moiseiwitsch played it with a tremendous sweep of power and brilliancy, ensuring the worst the orchestra could do to him. It was a magnificent performance. But whether it was altogether worth while is another matter.

FAREWELLS AT MANHATTAN.

Fourth Week's Operas by Germans —"Die Walkuere" Repeated.

"Die Walkuere" was sung to a crowded house in the evening "Ring" cycle at the Manhattan last night, Mr. Blech conducting and Mr. Plaschke appearing as Wotan, a role in which he has alternated with Mr. Schorr. Others, as before, were Mmes. Alsen, Von der Osten and Metzger, Messrs. Urlus and Lehmann. Tonight Claire Dux of the Chicago Opera Company appears as Sieglinde, singing Eve in "Die Meistersinger." Joseph Schwarz, formerly also of Chicago, is a guest next Tuesday.

For the German company's fourth and final week, the casts are: Next Monday "Lohengrin," Osten, Lorenz, Hutt, Lattermann, Lehmann; Tuesday, "Tannhäuser, Seinemeyer, Alsen, Lussmann, Kipnis and Joseph Schwarz; Wednesday matinee, "Meistersinger," Fleischer, Bassth, Hutt, Lattermann, Kipnis, Zador; Wednesday night, "Flying Dutchman," Seinemeyer, Koettritf, Bollmann, Plaschke, Lehmann; Thursday, "Walkuere," Alsen, Osten, Metzger, Lussmann, Lehmann, Schorr, and Friday, farewell of all the company in scenes from "Walkuere," "Tannhäuser" and "Meistersinger."

"Lohengrin" Added to Opera List.

"Lohengrin" will be added to the Metropolitan's current list on Thursday of next week, with several new or returning artists in a cast that includes Mmes. Kemp and Claussen, Messrs. Harrold, Whitehill, Bohnen and Schuetzendorf, under Bodanzky's direction. Toscha Seidel is a guest at Sunday's concert, when the singers are Ponselle, Dalossy, Chamlee and Rothier. Operas of the seventeenth week will include both the year's novelties, "Anima Allegra," on Monday night and "Mona Lisa" at the Saturday matinee; "La Boheme" on Tuesday night, with Alda, Gigli and Scotti; Wednesday, Massenet's "Manon," Sabanieva, Chamlee, De Luca; Friday matinee, "Romeo et Juliette," Bori, Gigli, Rothier; Friday evening, "Cavalleria," with Ponselle and "Pagliacci," with Mario and Salazar, and Saturday evening, March 10, "Trovatore," Peralta, Gordon, Kingston and Danise.

Play Strauss's "Hero's Life."

Mr. Mengelberg led the Philharmonic in its series of concerts at the Metropolitan last evening in a repetition of "Ein Heldenleben" by Richard Strauss, in which the "autobiographic" violin solo parts were played by Scipione Guidi. The graphic, extravagant score, in all its spirit of bravado, found congenial setting in a theatre long familiar with Strauss's aggrandized comic opera, "Rosenkavalier." Henri Rabaud, whose "Marouf" has likewise occupied this stage, was represented in the earlier half of last night's program with a scholarly "Eclogue," new to most hearers. Besides an echo of older opera days in Weber's overture to "Freischuetz," there was also the charming choreographic poem, "The Waltz," by Ravel.

Selznick May Resign.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—Myron Selznick, President of the Selznick Picture Corporation, has prepared his resignation and will hand it in immediately if certain New York financial interests backing the motion-picture producer do not agree to his policies, The Los Angeles Times said today. The Times obtained its information from David Selznick, a brother of the President and himself a Vice President of the corporation, who said both of them planned to start tomorrow for New York for conferences with bankers.

Rubinstein in Recital.

Beryl Rubinstein, who has been far afield since he played here in November, returned in a piano recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. From Bach, Beethoven and Brahms he ranged the rarer pages of Weber's "Perpetuum Mobile," fleet as February winds but musically moribund; its encore, Chopin's F major etude, seemed by contrast a warm breath of Spring. Mr. Rubinstein gave with fresh animation a modern group, including Severac's "Return of the Muleteers" and his own "Guitare" and "Two Little Waltzes."

"Peer Gynt" to Move.

The Theatre Guild's production of "Peer Gynt," now running at the Garrick, will be moved to the Shubert Theatre a week from Monday. The Garrick will be dark for a week, and will reopen on March 19 with "The Adding Machine."

4:15 P. M.—F. S. Appleby v. E. A. Renner.
8:15 P. M.—J. A. Clinton Jr. v. J. Klinger.

After losing his opening game in the tournament, Percy N. Collins, representing the Illinois Athletic Club in the national amateur Class A 18.2 balkline billiard championship now in progress at the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, re-established himself as a candidate for the honors he held in 1920 by defeating Dr. Richard M. Roscow of Baltimore in last night's game, 300 to 127.

Other winners during the day were Emil Renner, Youngstown, Ohio, star, and T. Henry Clarkson of the Amateur Billiard Club of New York. Renner's victory was gained at the expense of Robert M. Lord of the Illinois Athletic Club, whom he defeated 300 to 128. Clarkson won from Jacob Klinger of the Liederkranz Club, 300 to 258. Lord's defeat practically eliminated him from the present tourney, as he lost his opening game to Francis Appleby. Renner accomplished the task in twenty-nine innings, averaging 10 10-29. His high run was 48.

The Clarkson-Klinger match was a desultory affair which went forty innings. Clarkson averaged 7 20-40 and Klinger 6 18-40. The latter went into a big lead with a run of 61, but Clarkson soon overhauled him and then, after several innings when only a few points separated them, the Amateur Billiard Club player forged ahead, never to be overtaken.

Dr. Roscow, recent winner of the national Class B honors, played along on even terms with Collins until the eleventh inning, when the latter inserted a great run of 79, which gave him a lead of almost 100. Three innings later he made another sterling run of 88, tying the high run mark of the present tourney made by John A. Clinton Jr. on the opening day. A draw finally stopped the run, but he gained his final 29 in the seventeenth frame. He averaged 17 11-17. Dr. Roscow's average was 7 15-16.

Roscow Gains Early Lead.

Collins won the bank and opened with a 3-cushion carom from the spot. Neither counted until the third inning, when Collins drove his cue ball twice around the table and was aided by a kiss on to the second object ball. He counted six more at the head of the table, finally missing on a masse. Dr. Roscow then reeled off 10.

Two innings later the Baltimore player gathered 17, but Collins followed with 24, making the count 39 to 33 in his favor. Roscow replied with 29, but with a run of 12 in the ninth inning, had a lead of 12. In the next two innings Collins gave a fine exhibition, with a run of 31 in the tenth inning he scored an 18-point lead. Then followed his great run of 79 for a total of 157. He missed on a masse, but followed with a run of 27, which made his total 164 to Dr. Roscow's 65. Two innings later, following Dr. Roscow's cluster of 29, Collins made his run of 88, which clinched matters for him.

Percy N. Collins—1 0 7 6 1 24 4 3 1 31 79 27 0 88 0 8 25. Total, 300. Average, 17 11-17; high runs, 88 and 79.

Dr. Richard M. Roscow—0 0 10 2 17 7 3 0 18 0 5 14 29 10 0 0. Total, 127. Average, 7 15-16; high runs, 29 19 17.

Renner had an easy time of it in the fourth game of the series. Pitted against Lord, who lost his opening game to Francis Appleby, he finished the match in twenty-nine innings. The final count was 300 to 128. The Cleveland player took the lead in the second inning and was never headed thereafter. With his high run in the third inning, when he clicked off 48 carroms, followed by a cluster of 20 in the next session, he raised his total to 73, while Lord had only 20. For the next nine innings the Tri-color representative collected only seven points, drawing ciphers in six sessions at the table. Renner in the meantime with a run of 48 in the eighth frame, raised his total to 137, giving him a lead of 110 points and practically clinching matters.

Beginning with the fourteenth inning Lord had runs of 0, 4, 17 and 10, his best display of sustained scoring. Then for the next four stanzas he drew two zeroes and the same number of single buttons, making his total 99. During the same innings Renner collected 108 points, making his total 249. His best innings were the five which followed the fourteenth, when he reeled off runs of 20, 13, 27, 31 and 17. At the end of the twenty-seventh inning he had only eight points to make, while Lord, with his best run, 31, in the twenty-third session, and 18 in the twenty-seventh, was 162 points away from his goal.

The score by innings:

Emil Renner—0 5 48 20 5 9 0 48 2 0 0 4 0 8 13 27 31 17 1 0 10 6 14 1 14 5 3. Total 300. Average—10 10-29; high runs, 48, 48, 27, 31.

Game Goes Forty Innings.

The fifth game of the series between W. Henry Clarkson of the Amateur Billiard Club of New York and Jacob Klinger representing the Liederkranz Club, resulted in a long-drawn-out battle which went to the fortieth inning before Clarkson counted the single carrom necessary to give him the victory. Klinger got an auspicious start when, in the third inning, he inserted a run of 61, the product of beautiful billiards. He followed with a cluster of 41, giving him a lead of 26 points. He kept ahead of his opponent until the eighth session, when Clarkson, finding the ivories together after Klinger failed on a long three-cushion carom, ran 36. For the next few innings it was nip and tuck. After Klinger had built up a lead of 20 points in the eighteenth inning, Clarkson caught him with a run of 21 in his half, and then forged in front by counting 20 in the following stanza, finally missing on a two-cushion draw. Klinger responded eight innings later with a run of 20, giving him a two-point lead. Three scoreless innings followed for Klinger. Runs of 15, 19 and 9 beginning in the thirty-third inning sealed Klinger's doom. The latter had several opportunities, but failed to realize on them and his miss in the fortieth stanza left the balls in position for Clarkson's 300th point.

FIVE MAT TITLES DECIDED AT GARDEN

Finals Reached in National A. A. U. Senior Wrestling and Junior Boxing Tourney.

LEPANNEN AMONG VICTORS

Rowsey, Vis, Berlenbach and Leino Also Successful in Championship Competitions.

National senior Amateur Athletic Union wrestling championships were decided in five classes last night in the continuation of the combined wrestling and boxing tournament being conducted in Madison Square Garden. Among the triumphant grapplers were two defending champions. The finals in the remaining three wrestling classes, with finals in two Greco-Roman wrestling classes and the national junior championship boxing bouts will be concluded tonight. About 3,000 were present last night.

The two wrestlers who retained their titles were Russell Vis of the Los Angeles A. C., in the 147-pound class, and Paul Berlenbach of the New York A. C., in the 175-pound division. The new champions crowned were: Robert Rowsey, Gary (Ind.) Y. M. C. A., in the 112-pound class; Eino Leino of the New York A. C., Olympic champion, in the 160-pound class, and Kalle Lepannen of the Finnish-American A. C., in the heavyweight class.

Lepannen defeated Charles Strack, Colgate University's grappler, in one of the hardest bouts of the tournament. Lepannen won the judges' decision after fifteen minutes, the time limit on final bouts.

For ten minutes the new champion and his rival struggled all over the mat before going down. When the pair hit the mat, Strack was underneath, and through the closing five minutes the collegian was subjected to a variety of holds with which Lepannen almost forced his rival's shoulders to the mat several times. Strack, however, doggedly fought off Lepannen's determined attempts to gain a fall and was struggling hard when the bell clanged.

Rowsey Is Victor.

Rowsey carried off the flyweight title in convincing fashion. The Gary wrestler threw Frank Fletcher of the Wilmerding (Pa.) Y. M. C. A. in 7 minutes and 40 seconds. Fletcher previously had gained the decision over Carl Benson, Swedish-American A. C., who was the defending champion, after ten minutes of hard wrestling in the semi-final round. Rowsey went through the semi-final round on a judges' decision over Morris Woodrow, local grappler.

In the 147-pound class final, Vis, after winning the majority of his bouts in decisive fashion, pinned the shoulders of George Myerson, Boston Y. M. C. A., to the mat after 6 minutes 46 seconds.

Berlenbach regained his 175-pound title when he threw L. Parsomet of Columbia University in 8:27 of the final bout.

Leino added the national 160-pound title to his credit when he threw R. H. Coxe Jr. of Lehigh University in 11:30 of the final in this class. A headlock and roll proved the undoing of Coxe after a spirited struggle.

The second trials in the 118-pound class witnessed the passing of a national wrestling champion. The victim was Valentine Vosen of the Illinois A. C., who came all the way from Chicago to defend his bantamweight title. Vosen was eliminated by L. J. Servais, New York A. C. wrestler, who won the judges' decision after ten minutes of hard work.

Kirby Easily Beats Greathouse.

Tom Kirby, Boston light-heavyweight who is seeking the 175-pound and heavyweight boxing titles, occupied the limelight in the boxing ring. The Hub boxer, winner over Joe Stoessel of New York, on Monday night, added another heavyweight to his list of vanquished rivals last night when he gained the decision over E. G. Greathouse, Washington (Pa.) Y. M. C. A. Greathouse enjoyed an advantage of about thirty-five pounds but Kirby proceeded to give Greathouse a boxing lesson and won on points.

In the other heavyweight bout John Murphy, Penn State College boxer, knocked out Corporal Dan Lucas of Boston in 2:45 of the first round.

Kirby later annexed his second victory of the night, when in his first bout in the 175-pound division he knocked out Ed Huitin of the Finnish-American A. C., in two rounds. Kirby administered such a severe beating to Huitin that the latter would not respond to the bell in the third round.

The finals in both tournaments will be decided tonight.

SEEKS TO BAR FIRPO FROM BRENNAN BOUT

Pioneer A. C. Claims Argentine Boxer's Services and Threatens Legal Action.

A threat of court action to restrain Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, from boxing at any other club before he appears in a bout at the Pioneer A. C., was made by the club yesterday through its attorney, Frank W. Harris. The dispute involves a contract Firpo is said to have signed to box at the Pioneer prior to his departure for South America last Fall. Attorney Harris, on behalf of the club, yesterday declared that unless Firpo agrees to box at the Pioneer before engaging in any other bout, an injunction will be sought restraining the South American from boxing Bill Brennan of Chicago in a fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden on March 12, as scheduled.

Since the arrival here of Firpo and the announcement by Promoter Tex Rickard that he had signed the Argentine boxer for a battle with Brennan, the Pioneer Club officials have protested the match on the ground that their organization had a prior claim to Firpo's services. Letters have been written to the State Athletic Commission, Richard and Firpo, in which attorney Harris served notice on the State Boxing Board, the promoter and the boxer that he will attempt legal action unless Firpo fulfills the contract which the club claims to have with the boxer, or some other amicable adjustment of the matter is reached.

The Pioneer Club bases its claim to Firpo's services on a contract the boxer is said to have signed last April 17 to box Italian Jack Herman at the Pioneer A. C. In a letter to the Commission, Attorney Harris stated that Firpo refused to go on with this bout, but subsequently boxed Herman at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. According to Attorney Harris, the Pioneer Club protested to the commission at that time and was advised to sign Firpo for the boxer's next bout. A list of six names was submitted to Firpo from which to select an opponent, and he chose Farmer Lodge, according to Attorney Harris. The South American, however, sailed for home unexpectedly and did not box Lodge.

Chairman William Muldoon, at the meeting of the State Athletic Commission yesterday, informed the Pioneer Club's officials that Firpo and Brennan would be permitted to box in Madison Square Garden as scheduled, despite the protest.

"So far as the commission is concerned, there will be no interference with the Firpo-Brennan bout," said Muldoon in explaining his decision. "I have been unable to discover any contract between the Pioneer Club and Firpo, except the one for the Brennan bout. In this match, so far as I can ascertain, Harman failed to show up for the contest, automatically nullifying the contract. Then the Pioneer officials made verbal agreement with Firpo to box Farmer Lodge, but no contract was signed for the bout, and no contract was filed with the commission, as the rules provide. I have a letter from a law firm which the Pioneer Club's officials evidently have retained, in which a threat of court action is made. I don't see how any court can uphold a verbal agreement. Let them sue if they so desire."

BAGLEY ISSUES CHALLENGE.

Wants Bout for Colletti With the Winner of Villa-Genaro Bout.

Frank Bagley, manager of Joe Colletti, Poughkeepsie flyweight, yesterday issued a challenge through the State Athletic Commission on behalf of Colletti to the winner of the Pancho Villa-Frankie Genaro American flyweight championship bout which will be held in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. With his challenge Bagley has deposited a certified check for $2,500. At its meeting the State Boxing Board accepted the challenge. Under the rules of the commission the challenge must be accepted within six months.

The commission also formally accepted the challenge of Harry Greb to Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, and officially notified Tunney of the challenge.

MISS WAGNER WINS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Defending Champion Easily Reaches Fourth Round in Met. Indoor Title Play.

The third round was completed yesterday in the tournament at the Seventh Regiment Armory for the women's metropolitan indoor tennis championship in singles. There were no upsets, although many had expected that Mrs. Paul Martin would defeat Miss Grace Kuser in the last quarter of the competition. Miss Kuser dropped the opening set at 6—1 and had the greatest difficulty in taking the second at 8—6, but, once she had overcome that obstacle, she went ahead to a hard-earned victory at 6—3 in the third set.

Miss Marie Wagner, who is playing through in defense of her title, once more won without great difficulty. Her defeated opponent was Mrs. Bronson Batcheler, who put up a good argument, but could not meet successfully the more finished and experienced play of the champion. Miss Wagner's control was perfection. She played for the lines all through the match and was usually successful in landing within a foot or so of them.

Miss Wagner's opponent in the round before the semi-finals will be Miss Edna Hauselt, who always plays more as though her main object were to get the full back safely rather than observe all the canons of form. Miss Hauselt had a close match with Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz, but managed to outsteady her opponent and win by the narrow margin of 6—3, 0—7, 6—4. Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, who seems destined to proceed to the semi-finals in the last quarter, obtained a highly creditable victory over Miss Elizabeth Holden by 6—2, 6—1.

In the upper half of the draw, Mrs. Carl V. Hitchins dropped only one game in her two sets with Mrs. Ingo F. Hartmann, while Caroma Winn, who will oppose Mrs. Hitchins in the round before the semi-finals, had her troubles eliminating Miss Jessie M. Gott. Miss Gott took the first set, but was outsteadied in the second and third. In the first quarter, Mrs. John C. Collingwood and Miss Rosamond Newton advanced through defaults. Favorites to come through to the semi-finals of the singles are Miss Newton, Mrs. Hitchins, Miss Wagner and Mrs. Schmitz.

The only upset of the day was recorded in the doubles in which the team that was given the second seeded position in the draw, that of Mrs. Montgomerie Briggs and Mrs. L. L. Gouverneur Morris, was defeated by Mrs. Albert Humphries and Mrs. Bernard F. Stens by scores of 8—6, 3—6, 6—2. Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Morris were expected to reach the final round with Miss Wagner and Mrs. Hitchins. Mrs. Humphries and Mrs. Stentz had their game well adapted to indoor conditions and outlasted their opponents after two strenuous sets in which honors were even.

The other seeded teams to advance, besides Miss Wagner and Mrs. Hitchins, were Mrs. H. Stuart Green and Miss Rosamond Newton and Mrs. Schmitz and Miss Hauselt. All the doubles matches were decided in straight sets with the exception of the upset referred to.

It is expected to bring the tournament down to the semi-finals today in both singles and doubles. The finals in the two events will be played on Friday.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Charles Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion, tonight defeated the Belgian, Montreuil, in a one-sided fight. Montreuil quit in the eleventh round, being outclassed from start to finish.

Oxford-Cambridge May Send Tennis Team to Play Here

The element of international competition will be imparted to the next national intercollegiate lawn tennis tournament, according to present prospects. A combined Oxford-Cambridge team is expected to visit this country for a series of collegiate dual and triangular meets and will enter the intercollegiate tournament, if it is possible to arrange a sailing date which will permit the visitors to arrive in time. The United States Lawn Tennis Association has received word that the University of California will send a team of three or four players to the intercollegiate championships and it is probable that one of the Pacific Northwest colleges also will enter a team. Combinations from the Middle West will help make the competition representative. The tournament will be held late in June.

LENGLEN'S TEMPER ENDS AN INTERVIEW

"Not Afraid of Any Player in World," Says Suzanne at Mention of Mrs. Mallory.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis champion, still declines to give positive assurance that she will compete in the women's singles at the Mentone tournament, beginning March 5. The Mentone tennis officials announce her participation as certain, but when Mlle. Lenglen was asked for a definition of "participation" and whether it meant taking part in the singles, she replied, "I will decide that in good time."

The mention of Mrs. Mallory's arrival on the Riviera, coincidentally with Suzanne's withdrawal from the singles competition, in which she had been engaged the past five weeks, caused the temperamental French woman to the play some heat. "I am not afraid of any woman tennis player in the world," she exclaimed vehemently, as she broke off the interview.

The tennis officials deeply regret Mlle. Lenglen's failure to play through the Monte Carlo singles, as the entire seating capacity of the stands had been sold several days ago in expectation of another meeting between Mrs. Mallory and Suzanne.

MRS. GODFREY WINS ON FLORIDA COURT

Boston Player Defeats Miss Bancroft, 6—0, 4—6, 6—4, in Tennis Title Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 27.—Mrs. F. H. Godfrey, Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, provided the first sensation of the thirteenth annual women's singles tennis championship of Florida when she defeated Miss Leslie Bancroft, a member of the same club, by scores of 6—0, 4—6 and 6—4 on the Royal Poinciana courts today.

Mrs. Godfrey started the match in whirlwind fashion and continued with excellent cross court and ground strokes. She won the first two games by love scores.

Her opponent's first victory did not come until the third game of the second set. Mrs. Godfrey won four love games in the match, to one love game won by her opponent. Miss Bancroft, who seemed uncertain of her shots, repeatedly drove her returns into the net or out of the court.

An unusually large gallery watched the match and comments from all sides expressed the belief that Miss Bancroft would finally get going and win the match, but in the third set when the games were three-all and Miss Bancroft lost the next game on a double fault, tennis dopesters began to change their minds. Miss Bancroft still had a chance in this set when the games were four-all, but Mrs. Godfrey increased her pace and by expert placement not only won the next two games and the match, but won the last game by a love score.

The summaries of the second round:

Miss Dorothy Klotz, Indian Hill Club, Chicago, defeated Miss Josephine Hartford of Miami in a two and a half hour match 4—6, 6—3, 6—5. Mrs. Howard O'Brien, Indian Hill Club, Chicago, defeated Miss Mary Law, Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—4.

RAY AND RITOLA TO RUN TONIGHT

Stars Will Try for New Record in Three-Mile Race at K. of C. Indoor Meet.

Joie W. Ray of the Illinois A. C., America's premier middle-distance runner, and Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. distance runner who holds the national ten-mile run and cross-country championships, are scheduled to clash tonight in a special three-mile handicap race which will serve as the feature attraction at the annual indoor meet of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. The race has attracted unusual attention because of the announcement that Ray and Ritola will strive to improve on the record of 14:18 1-5, held by Hannes Kolehmainen. Several capable local distance runners have entered this event with liberal handicaps, for the purpose of providing a record pace to Ray and Ritola, who will start from scratch. If the leader at three miles is ahead of the record, it is planned to extend the race to 5,000 meters in an assault on Ritola's record of 15:01 2-5, made last Saturday night.

NABLE DEFEATS RYCKOFF.

Gets Decision in Star Ten-Round Bout at Pioneer Club.

Sammy Nable of the east side won the decision over Billy Ryckoff of Brooklyn in the star bout of last night's card at the Pioneer A. C. Ryckoff was the aggressor through the ten rounds, but Nable's greater experience more than offset his opponent's willingness to mix it. Nable landed the cleaner blows and had Ryckoff missing a good part of the time. It was a good scrap from start to finish. Both weighed 125 pounds.

In the semi-final bout, also a ten-round affair, Nick Fiorio defeated Sammy Stone on a decision. Fiorio weighed 131 and Stone 135 pounds. The third of the ten-round bouts was won by Wee Wee Burns of Jersey City, also on a decision. Burns substituted for Artie Ditmars against Henry Catena of Greenwich Village and had the better of a slam-bang battle.

Schmidt Signs With Robins.

MODESTO, Cal., Feb. 27.—Charley Schmidt, a brother of Walter Schmidt, formerly catcher on the Pittsburgh Nationals and himself a former major league baseball catcher, has signed a contract with the Brooklyn National League club.

Shade Awarded Decision.

CANADIANS ATTEND MOTOR BOAT SHOW

Many Visitors From Dominion at Exhibition — Houseboat Pioneer Ready for Harding.

The Canadian Government booth at the eighteenth annual national Motor Boat Show at Grand Central Palace had a busy time yesterday. It was Canadian Day at the exhibit, and a large number of Dominion visitors, as well as many Canadians now located in this vicinity, attended the exposition.

The colored views of the Trent Canal Waterway are among the features of the Canadian exhibit, and drew a good share of attention. The model of the 32-foot boats being built by Breese at Port Jefferson for the Duke of Leinster and Commodore William W. Nutting also is attracting interest. The model shows a stanch, able little craft that should be well suited to sailing across the Atlantic.

The hull for Commodore Nutting is in frame, and will soon be planked, and the frames of the hull for the Duke of Leinster are now being shaped. The two hulls are identical in every detail, but they will be rigged differently. Commodore Nutting will have his boat schooner rigged, while the Duke of Leinster will have his yacht ketch rigged.

For his auxiliary Commodore Nutting has chosen a small Sterling Neptune engine of 12-15 horsepower, which is on exhibition at the show. It is probable that the Duke of Leinster will use a similar engine of American make rather than an English one, as was originally planned. The race will start from this port about July 1, with Cowes as the destination. Each navigator is to have one assistant.

A dispatch received yesterday by Ira Bland, manager of the Motor Boat Show, stated that the power houseboat Pioneer is waiting at Ormond, Fla., for President Harding and his party. The Pioneer, chartered by Edward McLean of Washington, this month and March is one of the largest gasoline-driven houseboats in commission. It is 120 feet long and 20 feet wide, and has spendid accommodations.

The meetings of the International Power Boat Union scheduled for yesterday have been postponed until tomorrow because some of the delegates have been delayed. The principal business of the meeting will be the discussion of the international regatta plans. This event will be held in September off Toronto, Ontario.

ALEX ROSS LOWERS PINEHURST RECORD

Detroit Pro Plays Every Hole in Par or Better, With 4 Birdies and an Eagle.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 27.—Alex Ross of Detroit broke all official and unofficial records for the No. 2 championship course here today, when he turned in a card of 65 against a par of 71, while playing in a match with James Standish and Pat O'Brien, both of Detroit. Ross played every hole in par or better, accumulating four birdies and an eagle on the way around.

Ross started with a birdie on the first hole; he then played the second, third and fourth in par and capped this with an eagle three on the par five, 527-yard fifth. His drive on this hole carried him well over the 220-yard mark, and his second landed him on the green, from where he holed out. The sixth he played in par and then got two more birdies on the seventh and eighth holes. A par three on the ninth gave him a score of 31 at the turn.

The tenth and eleven holes he made in par fours, and then raked in another birdie on the twelfth. He kept up his good playing and got a par four on the thirteenth, but after reaching the green of the 492-yard fourteen in two strokes, he took three putts to hole out, and another prospective birdie turned into a par 5.

Ross then steadied himself and played the last four holes in par, giving him 34 for the last nine, and a total of 65 against a par of 71 for the round.

Out—Par	5	4	4	4	5	3	5	3	5	—36
Ross	5	4	4	4	5	3	4	2	3	—31
In—Par	4	4	4	4	5	3	4	5	4	—36—71
Ross	4	4	3	4	5	3	4	3	4	—34—31—65

WALKER LOWERS RECORD.

Englewood Pro Scores a 66 on Belleair Heights Links.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., Feb. 27.—Cyril Walker of the Englewood Country Club broke the record on the Belleair links today when he went around the championship course in 66 strokes. Two weeks ago Captain Carter, the British golfer, played around in 67, beating Alex Smith's record of 68 by a stroke.

ANDERSON TO JOIN TEAM.

Columbia Tennis Star Gets Permission to Play in Bermuda.

Academic authorities at Columbia yesterday made it possible for Frank T. Anderson to be included in the American team which will compete in the championships at Hamilton, Bermuda, next month when they gave him a leave of absence from March 3 until March 13. The party, including Anderson, Richards, Rice and F. C. Anderson, will leave New York on March 3.

The action of the university authorities has greatly strengthened the American team. The youthful tennis star was the indoor champion in 1921 and last year won the Canadian open championship. He is a member of the Blue and White varsity tennis team and is a sophomore in college.

TENNIS STAR IS LECTURER.

Anderson Describes Davis Cup Trip to Australians.

J. O. Anderson, who was a member of the Australian Davis Cup team last season, has been on a lecture tour of New South Wales, describing the tour of the Australians in England and the United States and bringing home to the younger players the essentials of success in lawn tennis. In South Australia R. V. Thomas also is lecturing on the game, explaining the best methods of stroke production with the aid of lantern slides and a blackboard for the benefit of the newcomers to the game.

MAY SIGN FOR BOUT TODAY.

Siki and Carpentier to Arrange Title Match, Says Paris Paper.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A fight between Battling Siki, the Senegalese boxer, and Georges Carpentier, from whom Siki wrested the world's light-heavyweight championship, is to be definitely arranged tomorrow, when a contract will be signed, according to the Petit Parisien. The bout will be scheduled for twenty rounds. Each man must weigh in under the maximum weight for light-heavyweights. All titles held by either boxer at the time of the fight are to be at stake.

The meeting will take place in the Buffalo Stadium here. The date is dependent on Siki's American engagements, but it will be some time between May and Sept. 20. A large part of the gate receipts will go to charitable institutions.

INNOCENTS AT HOME.

There is nobody like United States Senators for "wanting to know." In that respect they are pure Yankee. The surprising thing is that they confess profound ignorance of what everybody else knows. Consider the proceedings yesterday of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. Most of its members acted as if they had never heard of the International Court of Justice which the President had asked the consent of the Senate to permit the United States to join. Resolutions demanding more light were solemnly passed. Before the committee can possibly act, it will be necessary for the President or Secretary HUGHES to tell it exactly what this court is, what is its jurisdiction, what are its limitations, and what conceivable dangers to this country might be involved in membership in it. Senator LODGE, if he finds time in the next day or two, is going to try to get the Administration to answer these questions. Meanwhile, the Committee on Foreign Relations makes it clear that it intends to take no action whatever, in compliance with Mr. HARDING'S request, during the present session of Congress.

One Republican Senator declared to the correspondents that he was never so astonished in his life as when he read the letter of Secretary HUGHES sent to the Senate by the President along with his message. So many profound questions of international law were left entirely without discussion by the Secretary of State. This Senator couldn't understand how a man with the legal ability of Mr. HUGHES could have handled so important a matter so superficially. The charitable suggestion was that the Secretary had been hurried into publication by the President before he had time to go to the bottom of the subject. Such harmony dwells among the best minds!

It is doubtful if any of these innocents at home in the Senate had really read the statement of Secretary HUGHES with any care. Most of their improvised questions were answered in it by anticipation. They profess ignorance about the International Court of Justice and look about for somebody to enlighten them. Why didn't they apply to Mr. ROOT? Why didn't they take the trouble to read the speeches and articles about the International Court which have come from his pen? They seem to think that they are in danger of being trapped by some wicked Democratic device, not being aware that, as Secretary HUGHES took pains to point out, the International Court had been urged by the most respectable Republican authorities and had, in fact, been established largely by the labors of one of the most eminent Republicans living. Senators who were so amazed to have this subject thrust upon them might have so far rubbed their eyes open as to look at the last number of The American Journal of International Law. In it they would have found an article by MANLEY O. HUDSON, Professor of Law in Harvard University, on "The First Year of the Permanent Court of International Justice." There they could have discovered the answers to the haphazard questions which they are now putting. But, of course, that would have been too short and easy a road to knowledge for captious and circuitous Senators to tread.

President HARDING is reported as content with the decision of the Senate to take no action at present. It is explained that when he earnestly urged a decision, even during the last short crowded week of the session, he did not expect to get it. What he has got is a spontaneous and remarkable approval by the press, irrespective of party, and the endorsement of many Americans of light and leading. The duction of the operating ratio. Com-

Senate may refuse to consider the matter, but the country will not. The idea has been put before it, and will not fail to gather behind it cumulative popular support. Mr. HARDING can afford to smile at the political twitings of Democratic Senators. They may irritate small-fry Republicans, but cannot affect the larger plans and hopes of the President. He has deliberately turned his back on all thought of American aloofness, and is pledged to a policy of increasing co-operation with Europe. Against that the irreconcilables in the Senate will rage and plot in vain.

BETTER STATE GOVERNMENT.

Three constitutional amendments for reorganization of the State Government have been passed by the Senate and, presumably, will be passed by the Assembly. They call for the reduction of elective State officers to three, with a four-year term; of State departments to nineteen, and for an executive budget. With the best legislative good fortune, they can't be submitted to the people before 1925. Recommending these amendments in his message of Jan. 3, Governor SMITH said that he would shortly recommend in a special message a plan of "statutory consolidations of scattered departments." This he has now done in a frank, straightforward, businesslike message, which makes some of the politicians at Albany, Democratic and Republican, stare and gasp, but will be welcomed and approved by the great body of citizens who make no part of their living out of politics and want to see this great sprawling, disconnected, unco-ordinated, haphazard, irresponsible, inefficient system supplanted by an effective, organized business system.

The Governor's recommendations can be considered in detail when the bills now being drafted to carry them out are brought in. He proposes to wipe out altogether certain agencies whose functions are dead, otiose or superfluous, such as the Motion Picture Commission, the everlasting Port Wardens, the Harbor Masters, certain obsolete commissions; to consolidate the functions and rearrange the agencies, so far as it can be done without constitutional amendment, among which the public works and engineering operations of the State are now clumsily and irresponsibly distributed. In regard to the perplexed and duplicated agencies "dealing with the welfare and institutional activities of the State" now "hopelessly scattered and subject to so many overlapping inspectional and supervisory agencies that when anything goes wrong it takes a special investigator under the Moreland act several months to fix any measure of responsibility," the Governor prefers the remorselessly logical theory of centralization in a single department, centralization on the basis of "humane treatment."

Thus, in general, he would "transfer the present scattered welfare and institutional agencies to the Department of Education when the welfare of public charges is best promoted by educational supervision; to the Health Department when institutions are concerned which can best be directed through this department and where these institutions will serve as a laboratory for the field work of the department; and to the Adjutant General where veterans' welfare is concerned." Abolition of the Parole Commission and the Probation Commission and the transfer of their functions to the Prison Commission; an attempt at the beginning of "some central control and planning for our parks and places of scenic, scientific and historical interest" by means of a State Park Council in the Conservation Commission, are among the recommmendations in this singularly lucid and courageous document. It is sure to be widely discussed. If intelligently acted upon by the Legislature, it will, the Governor assures us, bring some 100 State agencies now "financially or administratively independent" into "some kind of co-ordination with the major State departments."

The Legislature can do no other work so fruitful and useful as a sound, permanent reorganization of the State Government. Governor MILLER'S achievements in that direction sickened the Republican politicians. Doubtless Governor SMITH'S plans will sicken many Democratic politicians. Nobody but the majority of the people wants the State Government run competently, economically, responsibly!

RAILWAY FACTS AND PROPHECIES.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's Bureau of Statistics is the ultimate authority on railway facts. It reports that the railways in Class 1 earned net operating income of $777,000,000 in 1922, against $58,000,000 in 1920. What is the explanation?

The figures show that the operating revenues increased only $608,000,000, but operating expenses decreased $1,874,000,000. Thus the improved earnings are due to the reduction of the proportion of expenses to revenues from 93 per cent. to 79 per cent. But in 1916 the proportion was 65 per cent. The larger percentage in 1922 was owing to the expenses of the shopmen's strikes chiefly. It follows that, when the repairs return to normal, there may be expected a further repared with 1916 the operating revenues of 1922 increased 55 per cent., but the payroll increased 77 per cent.

The bureau remarks that the figures indicate that the earnings of 1923 will "approach more nearly (than in 1922) to what the commission has "indicated to be a fair return." Senator BROOKHART proposes to reduce the valuation of the railways by seven billions. The bureau thinks that the valuation of the commission should be raised from $18,900,000,000 to $19,400,000,000. The standard return allowed by the Government as rental on the basis of the average of three years ended June 30, 1917, was $892,855,396. Government management failed to earn the rental by $1,800,000,000 in something more than two years and returned the plant in a deteriorated condition. If at last there is a prospect that the railways may be able to earn and keep a profit, it is evident that it is not due either to Government operation or regulation, but to the thrift of owner management, making the best of difficulties imposed upon it.

Betterment of the outlook can never come from a policy of mutual opposition and recrimination. Mr. LEE, President of the Trainmen, proposes a policy which needs only ratification by the shopmen to bring the railways and perhaps even the regulators into line to make the prophecy of the Interstate Bureau true. Over his signature Mr. LEE says:

> Let us satisfy the public that the railway companies and their employés are not what they have called each other, but that they are exactly the contrary; that they are serving the transportation needs of this country in a more efficient manner than they are being served in any other country in the world; that the railroad companies are efficiently managed; that their employés are giving efficient service, and that both of them are worthy of their hire.

THE KLAN AS A MENACE.

Governor PARKER of Louisiana and Rear Admiral SIMS, retired, denounced the Ku Klux Klan on Monday—the Governor at a "rally" against the secret society in Chicago, the Admiral in a talk to the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. It heard him advocate a bounty on the ears of Klansmen if legislation against the wearing of masks proved ineffective. Probably the Admiral's thought was that they could be caught with thistles. In Louisiana the subject is one of public concern. In Morehouse Parish the worst excesses of the Ku Klux Klan of reconstruction days have been repeated. For the first time Governor PARKER told the story of his failure to obtain indictments after an investigation by the District Attorney and Sheriff. Three-fourths of the Grand Jury proved to be Klansmen. It was then that he sent the Attorney General of the State to Morehouse to make an investigation with the aid of detectives furnished by the Federal Department of Justice.

"Even the new Grand Jury will "probably be composed largely of "Klansmen," said Governor PARKER, "and the question of indictment is problematical." However, there is the alternative of prosecution on information filed by the Attorney General under the State Code. "Law "and order must and will prevail in "Louisiana," affirmed the Governor. He warned the country that the Klan might soon subvert constituted government by "a hostile mob acting as "prosecutor, Judge, jury and executioner." That it was done in Morehouse Parish he is confident will be proved in open court. That it could be done in other communities, where the administration of justice is feeble and the citizen has no real protection for his person and property, may not be doubted. Many rural communities might easily come under the sway of the Ku Klux Klan. Governor PARKER'S warning that the States and the National Government "should declare against masked men and mob "violence in such unmistakable terms "and with such severe penalties that "none would incur the risk" it would be wise to heed.

Comparison of the K. K. K. is sometimes made with the Know-Nothing movement of the '50s in the period of violent political controversy before the Civil War. While the revived Reconstruction society may yet become a factor in politics to be reckoned with, it requires an active imagination to see the Ku Klux Klan carrying the States of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Rhode Island as the Know-Nothings did in 1854 and 1855. In that day, when the country was convulsed by the slavery issue, the Know-Nothings were revealed as Whigs as soon as the cloak of secrecy was thrown off. When the Know-Nothing Party decided to require its members to take an oath to support the Union it attracted anti-Nebraska men and Union men in the South who were Whigs. In 1856 it refused to demand the restoration of the Missouri Compromise and the anti-slavery men left it. With the organization and rise of the Republican Party the Know-Nothing movement petered out. While its silent machine played havoc with the old parties the politicians were cowed and fearful. Today there is no national issue on which a secret society could build a formidable political organization. The Republicans and the Democrats have no cause to be afraid of the Ku Klux Klan. Its mummery cannot be used effectively against creed or race. It can be compelled to keep within the law by sensible legislation. A mounted constabulary would be the best antidote to Ku Kluxism in communities where the Sheriff and his deputies afford the only police protection.

IMAGINING A RED PERIL IN EUROPE.

On the editorial page of The World a disconsolate Jeremiah waves the red flag in the hope of scaring General DEGOUTTE out of the Ruhr. "France can win no 'victory' over "Germany that does not bring her "face to face with the growing and "invulnerable power of Russia." We are given to understand that Russia is a fighter who can take blows all the evening and still have a knockout left in the thirty-sixth round. If France destroys Germany, her frontier will be the eastern frontier of Poland, and it is bad business for France to destroy "the great buffer between herself and Russia."

This is important if true, and no doubt there is a little truth in it. But when the writer explains that he is not thinking about Bolshevist Russia or Czarist Russia, but the eternal and unchangeable Russia-an-sich, one is not able to follow his interpretation of history. The argument that Germany was the defender of Western culture against Asiatic barbarism was broadcast by BETHMANN HOLLWEG in August, 1914, but hardly anybody except the German Socialists and Mr. BERNARD SHAW found it convincing. Apparently the theory now is that Europe will remain republican if the French get out of the Ruhr, but will be overrun by the Cossacks if the Stinnesses and Thyssens have to pay up. We hardly think the Red Peril is to be taken so solemnly.

The Paris Eclair published on Monday what purported to be a summary of the report made to the German Chancellor by Count VON BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU, the Ambassador of Germany at Moscow. There was nothing in this about Germany as the bulwark of civilization against the Russian menace, but a good deal about the possibility, or rather the impossibility, of Russian help for Germany against France. The account of the Russian army given by the Eclair may or may not have been written by BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU, but it agrees fairly well with information received from other trustworthy sources. It is a large, well-drilled, and patriotic army, efficient but sedentary. It could probably beat anybody who took the trouble to hunt it up, but in the present condition of the Russian railroads it will have to sit still and wait for the customers to come to the office. Until communications are improved beyond any immediate prospect, it is useless as an offensive weapon. M. POINCARE may perhaps be excused for thinking that the Ruhr magnates will be ready to loosen up before this army reaches the Rhine.

Of course, if it be assumed that the annihilation of Germany must be the consequence of the occupation of the Ruhr; that Germany alone has saved Europe from Russian conquest, and that it is the nature of Russians, Red or White, to rush westward toward the Atlantic and die in the air seeking water, almost anything can be held to follow. But this blasting descent of Gog and Magog does not seem imminent—nor, for that matter, does the annihilation of Germany.

THE REAL QUESTION.

Dr. ETTINGER, in discussing the Carnegie Foundation report, does not specifically answer Dr. PRITCHETT'S question, "What a school is for," but he puts his finger on the vital issue when he says that the question is not what is spent for free education, but whether the results in human values are worth all the expenditure. The Carnegie report puts the emphasis upon the enormous and rising increase in the cost of public education and on the consequent burden of taxation. But a people who have such a margin for luxuries and pleasures and comforts beyond their necessities cannot let the emphasis rest there. Dr. ANGELL, the former President of the Carnegie Corporation, now the President of Yale University, was quoted a few weeks ago as saying that the country at large is spending for cosmetics, for tobacco and for what the Constitution prohibits in the Eighteenth Amendment much more than it spends for free education. There is no great reason for economic alarm merely because of the size of our educational budgets.

What we wish to know is whether the education for which the country is taxed does pay, not in dollars and cents, but in intellectual and moral values. Dr. GEORGE D. STRAYER is reporting today at the national meeting of the Department of Superintendence in Cleveland that in 1920 we spent just short of a billion dollars for the current expenses of our public schools—that is, $9 per capita. If that sum or a greater is necessary for the maintenance of democratic institutions, we cannot afford not to spend it. Moreover, as the President of the English Board of Education put it in the midst of the war, when asking for additional grants for schools, "education is the eternal "debt of maturity to childhood and "youth." The species must carry on intellectually as well as physically.

No report can be satisfying that stops with the fact of expense and does not give some estimate of the results. An accurate appraisement is impossible, but the public should have a clear appreciation of the benefits, intellectual, moral, economic, that come through the schools; and the emphasis should be there: on that into which the tax is transmuted by the teacher, not on the incidence of taxation nor on the equalization of the burden, important as these are. We need to be concerned that school work shall be done as effectively as taxes can do it. Let there be no fear, with Dr. PRITCHETT, of an "over-emphasis on education." The concern should be lest an under-emphasis on the essentials of a sound education should become common, with a lack of appreciation of the value of widespread higher training in a democracy which needs it more than any other form of society or state.

SMUGGLED IMMIGRANTS.

VOLTAIRE has a remark about legislators who enact new laws and then are surprised by the way they work in practice. The unforeseen and unintended effects of legislation have long been a theme for social philosophers and satirists. They would find an inviting subject just now in the advantage which has been taken of the La Follette Seamen's act. That changed the ancient law of the sea. A seaman arriving in an American port was made by it free to leave his ship, whether he had signed articles for a round voyage or not. He could freely come ashore and not be obliged to reship for sixty days. This was supposed to be a new charter of freedom for sailors, and so it has turned out, though in a fashion never dreamed of by its authors.

The Secretary of Labor, Mr. DAVIS, summarized yesterday the results of inquiries made through his department, which show that the Seamen's act has furnished a direct and easy means of evading the immigration laws. Foreign sailors leave their ships in our harbors and disappear, many of them finding work in this country, without having to pass the immigration tests. In some cases vessels that would have normal crews of only thirty or forty men arrive here with as many as 180 on their roster. The intent from the first is that the majority of them shall go out to look for jobs, intending to remain here permanently, if undetected. Numbers of them can be traced down and compelled to reship, or else be deported, but the Secretary of Labor believes that several thousands of undesirable aliens have broken through the net of the immigration laws under the liberty granted to them by the La Follette Seamen's act. These men ought to be known as La Follette immigrants. They are a standing reminder of the danger of rashly meddling with long-established laws and customs.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Such Tales Told Everywhere.

Colonel LOCKWOOD MARSH, Secretary of the Royal Aeronautical Society, seemingly has been much impressed by the discovery that in an ancient Abyssinian manuscript now in the British Museum there is the statement that SOLOMON gave to the Queen of Sheba "a vessel wherein one could traverse the air." From this the Colonel, with some approach to seriousness, draws the conclusion that the King who is credited with having been the wisest of men was the original or first inventor of a practicable airplane. One doesn't have to go to Abyssinian manuscripts for equally authentic accounts of aerial navigation successfully accomplished. There is, for instance, the very old Greek story of Daedalus and the too ambitious Icarus, and all the mythologies had similar tales about the achievement by somebody of what from the very earliest times has been among the dearest of human desires—that of emulating the birds. Readers of the Arabian Nights remember the "flying carpet" that was such a convenient and inexpensive means of rapid transit and tales in which every witch had her broomstick to ride on.

Most of these "wish fulfillments," as one school of psychologists would call them, depended on magic rather than on mechanics, and SOLOMON, according to innumerable legends that had for basis his reputation for knowledge not possessed by others, was a most powerful magician, having at his command an army of spirits, good and bad. To work his wonders he had only to give orders to one or another of these docile creatures and at once the thing was done. The recorded visit of Sheba's Queen to SOLOMON naturally excited the Eastern mythmakers to the active exercise of their imaginations, and the stories about the two are innumerable, some highly edifying and others that would give great offense to Justice FORD.

He who looks in them for more than the remotest semblance to truth, in regard to aviation or anything else, is credulous. They are the stuff that dreams are made of, and therefore interesting to students of the mind, but little more can be said of them.

His Exploit Probably Very Simple.

In the outgivings of the police and the postal authorities with regard to the latest robberies of mail matter there is much evidence that important information still is withheld. The accounts given credit the thief with an adroitness that makes him romantic and an object of the sort of admiration that so often is accorded to criminals who seemingly overcome enormous difficulties in the practice of their profession—who are, as it were, artists.

We are told that this particular robber, not once but twice, has succeeded in taking valuable mail packages from cars that were guarded by armed men as well as by locks and seals. Probably he did something quite different, and when the facts come out they will be found not marvelous at all.

Not even in the very highest walks of crime is there often displayed much intelligence of the kind required for the leading of an honest life. Such a life, as a rule, depends on the continuous performance of work in one or another way hard, and that is just what criminals, if constitutional and professional, cannot do. They are capable of brief exertions, and in the course of those exertions frequently display what looks like shrewdness, but this at best is essentially episodic. That is what puts them in, and keeps them in, the worst rewarded of all trades.

It frequently is said of criminals that if they put to honest use their ingenuity and courage they would be successful as well as good citizens. They don't do it because they can't, and the apparent exceptions are men whose drift into crime was accidental and in reality "out of character." For them reform is comparatively easy.

"Modernism" Appears in Turkey.

Either Mohammedans are not what they used to be or MUSTAPHA KEMAL Pasha is taking large chances by revealing what a particularly unorthodox person he is. Only the other day he commended the abandonment of the veil by Turkish women and proposed their emergence from the seclusion of the harem. Now he says that the Prophet's condemnation of statues was merely a precaution against the prevailing idolatry of his time and that, as there is no present danger of that sin's commission by anybody, good Mohammedans need no longer observe the old rule—should ignore it, in fact, and cultivate the art of sculpture as one proof that they are as progressive and civilized as anybody.

This sort of exegesis has been much used in recent years in other lands than Turkey by those who are tired of ancient inhibitions or who want to "reconcile" old theories with new. It works well enough with those of like mind with those resorting to it, but always there are "fundamentalists" to raise the cry of heresy and to declare, always with more or less truth, that the high or holy authorities of old meant exactly what they said and not its opposite, as these innovators are wont to claim.

Practicing the Art of Gliding.

Gliding records are broken so often these days that it is hard to keep track of them. The latest achievement is that of a French aviator who managed to get six miles from his point of departure before he was forced to come to the ground.

His start was from a hill only 150 meters high. At once he rose 65 meters more, and thereafter went along with alternate ascents and descents until he had lost both his original impetus and what he had been able to acquire by subsequent downward rushes.

The wind in this case must have been especially favorable, but no doubt skill gained from experience counts for as much in this as in other forms of aerial navigation. That gliding ever will be more than a sport, however, still is unbelievable, though it is evident that the aviator who knows all the possibilities of it will have a better chance of safety after his engine fails than would one not thus equipped.

Probably the longest gliding "flights" will be made with machines without engines, built especially for such use, but it is gliding with ordinary airplanes that has the element of practicality, and that, it is to be noted, is what most of the French experimenters are doing.

No Slow Taxicabs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As I unfortunately happen to have been in a motor accident about a month ago which left a large scar on my face, in trying to avoid a similar accident I have made it a point to request every taxicab driver not to drive fast. It is my unfortunate experience that no matter how often you ask the driver to go slow, in the majority of cases no notice of such a request is taken.

There is a cab service in town which has a placard in its cabs about the driver having pledged himself not to drive fast and that clients are requested not to ask him to violate his pledge, &c. My experience is just the contrary, and while some of the drivers I find civil and willing, the great majority, I regret, drive recklessly without consideration for life or limb. In fact, I consider them a standing menace to the community.

Being a stranger in this city, I thought I would like to have your advice as to what should be done in cases like this and what would be the best procedure in the circumstances, seeing that complaints to the cab company have no effect.

18th Dynasty, 18th Amendment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As with thousands of others, I have been greatly interested in perusing the accounts and viewing the pictures published in THE TIMES about the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen.

Naturally, too, I have been awaiting news of the discovery of some symbol or token that would indicate what connection, if any, there is between the Eighteenth Dynasty and the Eighteenth Amendment.

Do you really believe that further exploration of the tomb will reveal this great secret?

I shall await your reply with breathless interest and scan your correspondence column with keen expectation for your answer to this all-consuming question.

The Governor's Advice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In behalf of a number of war veterans we thank you for publishing Governor Smith's speech at a Washington's birthday meeting held at Carnegie Hall yesterday. The caption of your article, "Smith Would Drive Reds From Country," is admirable and the following quotation from his speech as you report it should become a slogan for the entire country. Governor Smith said:

"To those who don't like this country, who don't like the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, my advice is to go back where they came from."

FEBRUARY UP-STATE.

The snow piles deep and deeper on the hill,
The sharp winds blow from north and east and west.
About my house—they never seem to rest—
They shout and whistle; they are never still.
So short a month, and yet it seems so long;
I watch my calendar and check each day
To make Spring seem not quite so far away—
I wonder if perhaps I've counted wrong!
Just eight and twenty days—I never saw
A month so obstinate, so long to last;
It never rains and it will never thaw;
The days and nights drag slowly, slowly past.
What would I give to hear a robin sing,
To see the buds unsheathing on a tree;
If I could hear eaves dripping I should sing;
And bare, brown patches on the hills would be Like notes from Spring to say, "I'm on the way!"
Where is my pencil? Check! Another day!

CANADA'S COAL SUPPLY.

How She Has Come to Depend on the United States.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article this morning headed, "They Have Coal of Their Own," you say: "It is reasonable to ask the Canadians why they do not use their own coal, of which they have in Cape Breton as much as they choose to dig." It may be reasonable to ask and it is equally reasonable to expect that you should have sought the reply before publicly asking a question which can only serve to make the question of export of coal to Canada a more burning one than it is at present.

Many of your readers have not your opportunity of appealing to a knowledge of geography which might help to answer the question.

For the information of your readers I beg to give the following correct table of distances between Sydney, Cape Breton, and various important consuming centres in Canada:

	Miles.
Sydney to Montreal	1,902
Sydney to Ottawa	1,118
Sydney to Toronto	1,336
Sydney to Windsor	1,566
Sydney to Fort William	1,994
Sydney to Winnipeg	2,374

Surely it is not necessary to go further afield to Edmonton, 3,170 miles, or Calgary, 3,245, &c.

It is true there are vast deposits of both bituminous and semi-anthracite coal in Alberta and further vast deposits of lignite in Saskatchewan which unfortunately are still undeveloped and so of little use. In fact the total known coal deposits of Canada, including those of the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions, amount to over 70 per cent. of the total coal of the British Empire.

A comparative table of distances can readily be arrived at when a glance at the map shows Scranton to be 400 miles from Toronto and Pittsburgh only 367 miles, while the distances to Montreal are approximately the same.

All these vast deposits in Canada are of little or no use during the present crisis and Canada has unfortunately grown to look to Pennsylvania and other centres in the United States during the whole of her history.

It may be pertinent to say that while a few of the inhabitants of Northern New York and New England may at present be undergoing some hardships, which might be somewhat relieved by an embargo on coal exports to Canada, this suffering has been far more than offset by the earnings of employes, namely, miners and railway workers, and in profits to operators, commission agents, &c., from the yearly shipments to Canada and the return of good Canadian dollars to the extent of hundreds of millions during a number of years.

Canada paid into the pockets of United States operators during 1920 the tremendous sum of $98,033,598 for coal, to say nothing of carrying charges to United States roads. Why have not THE NEW YORK TIMES and other fair and logical minded sources asked Canada during the last several decades to use her own coal and wood?

If the $38,773,351 paid for anthracite and the $61,260,247 for bituminous coal total $98,033,598 to the United States during 1920, and similar vast sums years before and since had been withheld, possibly the freezings in the United States might be more numerous by a few than at present, and it is even possible a few may have suffered from lack of employment and hunger in addition.

It may be quite all right to ask Canada why she does not use her own soft coal, "and not the best of soft coal at that," at a time when your country is suffering a shortage due to strikes in mines and on railroads, but it is hardly fair. Is it not more reasonable in these days of commerce that Canada should ask why she, your best foreign customer for coal, should be told to burn her own coal and wood when your supply is low, due to no fault of hers?

Was THE NEW YORK TIMES or any other paper in the United States compelled to suspend publication during 1919 or 1920 due to Canada withholding her paper supply when her own publications were suffering? Is it not a fact that in times of stress like the present Canada is told she should not be treated as a forty-ninth State, but at all other times she would be heartily welcomed?

Canada today is needing your coal owing to a rigorous climate where suffering would be intense if the supply were withheld or even diminished, and the United States has likewise needed Canadian money to the extent of nearly $100,000,000 a year in order that there might be prosperity among large numbers of her people.

One final word as regards wood. In times of stress it is not practical for Canadians to go into the woods for emergency fuel. Canada is to a fair degree settled and it is no longer possible for one to go into the back yard and hew down trees. In fact, Montreal is somewhat like Boston, with nearly 800,000 people.

A supply of wood for Canada's population must be anticipated by organization. It is no more possible to supply Canadians with wood for fuel this present Winter than it would be to supply THE NEW YORK TIMES with pulp for paper if no lumbering organization existed for that purpose.

In the country districts wood must be cut and piled for drying and to await seasonable opportunity for hauling when woods roads can be made, and wood out this Winter reaches the market next Fall.

I really feel that a question of this kind, vitally important to your neighbors, should be dealt with on a somewhat broader basis than in your editorial of today.

Americans and King Khama's People

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The cable from London announcing the death of "the oldest sovereign in the world and one of its pioneer prohibitionists," King Khama of Bechuanaland, gives timeliness to the publication of the moving appeal he sent to the British Government over twenty years ago protesting against the threatened destruction of his people by the liquor traffic.

"It were better for me," he wrote "that I should lose my country than that it should be flooded with drink. Lobengula never gives me a sleepless night, but to fight against drink is to fight against demons, not against men. I dread the white man's drink more than all the assegais of the Matabele, which kill men's bodies and it is quickly over. But drink puts devils into men and destroys both bodies and souls forever. Its wounds never heal. I pray your Honor never to ask me to open even a little door to drink."

If the reports are true concerning the amount of liquor reaching our shores from the Bahamas, it might not be amiss if we made the appeal to London of this old African chieftain our own.

What the People Want.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the controversy now raging between Mr. Bowlby and Mr. Brady, the case of the public seems to be completely snowed under. While Mr. Brady's efforts are no doubt appreciated by the people whose cause he is championing, he is not an impartial judge. The people who crowd the movie theatres and baseball fields on Sunday are free agents. They want to do what they are doing. They do not require Mr. Bowlby's attendance at these places. The churches are open. If Mr. Bowlby wants to go to church, let him go.

TEACHERS TO MEET IN PEACE CONGRESS

Fifty Nations With 400,000,000 School Children Will Send Delegates to San Francisco.

NEW TAX SYSTEMS SOUGHT

Complete Control of Finances by Boards of Education Is Advocated by Professor Strayer.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—A world conference on education at which more than 400,000,000 school children will be represented has been called by the National Education Association to be held in San Francisco and Oakland, Cal., June 28 to July 3, it was announced at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Department of Superintendence of the association tonight.

The conference was called for the promotion of international peace and the mutual understanding of nations and peoples. Fifty nations of Europe, Asia and North and South America have assured the attendance of 1,000 delegates. In addition 1,000 exchange professors will attend to sit with the delegates of their respective countries and to act as interpreters.

Tax systems was attacked today by several speakers during general sessions of the Department of Superintendence in discussions on progress in solving school financial problems, with a three-speech symposium on budget making and spending.

Pointing out that wealthier communities spend the larger amount per pupil, whereas it often happens that the poorer communities have to the highest tax rate, Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia University came to this conclusion:

"If opportunities and burden are to be equalized, the State must levy a tax upon the property or incomes of all the people, or in some other manner secure revenues by a system of taxation which bears with equal weight upon all."

Professor Strayer also advocated giving Boards of Education complete control of finances of the school system, contending that it would bring a larger tax rate, larger percentage of the total municipal tax rate devoted to schools and a larger expenditure per pupil in average daily attendance.

Robert M. Haigh, Professor of Business Organization, Columbia University, said that in New York State 60 per cent. of all State and local revenues in 1920 were educational taxes, and declared "it is hopeless to depend upon the general property tax as the sole source of State and local revenue if we are to finance the program of education."

"The State of Ohio has a tax system which flatly presents to every citizen the option of being an intelligent liar or an economic fool," he declared. "The percentage of economic fools runs very low. Moreover, most of our States are in no position to sympathize with Ohio. The conditions in many of them are worse."

Herbert S. Weet, Superintendent of Schools, Rochester, N. Y., said respect for the rights of the child and the welfare of community dictated an education in the elementary school that should advance the child in his ability to read, write and speak correctly the English language and to know and use intelligently the elementary processes of arithmetic.

In Rochester the average pupil cost for each of the six grades of elementary school, for realizing this objective last year, was $76, and the aggregate cost for the six years of the elementary school was $450.

Superintendent H. B. Brunse of Okmulgee, Okla., said costs could be reduced by increasing the efficiency of teachers.

The National Council of Education, an allied organization, held its opening meeting this afternoon, President J. M. Gwinn, New Orleans, presiding.

John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, spoke on "A Year's Progress in Education." He said that in spite of widespread insistence in all parts of the country upon a policy of relieving the burden of taxation and retrenchment of expenditures for public matters, schools last year enjoyed a year of surprising progress, with general and marked evidences of progress.

John H. Beveridge of Omaha, President of the Department of Superintendence, said a lack of definiteness in the course of study wasted the time of pupil and teacher, making it difficult for the teacher to keep the pupil mentally awake and morally alert and give him the social contact needed for citizenship.

INDEPENDENT ART SALE.

Sales of pictures and sculpture are going well at the seventh annual exhibition of the Society of Independent Artists, now going on on the Waldorf roof. Sales have this year been put on a business basis, with Walter Monroe Grant and Mollie Higgins Smith in charge. An interesting colored plaster of Yvette Guilbert by Alice Morgan Wright was one of the first things sold, going to C. K. Fraser for $50. An Irish painting, "The Old Road to Cahirciveen," by Jack B. Yates, brother of the poet and present Minister of Art in Ireland, William Butler Yeats, No. 676, has been sold to John Quinn, for $150. Albert Shaw, editor of The Review of Reviews, who wanted a "sunny picture for his country home," found it in No. 284, "Saturday Morning, Nemours, France," by Lieutenant A. Van Nesse Gregue, and paid $300 for it.

Former Lieutenant John Shuster of the World War, who has had trouble with his lungs since being gassed in France and is living in New Mexico, is showing etchings and has sold several. Young Shuster is considered by many John Sloan, President of the Independent, among them—as the coming artist among those who have recently taken to painting in the Southwest. An interesting feature of young Shuster's work is that he had not even considered painting before he began to work. A full set of his etchings were sold before the exhibition opened, and many have been sold since. Courtenay Foote, the actor, has been a purchaser since the opening of the show.

Sam Lewisohn, well known as a buyer in the field of art, has purchased a small water color by George ("Pop") Hart, Cock Fight in San Domingo," for $30. Mr. Lewisohn also purchased an etching by Samuel Smith, "Spanish Scene," for $25, and a bronze, "Lyra," by Alice Morgan Wright. The very colorful work by the Mexican school children has attracted the serious attention of many decorators who have visited the show. They say they would make excellent designs for needlework for hooked rugs and for printing on fabrics of on paper for decoration, in repeats, for children's rooms. Although not offered for sale, one of them has been sold for $10. 50 pesos in Mexico, and a fortune for the tot who did the work.

COL. J. W. KILBRETH WEDS MRS. ULMAN

ONLY THE FAMILIES THERE

Miss Lida Scarborough Is Married to R. C. Foster of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The marriage of Colonel J. William Kilbreth, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Gertrude Barclay Ulman, eldest daughter of Mrs. Bushrod Bayne by her first husband, the late Henry A. Barclay, took place yesterday in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church at 4:30 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks officiating. None but the immediate families was present, and after the ceremony the bride and bridegroom and the family went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. André de Coppet, 969 Park Avenue, for the family reception. Mrs. de Coppet is a sister of the bride. On Saturday Colonel Kilbreth and Mrs. Kilbreth will sail for Bermuda, to spend their honeymoon, and on their return they will live at 24 East Eighty-first Street. Colonel Kilbreth has been making his home at the University Club.

Mrs. Kilbreth's first husband was J. Stevens Ulman, who died several years ago. She has three children, Miss Audrey Barclay Ulman, whose aunt, the Duchess de Montmorency, formerly Miss Ulman, gave a ball for her in Paris last May, and who came out in New York this Winter; and the sons, Anthony B. and Granville O. B. Barclay, who are at St. Paul's School. Mrs. Kilbreth is a sister of Mrs. André de Coppet, Mrs. S. Oakley Van der Poel and Wright Barclay, and with her children made her home in Paris for several years, returning here a few months ago.

Colonel Kilbreth is a son of the late John W. Kilbreth, who was a member of the New York Stock Exchange. His parents had a cottage at Southampton and his family and that of his bride's were friends, but he had not met her for years until a few months ago.

Colonel Kilbreth is a Harvard graduate, class of 1898. He was commissioned in the artillery and served in the Philippines during the insurrection and until 1901.

At the beginning of the World War he served a few months as Director of the School of Fire for Field Artillery. In 1918 he went to France and served first as Chief of Operations and later as Chief of Staff to the Chief of Artillery, First Army. On Oct. 1, 1918, he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General and commanded the Fifty-sixth Field Artillery Brigade at the front until the armistice. After that he was at General Headquarters as a member of the Board to Report on Artillery Lessons of the War. He then became head of the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., and head of the Department of Tactics, and as Assistant Commander was graduated from the War College in the class of 1920-21.

After that he served as President of the Field Artillery Training Regulations Board until at his own request he was retired as Lieutenant Colonel in December, 1922. This is his first marriage.

Lansing—Cox.

The marriage of Ambrose Lansing, Acting Curator of the Egyptian department of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and Miss Caroline Cox, a daughter of the late Kenyon Cox, artist, and of Mrs. Cox, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, 130 East Sixty-seventh Street. The Rev. Dr. O'Meara of Portland, Me., officiated.

Miss Cox was attended by Miss Frances Judson as maid of honor, and the five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker were bridesmaids—the Misses Mathes, Mary, Phoebe, Diana and Challin Walker. Julian Lansing was his brother's best man and the ushers were Megric Rogers and Charles Couchin.

Foster-Scarborough.

The marriage of Miss Lida Scarborough, daughter of Mrs. Andrew Greer Scarborough, of 405 West End Avenue, and Richard Clarke Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Manly Foster of Tuscaloosa, Ala., took place at noon yesterday in the Fourth Presbyterian Church on West End Avenue at Ninety-first Street. The Rev. Dr. Work officiated.

Miss Margaret Smith Is Engaged.

The engagement is announced of Miss Margaret Gurnee Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick De Pew Stewart of the Hotel Gotham, this city, and Nyack-on-Hudson, to Monroe Van Deventer Towt. Miss Smith is the granddaughter of the late William Alexander Smith, who for many years was President of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Towt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Towt, also of Nyack-on-Hudson. No date has been set for the wedding.

MASONS AT ANNUAL DINNER.

St. Cecile Lodge Entertains 500 at Delmonico's.

The annual dinner and dance of the St. Cecile Lodge 568 of the Masonic Fraternity took place last night in the large ballroom at Delmonico's with about 500 members and guests in attendance. At midnight a number of entertainers appeared for a special performance. GARY GUEST AT NAPLES.

Entertained by Signor Finzi, Who Toasts United States.

NAPLES, Feb. 27.—Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, had luncheon aboard the Mauretania today with Under-Secretary of the Interior Finzi.

After American and Italian airs had been played Signor Finzi toasted the United States. He said that Fascismo represented the constant and patient labors of 40,000,000 Italians who were animated only by the desire to know and love each other and to earn the respect of other nations. The new Government, while it could not perform miracles, had re-established discipline and banished the word strike from the Italian dictionary.

Judge Gary, in response, said that he was honored to find himself once more on Italian soil with the young and brave exponents of Fascismo.

DEAN WEST CALLS FOR REAL EDUCATION

SEES TOO MANY STUDIES

Emphasis Laid on the Importance of Fundamentals—"Fewer Studies, More Study."

The tendency in American schools to extend the curriculum to cover many subjects, which was criticised by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, leads to a superficial knowledge and limited mental development, in the opinion of Dean Andrew F. West of the Graduate School of Princeton University.

"Every one who has made an extensive study of recent conditions in American school and college education knows that the severe criticisms made in President Pritchett's latest report are abundantly justified," said Dean West yesterday. "We have been going through a period of bewildering multiplication of studies, offered without regard to their comparative value. Growing confusion and vast increase of expense have been the inevitable result. The miscellany now offered is so large that the difficulty of organizing this miscellany into manageable form has become well-nigh, if not altogether, impossible.

"Do American parents realize that in the elementary and secondary schools a clear, sensible training in a few fundamental studies of central value for the whole subsequent life of the pupil has been disintegrating into what Elihu Root has well called 'a vast, sprawling, heterogeneous mass' of all sorts of subjects, wherein the pupil has little chance to find his way to any sure road of general education—the one thing he most needs to find. Do they realize that in thousands and thousands of schools a boy may drop almost any study at the end of any school year, thus badly impairing his chance for continuing anything long enough to master it? Do they realize that it is now no longer possible for the United States Bureau of Education in Washington to classify our secondary pupils, simply because the curricula are so heterogeneous that it cannot be done? Well, if they do, let them wake up and take the matter in hand. For it must be done—and the sooner the better.

"How shall it be done? There is only one way. The general education, preparing for the whole life, is the one and only basis. All special, vocational and other similar forms of education must give place to the general foundation. Their place is as sequels to and not as substitutes for the general training on which our national well-being most deeply depends. Then those studies and only those studies which underlie the whole subsequent life, the general studies which train the fundamental powers and connect them all, should be made the principal content of the school curriculum.

"This means it is better really to teach something essential than to profess to teach everything. Let the something essential be studied, and the other things will look after themselves. Rigorous selection and simplification all the way through to the end of college education is the one key to the situation. If this be done, we shall have fewer studies and more study, less confusion and more trained intelligence. We shall also have plenty of money, saved by these economies, to pay decent salaries to well-trained teachers. It will be the dawning of a new day of clear knowledge.

"One of the worst delusions now current is that a special 'practical' education for this or that vocational end is an education which will enable a boy or girl to rise in the scale of life. The general education is the force which will do this. To cut off any of our people, especially our working people, from that chance is to condemn them to economic serfdom and to breed social discontent. They have as much right as any one else to the chance for the best education. The trouble is not in the schools alone. Failure to uphold true standards of knowledge, as against temptations to take lower ground, explains clearly the influences which are now trying to turn our colleges into an incongruous mixture of technical schools, business colleges and 'finishing seminaries.'"

CAME TO BE BRIDE, SENT BACK TO EUROPE

Barentzen, Who Was to Marry Foster-Mother of His 3 Children, Cannot Be Found.

Ellis Island officials yesterday reluctantly ordered the deportation of Marie Svendsen and the three small children of Frederick Barentzen of 258 Dean Street, Brooklyn, because the father had failed to appear for them after he had brought them and Miss Svendsen to this country from Copenhagen. Arriving here on Jan. 20, Miss Svendsen told her story, verified by documents, that three years ago when Mrs. Barentzen died, she left her position as cashier in Barentzen's leather goods business in Copenhagen to rear the motherless youngsters, two boys and a girl.

She said that last September Barentzen sold his business and came to the United States. In December he proposed marriage to her by letter and sent an affidavit announcing his intention, upon which she obtained her passport. Barentzen met the group at Hoboken and then disappeared. When he failed to return Miss Svendsen and the children were taken to Ellis Island where a special board of inquiry considered the case. As no one legally empowered appeared for the children, they were ordered deported.

It was said that an inquiry was under way to determine if Barentzen could not also be deported on the ground that a man who did not want his children was an undesirable. Miss Svendsen and the children were put on board the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII., which sailed yesterday.

BOMB IN CAIRO WOUNDS FIVE BRITISH SOLDIERS

Three Egyptians Also Injured by Explosion in Station Square—Bomb-Thrower Escapes.

CAIRO, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Five British soldiers were wounded, two of them severely, by a bomb which was exploded in the Station Square here this evening. Three Egyptians were also injured.

The thoroughfare was immediately closed to traffic in consequence of the outrage, and the police began a search for the bomb-thrower, which, however, thus far has been unsuccessful. It is believed that the missile was thrown from a building.

INTERBOROUGH LOSES SUIT.

Appeals Court Upholds Judgment for Payment of Promissory Notes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—The Court of Appeals handed down today its decision in the case of the General Investment Company against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, appellant. The Court held in this and three similar cases that the judgment of the Supreme Court, which was affirmed by the Appellate Division, granting a motion by plaintiff for summary judgment under Rule 13 of the Rules of Civil Practice, was proper.

The action was brought by the plaintiff to recover on five promissory notes of $1,000 each issued by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, payable on Sept. 1, 1921, to the bearer thereof, or, if registered, to the registered holder thereof. The complaint alleged that there had been a failure of payment.

An answer was interposed and on the pleadings a motion for summary judgment was made. The judgment was granted for the plaintiff. The defendant contended that Rule 13, providing for such motions, was unconstitutional.

The effect of the decision is that the rule is constitutional and that the judgment entered was proper.

The case was argued by Elijah N. Zoline for the General Investment Company and A. H. Cole for the defendant. The opinion of the Court was written by Judge Hogan, and all the judges concurred.

AUSTRIAN DEBT DIVIDED.

Bonds Secured by Railways Apportioned Among Successor States.

PARIS, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The Reparation Commission has just finished the distribution of liability for debts of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire for which the railways of the empire were the security. The distribution was among the various States which succeeded the empire, as provided by the treaties of St. Germain and Trianon.

Under the commission's ruling Austria must pay about 10½ per cent. of the 3 per cent., Hungary 11.06 per cent., Rumania 11.09 per cent. and Jugoslavia 3.16 per cent.

Of the 4 per cent. bonds of 1883 Austria must pay 20 per cent. and Czechoslovakia 80 per cent., while the distribution of the 4 per cent. bonds of 1900 is virtually the same.

The coupons of these bonds will be paid out of funds to be provided by each of these States in the proportions fixed by the commission.

BULLETS FOR DRUG RUNNERS

Liner Mounts a Machine Gun to Curb Hawaiian Smugglers.

HONOLULU, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—It is learned that a machine gun was mounted on the deck of the China mail liner China here on Saturday night to prevent opium smugglers from picking up packages of the narcotic thrown overboard by confederates.

It is said the gun will be manned by two special inspectors employed by the line, with orders to fire on any small boats seen picking up packages of opium. The company officials said they intended to abolish opium smuggling on its steamships.

The company recently was fined several thousand dollars as the result of narcotics being found aboard the China. The vessel sailed for the mainland on Saturday night.

DEDHAM, Mass., Feb. 27.—Nicola Sacco, convicted with Bartolomeo Vanzetti of the killing of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree three years ago and awaiting sentence, persisted today in his refusal to eat prison food.

Sheriff Capen, however, asserted that Sacco was not on a hunger strike, as alleged by the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, and said the prisoner was eating regularly fruits, candy and other food brought to him by his wife and friends.

Constipation is largely responsible for auto-intoxication that leads to dangerous diseases unless it is not only checked but permanently relieved. Constipation, in fact, is the basis of a majority of human ailments which could be headed off if people would only help rid themselves of this serious, health-undermining condition, which can be easily done.

Constipation must be fought to a finish—not with pills and cathartics, which are dangerous to the delicate membranes of the intestines and temporary at best—but with nature's greatest cereal health food—Bran—Kellogg's Bran, which is as delicious as it is beneficial.

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful in its work because it is ALL BRAN. And, to get permanent relief, ALL BRAN is a necessity, for it is the "bulk" of Kellogg's Bran that sweeps and purifies, ridding the system of poisons and bringing conditions to normal. Eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; as much with each meal in chronic cases—and we guarantee that you will relief permanently and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. You do not have to learn to like it. Eat it as a cereal or sprinkle on or mix with hot or cold cereals. Or, cook it with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls for each person. Kellogg's makes wonderful muffins, griddle cakes, raisin bread, macaroons, etc. Recipes on package.

Leading hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

"Jackson Heights has solved my living problems"

The question of a desirable place to live, logically is a question for the woman to decide. The women who live in the garden apartments at Jackson Heights, find in this finer residential section of New York City those intangible as well as tangible things that go to make living comfort for themselves as well as proper environment for the children, a certainty.

One of the mothers living at Jackson Heights says that it "solved my living problems in a way I can hardly believe.

"When I talked about going down to Washington Square, I didn't see how my children could endure the sidewalks and I never dreamed there was a solution to the problem. Jackson Heights has solved this problem beyond my wildest hopes, and it is a great place for the men—men who need outdoors and need exercise.

"After all the woman's problems are her husband and children and when these problems are solved, her problems are solved. Our children are so safe.

"We came to Jackson Heights because of the children. Even when I take them to our country home in Virginia, they have not the same advantages that they have in Jackson Heights. While they have the village they have not the supervised play of Jackson Heights. I think I should rather live in Jackson Heights than in Virginia, and that is saying a lot."

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life, and yet live in New York City.

PREHISTORIC INDIAN CULTURE IS FOUND

BABIES ENCASED IN BARK

A RACE NEVER RECORDED

Strange Farm Implements, Unclassified Skulls and Artistic Baskets Among Cave Treasures.

A new chapter in American archaeology has been begun with the discovery in Arkansas and Missouri of a prehistoric culture believed to have been developed by an Indian race hitherto unknown, according to the announcement yesterday by George G. Heye, Director of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, Broadway and 155th Street.

The discovery has been made by the expedition of the Museum of the American Indian, which worked four months last Summer in the White River Valley, Benton County, Arkansas, and McDonald County, Missouri, and returned after Christmas to continue its investigations until next May. Some of the objects discovered, including beautiful woven bags, sandals, leggings, baskets, food, hatchets, a unique primitive hoe with a fresh water clam shell for a blade, and mummified babies, have reached the museum, but have not yet been placed on display.

Describing the discoveries yesterday, Mr. Heye expressed himself as unable to guess their possible age. "It is impossible to give any dates, though the objects are unquestionably prehistoric," Mr. Heye said. "They are of great value because such finds of perishable objects have never been made before in many sections of the country, with the exception of the salt caves of Kentucky.

"These domestic articles and pieces of clothing have been preserved simply as a result of protection afforded from rain by the overhanging rocks. The Indians who used them and who abandoned them centuries ago in the spots where our expedition found them made their homes in the shelter of jutting rocks. For hundreds of years these have prevented rain from reaching the soil underneath and decaying the objects, which are expected to yield a mass of information about prehistoric America."

Caves Not Newly Found.

Several years ago, Mr. Heye said, M. R. Harrington, now in charge of the expedition, found caves, with indications of Indian occupancy, in the section now being explored. Work was not begun, however, until last July. Announcement of the expedition's finds was not to have been made until next May, on Mr. Harrington's return, but in view of recent news from Missouri he was persuaded yesterday to talk of the discoveries.

Among the most interesting things discovered were two mummified babies which before burial had been wrapped in shredded bark and tied around with a fibre rope. This method of burial by the Indians was not known hitherto.

Almost equally interesting were several complete baby carriers of a type heretofore unknown. These were made of woven cane on a U-shaped wooden frame. The canework resembled that of cane-bottomed chairs, not of the closely woven variety, Mr. Heye said, but of the type ornamented with small circular holes. The baby was fixed in a standing position in this carrier, which the Indian mother slung across her back. Both the shape and the material of the carrier were new to students of Indian life.

A unique find and one described by Mr. Heye as one of the most important was the wooden-handled hoe with the clamshell blade. The shell is tied to the handle with fibre cord. A complete hatchet with a wooden handle and chip-flint blade was found, as well as a hatchet with a wooden handle and a smooth stone blade.

Other objects which tell of the life of the extinct Indian race centuries ago are the leggings of buckskin and sandals of shredded bark. The many beautiful bags found include some that are still in perfect preservation. They are woven of fibre and bark. As interesting as the bags themselves are the seeds they contain. Squash and sunflower seed have already been identified.

Contents Not Uncommon.

Mr. Heye thought no particular significance was to be attached to the contents of the bags. The seeds were simply those of plants commonly known by the Indians and the bags were merely a convenient means of transportation.

That the peoples of even prehistoric times were interested in ornamentation is indicated by several arrows found, the shafts of which bear incised designs, filled with white paint. Sticks for digging were also discovered, as well as many other wooden implements.

Another find which may throw light on the movements of Indian peoples over the continent before the arrival of the white man was a "throwing stick." This was a well-known weapon of the Aztecs, who termed it "atlatl," but hitherto no traces of it had been found in the United States as far east as Missouri. It was used for throwing spears, the points of which detached themselves from the foreshaft on striking the enemy. The spear points were generally an inch or an inch and a half long, while the shafts measured four or five inches. So far a number of the wooden foreshafts have been found.

Mr. Heye described the baskets as one of the most important discoveries. Their number and variety are such as probably to provide a comprehensive exhibit of the art of basket weaving attained by the race. Those found range in size from the dimensions of a coffee cup to a height of about three feet. Some are made of split cane and the material of others is willow roots.

Something of the epicurean habits of the early people will be discovered, in all probability, from the bits of food already found. In addition to the seeds mentioned, peanuts and hazel nuts have been found.

Mr. Heye said that so far the museum authorities had not been able to make a thorough study of the skulls of some of the prehistoric men discovered by the expedition.

Dog Tore Woman's Stocking; Jury Awards Her 6 Cents

Although she asked for $3,000 for a torn silk stocking and for the severe shock she suffered when she was attacked by a chow dog, Mrs. Dorothy McGovern of Bloomfield, N. J., will receive only 6 cents as the result of a verdict yesterday by a jury in the Circuit Court in Newark. Her husband, who sued for $500 for loss of his wife's services, will receive $100.

Mrs. McGovern and her husband brought suit against Mr. and Mrs. David Mahoney, their next-door neighbors, who own the dog. On March 21, 1922, Mrs. McGovern testified, "Buddy" attacked her when she refused to let him play with her dog "Duke." The Mahoneys said that Mrs. McGovern was in the habit of beating their dog because he wanted to play with the plaintiff's bull terrier.

MARRIED 24 HOURS; HELD FOR DESERTION

Less than twenty-four hours after he was married last Dec. 18 in Denver to Ruth Silver, Edward Altman, a salesman, deserted her, according to the complain upon which he was arrested Monday night at Forty-second Street and Broadway by Detectives Joseph Appel and Patrick Flood.

In the West Side Court yesterday, Mrs. Altman told Magistrate Max S. Levine how Altman proposed to her in the morning and married her in the afternoon, disappearing soon afterward. She said Altman told wonderful stories of his wealth, and said her mother cashed two checks for him, one for $800 and the other on the morning of her marriage for $200.

Mrs. Altman came here and traced her husband to 1,465 Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn. She enlisted the aid of the police through her attorney, Bernard H. Sandler of 261 Broadway, and telephoned to Altman that she was ready to forgive him and that she had brought a large sum of money. Altman agreed to meet her, and the two detectives, who were waiting with her, arrested him.

Suit Sets Forth That She and Her Uncle Are Rightful Heirs to $4,000,000.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 27.—Suit contesting the right of Caroline Cox, as the reputed widow of George B. Cox, to the $4,000,000 estate left by him, was filed in Common Pleas Court today by attorneys representing Clara N. Etting of Philadelphia, daughter of Cox's late sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Newman.

The suit sets forth that Cox died in Cincinnati, May 20, 1916, leaving as his only heirs and next of kin, his brother, Alfred H. Cox, and his niece, Clara N. Etting, only child and heir of Elizabeth Newman, deceased. The suit estimates the value of Cox's estate at the time of his death at $4,000,000 and it requests judgment for one-half or $2,000,000.

The petition alleged that Mr. Cox's reputed widow represented in Probate Court that he was unable to look after his property, and procured the appointment of herself as guardian. The petition further states that the defendant appropriated large sums of money and property and made no return thereof to the court.

The plaintiff further alleged that the defendant sold for $1,000,000 property of the estate valued at $3,000,000 at the time of the sale.

Southwestern Carriers Object to Grouping Proposed by Commission.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Tentative plans of the Interstate Commerce Commission for consolidating railroads in the Southwest proved the target of considerable criticism today from officials of carriers involved who testified at the commission's hearings.

B. F. Bush, President of the Missouri Pacific, declared that line needed a merger with routes to the Pacific Coast, while W. H. Lyford, Vice President of the hCicago & Eastern Illinois, with which the commission has proposed to group the Missouri Pacific, said his road should be thrown into association with some eastern system, such as the Pennsylvania or New York Central.

Daniel Upthegrove, President of the St. Louis Southwestern, condemned the tentative grouping of his road with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, St. Louis-San Francisco, and other lines, as the commission has proposed. Such a merger, he said, would reduce competition in transportation service to Texas points, divest the St. Louis Southwestern of its connections with eastern lines, and endanger its earning power. He favored a change in the tentative plan to include its road in the group which includes the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, or with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé.

Mr. Bush approved the scheme of the commission to include the Chicago & Eastern Illinois with the Missouri Pacific, but contended that the policy of his road in the past had been to build up traffic in conjunction with the Denver & Rio Grande eWstern and the Western Pacific. These three lines had been "firmly cemented," he argued, and if the commission brings about their unification, a long established line between the Pacific Coast and the Mississippi Valley will be kept open.

If this is not done, Mr. Bush added, large and expensive terminals which the Missouri Pacific has kept in operation at St. Louis and Kansas City to handle western traffic will be curtailed in their usefulness and the industrial advantages of the cities named will be lessened.

ASK EX-JUDGE TO ACCOUNT.

Trustee of Estate Which Is Alleged to Be $30,000 Short.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 27.—William H. Morrow of Belvidere, a member of the State Board of Education and formerly Common Pleas Judge of Warren County, was made defendant today in an action brought by Clark Ott, also of Belvidere, to set aside a deed of trust which made Morrow trustee of Ott's personal property, valued at $70,000.

It is charged that in November, 1918, Morrow, with knowledge that Ott was irresponsible, had him sign the deed with the intent to fraudulently obtain control of the property." It is also alleged that "so far as can be learned the estate had depleted from about $70,000 to less than $40,000."

Two Murderers Lose Appeals.

ALBANY, Feb. 27.—Two convicted murderers lost their appeals in the Court of Appeals today. They are Frank Favorito of Yonkers, who killed an Italian in Riverdale, 1915, and William C. Evans of Brooklyn, convicted of murdering Paul Gilman, a Brooklyn storekeeper, in February, 1922.

ENLARGED STAR NOT NEW, SAYS RUSSELL

NO DANGER OF BIGGER SUN

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 27.—"The entire population of the earth would be destroyed," declared Dr. Henry Norris Russell, Professor of Astronomy at Princeton, "if the sun should undergo an increase in magnitude equal to that reported in the case of Beta Ceti of the Constellation of Cetus."

Dr. Russell was commenting today upon the recent observation made by M. Camillo Flammarion in Greece of the change in size of the celestial body Beta Ceti. He does not, however, believe there is any great danger of the sun suddenly enlarging, although he says it is no new thing for stars to get brighter and hotter.

Beta Ceti can be seen from any part of the world when the weather is clear, according to Professor Russell, and at the present time can be observed in this locality some time between 5 and 6 P. M. almost any evening for a period of about hal fan hour. He believes the observation reported by the scientist to be of great astronomical value, and may be of great practical interest, since never before has such a large star changed size.

The star is almost infinitesimally removed from us, and Dr. Russell says it takes eighty years for its light to reach us. It is now very low in the west and southwest, an dat the time when it can be seen, just about sunset, it is almost due southwest. The professor was unwilling to make any predictions as to whether the change in Beta Ceti has any significance, but says there is no doubt as to the authenticity of the report, since the Société Astronomique is one of the most reliable in the world.

Dr. Russell said that the earth would not be consumed if the sun should undergo the same change and suddenly grow ten times hotter. However, he maintained that the entire population would be summarily wiped off by the intense heat and that the surface of the earth would be scorched and dried of all moistures. Perhaps the often-debated possibility of the world's coming to an end is not untrue, but until he has observed carefully and received the observations of astronomical stations which have an equipment superior to the one at Princeton Dr. Russell declines to offer an opinion on the significance of the change in Beta Ceti.

WOMEN GET 3 YEARS IN $3,000 SPIRIT FRAUD

Clemintino Carbo, 43, of 528 Timpson Place, the Bronx, and Maril Aquaro, 42, of 242 Mott Street, two of the three women convicted of defrauding a young man and his fiancée of $3,000 on the promise of driving away "evil spirits," yesterday were sentenced to three years each in the penitentiary by Judge Collins in General Sessions. Mrs. Rosa Santoro of 528 Timpson Place, leader in the conspiracy ,was sentenced several weeks ago to from ten to twenty years in Auburn.

As Katherine Diodatti of 242 Mott Street, and Edward Stoppiello, the complainants, were leaving the court room after the sentences had been imposed, Josephina Carbo, 16, and her sister Julia, 23, daughters of one of the prisoners, attacked Katherine. Julia struck at Katherine, shouting, "Now, are you satisfied?" Her sister screamed several curses at Katherine.

Katherine sought protection behind Stoppiello and other men in the corridor until the arrival of William Collins, a court attendant, and several policemen. They dragged the Carbo girls to an upper floor, where they fainted. In the meantime the complainants gained the street.

Testimony at the trials of the women showed that Mrs. Santoro and the other defendants warned the girl and her fiancé that they would be menaced by the "evil spirits" in their married life if they didn't bribe the spirits with the $3,000 through Mrs. Santoro.

BLAST SHAKES MINE TOWN

But Only Two Men Are Hurt When Powder Magazine Explodes.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—The mining village of Russellton, about twenty-five miles from Pittsburgh, was rocked by a terrific explosion today when a powder magazine at Superior Mine No. 1 of the Superior Fuel Company blew up. The magazine was destroyed and more than 100 houses were damaged. Two men were injured.

Telegraph and telephone wires were put out of commission by the blast, which was felt at Curtisville, two miles away. The mine fan house and engine room were badly damaged.

The United States Bureau of Mines here ordered its rescue car from Ford City, Pa., to Russellton before it was discovered that the blast occurred in the magazine on a hill above the mine.

Fifteen men employed in the mine were compelled to stay there several hours after the explosion. They spent the time singing and telling stories after they had been told from the surface that the mouth of the mine had been damaged but that they were in no danger. This information was shouted to them by John Pannacuan, a foreman, who spoke through a pipe leading from the surface to the bottom of the shaft.

DENIES ALFONSO WILL QUIT.

MADRID, Feb. 27.—"A most lamentable fantasy," was the characterization given today by the Marquis of Alhucemas, the Premier, to a rumor published yesterday in one of the Madrid newspapers concerning the possible abdication of King Alfonso.

The Premier made his statement to the newspaper correspondents and deprecated the fact that any journal should have touched upon so delicate a subject, which necessarily would tend to produce alarm in the country and affect the serenity of the monarch, who had irreproachable had him sign the deed with the intent to fraudulently obtain control of the property." It is also alleged that "so far as can be learned the estate had depleted from about $70,000 to less than $40,000."

Case Against Fuss Dismissed.

Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, in Essex Market Court, yesterday dismissed the case against Abraham Fuss, a dealer in cash registers, at 42 Avenue C, arraigned on the charge of receiving stolen property. He was accused of buying a cash register from Sam Bosco, stolen property, held for the Grand Jury in [illegible] Assistant District Attorney [illegible] yesterday asked for dismissal.

Oil Calmed Waves to Let Steamer Turn, Enabling Aledo's Captain to Save His Ship

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Oil soothed the troubled seas and saved the Shipping Board steamer Aledo from serious injury, if not destruction, when the ship was turned about among mountainous seas to head for shelter at the Azores, said Captain J. C. Anderson on his arrival here today after a stormy voyage that lasted six weeks.

The freighter, bound from Scandinavian ports, was beset with heavy weather from the time she left Falmouth, Eng., where she called for fuel. On Feb. 5 a southwesterly storm broke, which Captain Anderson declared was the worst he had ever experienced.

For three days it raged, seas broke over the vessel continually, some of them towering nearly forty feet and breaking on deck with such force that it seemed as if the craft would be torn asunder.

One sea, which crashed over the starboard bow, tore away part of the bridge, wrecking the tubes leading to the engine room and sweeping away the binnacles and the compass. The Captain and Second Officer, Carl Hagenberg, who were on the bridge, had a narrow escape. The living quarters were flooded with water, and water was poured down ventilators and deluged the boiler room, threatening to drown the fires.

When a lull came the seas ran even higher, but it was necessary to head for the Azores to take to a hospital a fireman who had been injured and to obtain fresh provisions and fuel.

Men were stationed at the bow with large quantities of oil, ready to pour on the water, and Captain Anderson watched for an opportunity to swing the ship about. At his command the oil was poured out simultaneously by the sailors and through the oil-covered surface the Aledo made the turn and headed for Fayal.

POLICEMEN IN JAIL, VICTIM IN A BAD WAY

Magistrate Holds Two Queens Patrolmen Accused of Assault in $14,000 Bail Each.

CITIZEN STILL IN HOSPITAL

Man Knocked Down by Police During Wild Taxi Ride May Have Fractured Skull.

At St. John's Hospital last evening surgeons took an X-ray photograph of the skull of William Montanus, bricklayer, of 857 Twelfth Avenue, Astoria, to determine whether or not his skull had been fractured. Montanus was beaten on Monday night in McShane's restaurant, on Grand Avenue, Astoria, by Patrolmen Walter J. Harrington and James M. McFadden of the Astoria Precinct during a wild taxicab drive which the policemen took through the precinct. The surgeons reported that he had been suffering with severe hemorrhages all day and that his condition was far from satisfactory.

Daniel Doyle, the garage helper in Haldenwang's garage, at Thirteenth and Astoria Avenues, who was wounded by a bullet from a revolver fired by Harrington, it is charged, was able to leave St. John's Hospital, and he appeared in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday with his head swathed in bandages.

Two charges of felonious assault were made against the two patrolmen by Doyle and by Harry J. Berman of 129 Stevens Street, Astoria, who was the taxicab driver whom the policemen engaged to drive them about Astoria. He charged that after Doyle had been shot he became alarmed, and was about to drive away when Harrington rushed at him with a gun, revolver and threatened to shoot him if he did not continue to haul them about. Another charge on a short affidavit was made against them by Detective Sergeant Joseph Denelon for the assault upon Montanus.

"It is fortunate that we do not have two murder cases here today," said Assistant District Attorney William B. Groat when the policemen were arraigned before Magistrate Conway.

Both defendants pleaded not guilty, and Harrington asked for an adjournment of the hearing until March 15.

"You will get no such adjournment," replied Magistrate Conway. "When policemen are charged as you are here a speedy investigation is demanded in the public interest, and it is time that people sat up and took notice. I will fix bail at $14,000 for each man, and set the hearing for March 2."

The two policemen are locked up in the Queens Jail in default of bail.

PEKING PRESIDENT HITS DRUGS AND MILITARISTS

Neither Will Be Tolerated When New Constitution Is Adopted This Year, He Says.

PEKING, Feb. 26 (Associated Press).—That the opium traffic in China must go, and that with it must be swept from the boards the Tu-chuns, or military governors, who are supporting the illicit trade, were the unequivocal statements of President Li Yuan-hung, printed today in the new Peking morning newspaper, the Daily Far Eastern Times.

The President's declaration was made in reply to a query from the editor, who asked the executive's views on the suggestion recently made by Sir Francis Aglen, head of the Chinese customs administration, to legalize the opium traffic in order to control it.

"I will oppose to the full extent of my ability any proposal that China must go back on her pledge to prohibit the opium traffic," the President asserted. "It is proposed to outlaw opium smokers. Whether this will be provided for in the new constitution I cannot say as yet, but I can give the assurance that, except for medical purposes, opium in every form will be absolutely banned.

"It is the Tu-chuns who are supporting the traffic, and that is one more reason why the Tu-chuns must and shall go."

Dealing with the subject of conversion, and apropos of the seizure of provincial revenue by the governors, President Li said: "The Tu-chun will go as soon as the constitution is promulgated, which will be this year. Not only will there be no place for him in the permanent constitution of the country, but the provinces will be authorized to take coercive measures against him."

WON'T PARDON TAYLOR.

Pennsylvania Board Rejects Plea of Former Steel Company Head.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—The application for a pardon for Lakin C. Taylor, former President of the Pittsburgh Tin Plate & Steel Company, serving a prison term on a charge of conspiracy to defraud through the sale of stock, was refused by the State Board of Pardons today. The board gave no written opinion in the case, which was argued before it last Friday.

Taylor was sentenced in February, 1922, to from fourteen months to two years. The concern which he headed has a plant in Marietta, Ohio, and his wife and daughter now live in Columbus, Ohio. He was convicted of misrepresenting the condition of the company and its prospects in prospectuses used in the sale of stock which, it was alleged, was sold to hundreds throughout the country.

Taylor's counsel, in arguing for pardon, claimed that opposition centred in persons who feared that Taylor, if released, would bring action against the steel company.

Connecticut Retains Death Penalty.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 27.—Efforts to abolish capital punishment in Connecticut failed today when the State Senate accepted the Judiciary Committee's unfavorable report on a bill to change the statute.

POLICE CUPID WINS TWO STERN PARENTS

GIRL HAD BEEN MISSING

Father's Consent Is Gained When He Is Reminded of His Own Romance.

The law thrust itself between 17-year-old Sarah Bonifiglio and Giuseppe Carabets, 25, both of Corona, L. I., yesterday afternoon at the Marriage License Bureau and then later, at Police Headquarters, the course of true love became smooth. Captain Ayres of the Missing Persons Bureau won plaudits as a mediator.

The girl and Carabeta met a few weeks ago and fell in love. Parental disapproval followed discovery of the romance and they planned an elopement. The girl left her home on Feb. 22 and was reported as missing to the police. Captain Ayres was told yesterday she might appear at the Marriage License Bureau with Carabeta. Captain Ayres telephoned the information to Chief Clerk Michael J. Cruise. Cruise went to tell a clerk who was writing a license. Glancing over the clerk's shoulder, Cruise saw Sarah's name being written.

While the clerk kept the couple talking Cruise notified Captain Ayres. Detectives Charles Oppel and Michael Cauffield appeared and took Carabeta and Sarah to the Missing Persons Bureau at Police Headquarters, and the girl's parents, Orlando and Maria Bonifiglio, were sent for. When they arrived Captain Ayres interceded for the young people. The mother was won over first, but for a time the father was adamant. Captain Ayres finally asked him how he would have felt if Mrs. Bonifiglio's parents had objected to him. He was grave for a moment and then grinned and all was well.

Sarah and Carabeta will be married today at City Hall and Captain Ayres has been requested to act as best man if official duties do not prevent.

WILL ROGERS AS CRITIC OF GALLAGHER & SHEAN

"Cavalieri came to America the most beautiful of women with a gorgeous figure, but she had no personality and was singing for $300 a night when Mary Garden got $2,500," continued Mr. Hammerstein. "Mary Garden has about the worst voice now on the stage, but she had personality and she has been one of the greatest hits in opera since my father signed her up many years ago," he said.

Lee Shubert was recalled to the witness stand, and said that after he had signed up Gallagher and Shean in 1921 Gallagher gripped him by the hand and said:

"I am glad to be with you in breaking up the monopoly in vaudeville."

Will Rogers, who does a burlesque of Gallagher and Shean at the Ziegfeld Follies with Andrew Tombes, was called as a witness for the defendants, in an effort to prove that any one can do the act Gallagher and his partner have made famous. Rogers was directed by the Court to remove his ever-present chewing gum. When he had obeyed the order he said:

"It's all in the song. The song isn't so much, either. Tell you the truth, Volstead and Bryan would make just as much of a hit singing that song as Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."

"Do you regard yourself as an actor?" asked Charles H. Tuttle, for the Shuberts.

"No," said Rogers. "I sing rotten, and Tombes is worse, but we can beat Gallagher and Shean at that. It's hard to tell just where the hit is. It's just like a game. Success comes in somewhere."

George W. Lederer, also testifying for the defendants to prove that they are just ordinary vaudevillians, said that they were successful because of the act they used. "Outside of that I would pay them no more than I pay my chauffeur, $40 a week," he declared.

The trial will continue today.

FIGHT IN TOKIO PARLIAMENT.

Speaker Suspends Session When Members Clash Over Suffrage.

TOKIO, Feb. 27. (Associated Press).—Today's session of the lower house of the Diet broke up in a free fight over the Universal Suffrage bill, with the debate on the measure still unfinished.

The two parties in the Diet, the Seiyukai, or Government side, opposing the suffrage measure, and the Kenseikai, or opposition, favoring it, had agreed to take a vote today, but as the vote was about to be called opponents of the bill rushed to the rostrum, endeavoring to continue the debate. A free fight ensued and the speaker adjourned the session.

ADMITS HINDU MYSTIC.

Inaya Khan, Hindu mystic and poet, who was taken to Ellis Island after his arrival here Monday because the quota of Hindus had been filled, was ordered admitted yesterday following a hearing before a special board of inquiry. The Khan, it was brought out, had been in the United States in 1912 on a lecture tour. He also played the buena, a native string instrument.

Miss Mary Cushing of 23 West Seventy-second Street, President of the League for the Hindus, met the Khan at the Battery. He went to the Hotel Hargrave.

W. A. BRADY IS HELD UNDER 'BLUE LAWS'

COST $800, TOOK IN $150

Most of the Audience Guests, He Says—Eight Jersey Managers Held Under Vice Act.

William A. Brady and three actors in his Sunday night production of "La Flame," at the Playhouse were held in $2,500 bail for Special Sessions yesterday by Magistrate Max S. Levine in the West Side Court. They waived examination.

Mr. Brady, who defended his own case, admitted that some tickets had been sold, but said that most of the tickets had been given away, and that the performance was not for profit. "There were fifty-nine paid subscriptions," the manager said, " and the box office receipts were about $150. As it cost me $800 to produce the show, the performance cost me money. There were about 1,000 guests present."

The manager said he wished the case to go to the highest courts in the country to settle the issue. If the Lord's Day Alliance is really determined to enforce the Sunday law, he said, it should turn its attention to persons who play golf and tennis on the Sabbath and all violators of the Sunday laws, instead of discriminating against the theatres.

The Rev. Harry L. Bowlby, Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, testified that one of his detectives bought a ticket for the performance. Under cross-examination by Mr. Brady, Dr. Bewlby admitted he lived in East Orange, N. J., but said he had his office in New York.

Eight moving-picture managers in Union Hill, N. J., were held for the Grand Jury yesterday by Recorder Louis Hauenstein of Union Hill. They were charged with keeping disorderly houses under the Vice and Immorality act of New Jersey. They denied the charge, but admitted giving Sunday shows on three Sundays in succession in defiance of the law. The managers were paroled on their own recognizance.

The Hudson County Grand Jury, which met yesterday, failed to find an indictment against William E. Quinn, Director of Public Safety in Jersey City, who was arrested recently on complaint of ministers who said that he had failed to close moving picture theatres on Sunday. The case of John O. Devlin, Director of Public Safety for Bayonne, has not yet been considered by the Grand Jury.

Twelve small merchants in the Brownsville district of Brooklyn were fined $5 each by Magistrate O'Neill in the New Jersey Avenue Court yesterday on the charge of violating the Sunday law. They were served with summonses by policemen who found their shops open on Sunday. The merchants said they were Hebrews and observed the Sabbath on Saturday, but Magistrate O'Neill warned them they would be fined $10 for a second offense.

SAYS KLANSMEN GO ARMED.

Alleged Informer Asserts St. Louis Organizer Has Gunmen at Command

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 27.—Benjamin C. Morrow, arrested for distributing anonymous campaign literature and who has told the police that he was a paid "precinct committeeman for the Ku Klux Klan," today asked for police protection. He asserted he had been advised by a Klan organizer, whom he named, to leave East St. Louis, and, the police say, made an affidavit in which he charged that an organizer threatened to kill him.

The affidavit, it is alleged, states that a large part of the Klan membership has been worked up to a pitch which might cause serious trouble. "I have often been many members at meetings with revolvers and in a boastful mood," the affidavit says.

"It is also understood among members that (naming the alleged organizer) has gunmen at his disposition, ready to do his bidding, and the militant spirit, especially against members of the Catholic Church and Knights of Columbus, is encouraged at all meetings and particularly in conversations of one individual to another. There is a general understanding among the members that trouble may occur at any time and that they would be fully justified in assembling at the Ku Klux Klan danger signal fully armed and prepared for any eventuality."

MASKED WHIPPERS INDICTED

Twenty-Two Persons Arrested on Charges of Rioting in Oklahoma.

PAWNEE, Okla., Feb. 27.—Alleged masked band activities have resulted in the arrest of twenty-two citizens of Pawnee County on charges of rioting after a Grand Jury investigation, it became known today.

Six men at Yale—three charged with having whipped E. Ewing of Quay last July, and three accused of attempting to beat him again in October—have been released on bonds of $15,000 each. The first three are John Range, Mike Haskins and Clyde Shean, and the others are S. B. Badger, E. N. Gunnan and A. W. Wyatt.

When the second attempt was made against Ewing he shot and killed one of his assailants, for whose death he is awaiting trial.

The whipping of J. A. Dobling at Hallett two years ago was made the basis of riot indictments returned by the Grand Jury against sixteen men of Hallett. All are at liberty under $1,000 bonds, according to county authorities.

The Grand Jury reported to Judge Cole here on Feb. 17, condemning the Ku Klux Klan for obstructing its inquiry into the Ewing case and urging legislation which would prevent the oath of any organization, "secret or otherwise, from being considered more binding than a court oath."

KLAN CANDIDATES WIN.

Three Nominated in the Municipal Primary at East St. Louis, Ill.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 27.—Three candidates on the alleged slate of five, which was said to have received the support of the Ku Klux Klan, were nominated in the municipal primary election here today, according to complete unofficial returns tabulated late tonight.

The returns showed that the Rev. William R. Evans, August M. Eggmann and Ralph Cook, who were declared to have been endorsed by the Klan, were victorious in the contest for nomination as City Commissioners. M. L. Harris, candidate for Mayor, and S. F. Porter for a Commissionership were defeated.

The St. Louis Post Dispatch published articles saying that the Klan indorsed the alleged slate, and that Klansmen declared they were going "to make a clean sweep" of the election. The articles stated the candidates were pledged to support only Klansmen and Protestants for office, to appoint only a Protestant Chief of Police, and not to make any appointments before submitting them to a Klan committee.

Filipinos Defer Independence Move.

MANILA, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—It was announced today that another independent mission to the United States would be deferred until 1924, when a permanent mission will be established in Washington to push the purpose of an independent Philippines during the Presidential campaign.

Tons of Fish Smothered In Lake Under Thick Ice

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Tons of fish have been smothered in Glenmore Lake, Orange County, by the ice, which covers the lake from shore to shore. The ice is more than two feet thick, and on this is a foot or more of snow.

The community of Florida obtains its water supply from the lake, and the water becoming objectionable, investigation was begun by the State Conservation Commission. When a hole was cut through the ice thousands of dead fish came to the surface and were carried over the dam. Hundreds of live fish in search of air filled the holes which were cut.

LIVE POULTRY PRICES NEAR PREWAR LEVEL

P. O. Foy, editor of The New York Daily Market Report, announced last night that there is a flood of live poultry here for the Purim (Jewish) holiday, and that the extraordinary supply has brought a welcome break in prices.

"Prices are the lowest since prewar times," Mr. Foy said, "and a more than ample supply for the Hebrew holiday is assured at an unexpectedly low market rate. The receipts of poultry to date amount to 285 carloads, but by tomorrow there will be sixty-five cars more, making a total of 350 carloads for the week. There are 5,000 fat table quality live birds to a car and the 350 carloads will reach approximately the weight of 6,650,000 pounds. The total number of birds in these cars will be about 1,750,000.

"The extraordinary supply will permit dealers to retail this poultry to consumers at 27 to 33 cents a pound, and some of the Harlem dealers were selling fat fricassee fowls at 26 and 27 cents a pound. Besides this, there is an equally extraordinary supply of frozen poultry in the warehouses, including not less than 14,000,000 pounds of turkeys. Turkey meat, therefore, is to be had at prices approximating 40 per cent. below those of the Christmas and Thanksgiving holidays.

"Consumers who would not pay the extortionate prices asked for turkeys at Christmas and Thanksgiving can now get good if not better, quality birds at from 20 to 25 cents a pound for Easter Sunday dinner."

SEIZE 3 IN TAX EXTORTION.

Detectives Capture Men They Say Posed as Internal Revenue Agents.

Harry S. Mullen, 43, of 636 East Thirty-first Street and Charles Palmer, 40, of Washington and Johnson Streets, both of Brooklyn, were locked up in the Gates Avenue Station last night on an extortion charge, after Detective Sergeants Battaloro, Connelly and Neuman, posing as laundrymen, had seized them in a laundry at 645 Bedford Avenue, when they were posing, it was charged, as Internal Revenue Collectors.

Charles Drucker, proprietor of the laundry, told the detectives that on Feb. 19 last the two men called on him in the place and told him he had violated the income tax law by failing to file a complete statement of his income. Drucker added that they served a summons on him with instructions to appear in the Federal Court. He said he told them that he was certain he had filed a complete statement.

As they were leaving the place, Drucker alleged, one of the men told him that while the offense was a serious one it could be "fixed up" and demanded $150, accepting $3 on account and setting yesterday for payment of the balance.

The three detectives stationed themselves behind ironing boards last evening shortly before the time set for the appearance of the men, and when they overheard a conversation between them and Drucker they arrested the three. The men said they were not connected with the Internal Revenue Department and denied that they had extorted money from Drucker.

TO SUCCEED GOV. REILY.

Harding Expected to Name Porto Rico's New Executive Today.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Harding is expected to send to the Senate tomorrow the nomination of a new Governor of Porto Rico to succeed E. Mont Reily, who recently resigned, and of a new Assistant Secretary of War to take the place of J. Mayhew Wainwright, who was elected to Congress last Fall.

Those who have been under consideration for the Porto Rico Governorship include Maj. Gen. Clarence Edwards, retired, and Representative Horace M. Towner of Iowa. It has been indicated that the Assistant Secretaryship probably will go to Dwight Davis of St. Louis, now a Director of the War Finance Corporation.

POINTS WAY FOR GERMANY.

Bliss Says She Could Pay in Fifty Years If Europe Disarms.

America's interest in European military and naval questions was discussed last night by the Council on Foreign Relations at a dinner conference at Sherry's. Norman H. Davis presided and the speakers were General Tasker H. Bliss, U. S. A., retired, former Chief of Staff, and Rear Admiral William V. Pratt of the Naval General Board.

General Bliss declared the peace conference had not broken the Dual Monarchy, adding that close observers had seen signs of disintegration in the double monarchy before the split was made at Versailles. He said that if all Europe would disarm, something which he admitted was very remote, Germany could pay all reparations in fifty years.

Rear Admiral Pratt declared that out of the Washington conference on disarmament had come the first definite American naval policy.

Chamber of Commerce Head Tells College President of Sites There.

The new buildings to house Hunter College should be erected in Brooklyn, it was suggested yesterday by Arthur E. Somers, President of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to Dr. George Samler Davis, President of the college. It recently was announced that the buildings housing the college at Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street would be sold.

Mr. Somers, who also is a member of the Board of Education, told President Davis that there were several available sites in the Prospect Park section. He described the health advantages of Brooklyn and concluded by extending an invitation to President Davis to make a survey of Brooklyn and its advantages.

Bombs Exploded in Lisbon Factories.

BOTH MOSESSOHNS NOW ARE DICTATORS

Waist Industry Chooses League Executive Director as Its Will Hays.

SETTLED MANY DISPUTES

Dress Manufacturers Recently Gave Similar Position to a Brother—Two Have Wide Powers.

M. Mosessohn, executive director of the United Waist League of America for five years, has been elected supreme arbiter of the industry, it was announced yesterday. The new position will give Mr. Mosessohn power to regulate the relations between the manufacturers and the retailers and the manufacturers and the piece-goods houses.

The position is similar to the one recently conferred on his brother, David N. Mosessohn, by the dress manufacturers. The waist manufacturers abolished the office of President in order to centralize the power of their association in the hands of Mr. Mosessohn.

As executive director of the United Waist League of America Mr. Mosessohn has been active in organizing various units, officials of the league said, and it was through his efforts that the United Women's Wear League was formed. The latter organization is expected to confer similar responsibilities on Mr. Mosessohn this week. The combined annual business of the industries affiliated with the United Waist League and the United Women's Wear League is said to be more than $300,000,000.

Mr. Mosessohn was elected executive director of the United Waist League of America five years ago.

The resolution adopted by the United Waist League gave Mr. Mosessohn "full charge of all matters affecting the league and the industry." In his report to the organization Mr. Mosessohn said the league was a beacon light to the industry during times of prosperity and depression.

In the arbitration work of the league, Mr. Mosessohn reported, there were twenty-seven amicable settlements effected by the league's arbitration machinery in 1922, as between members and piece goods houses, and numerous friendly adjustments in disputes between wholesalers and retailers. The league has been particularly successful in assisting retailers in financial difficulties, he said, and by this assistance has saved many customers for the wholesale waist trade.

MOVES TO HALT KNIT STRIKE

Industrial Commissioner Shientag Will Meet Union Leaders.

State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag will attempt today to avert a strike of knit goods workers, which was scheduled to begin yesterday morning but was postponed at the suggestion of Governor Smith, who asked the union leaders to confer with Commissioner Shientag.

Commissioner Shientag is expected to see I. Laderman, Max Pine and other union leaders today and to request the employers to send a representative to the conference. The union's demands include the forty-four-hour week, time and a half for overtime, recognition of the union and pay for six legal holidays.

Sheets and Pillow Cases Active.

Active replenishment of consumer sleeping quarters during the January sales is reflected in the business that has been done since the first of the year by manufacturers of sheets and pillow cases who sell direct to the retail trade. A sales executive of one of the leading concerns asserted yesterday that his house had more than doubled its sales since the first of the year, compared with the same period of 1922. The East, including New England, and the Far West were said to be contributing better business than the Middle West and the South, but merchants in the latter sections were said to be buying in a fair way. So active has been the call for certain brands that their production for some time ahead has been sold up and the goods withdrawn. Prices of the finished goods continue to rise in sympathy with the mounting costs in the gray.

Entire Woolen Lines Sold Up.

Official announcement was made yesterday by the American Woolen Company that its entire Fall lines were sold up and withdrawn. In the divisions withdrawn yesterday were Departments 1A and B, staples and semi-staples; 7, fancy worsteds, and 8A, standard worsteds. Fabrics produced in other departments were withdrawn from sale previously, fancy worsteds in Department 3 last week and women's wear goods and overcoatings immediately after the initial showing was made. The statement confirms the rumor which had been current for a week that the company was sold up in all its branches.

Gains in Cut-Silk Ties.

Cut-silk tie manufacturers here claim a material lessening in the competition of the knitted tie. A prominent one said yesterday he was confident that there was a 25 per cent. decrease in sales of knitted ties, the country over, for Spring. He cited the popularity of the silk and wool tie as one of the main factors in the reduction of knitted tie business. The wearing qualities of this tie, it is said, remove the advantage which was claimed for the knitted product. As far as colorings in cut-silk ties are concerned, the Spring promises to be a "loud" one. Foulards are preferred in the better-grade merchandise, and, while small figured patterns are used, the colorings are very bright. Bias stripes continue to be featured in the other materials, with reps and tweeds in this category well thought of. Among the more conservative dark-figured numbers, silk grenadines are said to be coming back somewhat, and it will be possible to retail a good quality tie of this kind at $1.50.

To Open Camel's Hair Lines.

Fall lines of camel's hair fabrics for both the men's and women's wear trades sold by Finsilver, Still & Moss, will be opened on Monday next. Prices for these goods, sold under the trade name of karavan kamel kloths, range from $4.67½ to $8.37½, from 11 to 22 ounce weights. They are described as 100 per cent. camel's hair. A large variety of patterns is offered, with plaids and overplaids conspicuous in the natural shades, color combinations on the plain and basket weave effects, and stripes and overchecks. Some of the fabrics are napped like chinchillas, and others have a cut stripe. A number of colors are available in the latter. The firm will also show its bencleugh sport coating fabrics, these being priced from $2.92½ to $4.67½ in 16-22 ounce weights. These have a fleecy drawn finish. Shadow stripes and overchecks feature them, while large plaids are also very notable.

Pacific Dress Goods Withdrawn.

All lines of cotton-warp and all-wool dress goods of the Pacific Mills, which are sold through Lawrence & Co., have been withdrawn for Fall delivery and withheld from sale. Other goods available at an eighth less. For instance, 40-inch 20-yard sateens 15¾ cents was again the price.

High-Grade Silk Coats.

Accompanying the large business which is developing on silk capes, there is also reported some buying of silk coats. While the orders for these are small by comparison, being intended for the extremely high-class trade, they are deemed a sidelight on the current buying power of some sections of the country, as none of these coats retails for less than $100. They are remarkable garments in workmanship, embellishment and fabric. Flat crepes are principally used for them, but crepe Mongol, crepe Romain and Canton crepe are likewise employed. Fancy printed patters, Canton coats in new Egyptian or Oriental motifs are also included in manufacturers' lines.

Millinery Officers Elected.

Harry S. Bernhard, manager of the millinery department of Gimbel Brothers, this week was re-elected President of the Retail Millinery Association of America, yesterday at the annual meeting of that organization in its offices at 15 West Thirty-seventh Street. Mr. Bernhard has been President of the association since its inception several years ago. Other officers elected included: Milton Wolf, Alfred Fantl, A. Hite and J. L. Fisher, Vice Presidents; H. C. Heller, Secretary, and M. J. Sternberg, Treasurer. Mr. Sternberg was re-elected. Mr. Haller succeeded Joseph Mayer, who merchandises several departments for R. H. Macy & Co., including millinery, and who had been Secretary of the association since it started. Pressure of business made it impossible for him to accept the office again. Twelve Directors were also elected yesterday, eight of whom were re-elected. The new members of the board are Frank Leschin, Leo Michelson, F. Roswell Murphy and Miriam Worms.

What Suits Are Selling.

While, at the moment, the buying of suits is said to be somewhat slow, there are many who believe that much more interest will be shown later on. By contrast with the past two or three seasons the suit business done already has been fairly active, and orders show a substantial increase. Stimulation has been caused by the novelty of the three-piece suit, which has been popularly developed in twill fabrics. Two-piece suits seem most favored for increased attention as the season advances, according to some. From the retailer's standpoint much interest lies in what types the volume of suit business will be done. The aim is to ascertain early the cloth that will parallel the vogue of the tweeds last Spring. Many believe that the camel's hair suits will be the leaders, with fabrics on the polo order also in the running. Tweeds seem relegated to a much less favored position.

Gray Goods Prices Steady.

The further rise in cotton steadied prices still more in the local gray goods market yesterday, and resulted in the withdrawal of some second hands as sellers. The business done was hardly more than fair, but in the printcloth sales were recorded Southern and Eastern 38½-inch 64-60s, for spot and May-June deliveries, at 11¼ and 11½ cents, respectively. For similar shipments of 39-inch 68-72s, buyers were said to have paid 12½ cents. For Southern 38½-inch 60-48s, 9¾ cents was the selling price, but Eastern goods, both for spot and contract shipment, sold at 10 cents. Not much change was seen in the sheetings, from all accounts, either in the volume sold or the prices paid. Sales of good quality 37¾-inch 4.37-yard sateens were reported at 18½ cents, while other goods available at an eighth less. For 40-inch 4.20-yard sateens 15¾ cents was again the price.

FALL GINGHAMS ADVANCED.

Prices showing advances of half a cent to 2 cents a yard over the opening Spring quotations were announced yesterday on Fall lines of ginghams and chambrays by Amory, Browne & Co. The goods were priced tentatively when they were first offered to the trade some time ago and, if the business then placed on them is confirmed in full, no more will be available at the figures given. Only three advances were finally made over the tentative quotations, these being increases of half a cent a yard each on Red Rose of Lancaster gingham, Toile du Nord gingham and Imperial chambray.

The new season's prices, which are given in detail below, cover merchandise for shipment from May through August, and the goods will be sold on the usual terms of 2-10-60 extra:

	Fall, 1923. Cents.	Spr'g, 1923. Cents.
Lancaster staple gingham, 27-inch	17½	16½
Red Rose of Lancaster gingham, 27-inch	19	17

Toile du Nord gingham, 32-inch	25	24½
Imperial chambray, 30-inch	26	24½
Bestone comber yarn chambray, 32-inch	32½	32½

At advances of a cent to 1½ cents a yard over the Spring opening, prices were also made yesterday by Amory, Browne & Co. on Boston fine combed-yarn ginghams.

The Fall lines of Smith, Hogg & Co. were also priced yesterday, the new figures in this case showing advances over the opening Spring levels that ranged from 1½ to 2½ cents a yard. All orders will be taken subject to final acceptance in New York, and all prices are subject to change without notice. A 32-inch Red Seal zephyr offered at 24 cents is now, but the other prices put on Fall goods yesterday compared as follows with the opening Spring quotations:

	Fall, 1923. Cents.	Spr'g, 1923. Cents.

During a good part of the day the stock market moved undecidedly, advances of 1 per cent. or more occurring simultaneously with equally large declines. Toward the last, what appeared to be a concerted professional movement to bid up prices gave an aspect of returning strength to the market as a whole. It ended firm, but with net changes very irregular. Some stocks closed nearly or quite at the day's high prices; others at considerable losses from the highest; a few at the low prices reached on the day's decline. Total transactions were the smallest of any full day since the 3d of February.

Nothing in the day's news threw any new light on the financial position or on investment values. Stock Exchange call money rates were lower, but movements of that part of the market nowadays are so temporary in their scope, and so little connected with larger aspects of the credit situation, that the fractional advances or declines attract only momentary notice. It is not a money market in which, as in the Autumn of 1919, bank resources are too much depleted through investment in speculative loans on merchandise to spare the usual amount for the Stock Exchange. Resumption of dividends for the first time since 1920, on the shares of the best-known copper company, no doubt had its effect on sentiment; but the industrial conditions reflected by this action had already been indicated by the rise in the six past weeks of 2 cents a pound in copper, bringing the price to the highest figure since the early Autumn of 1920.

The movement of the foreign exchange market was opposite to that of the stock market; it advanced early in the day and declined again later. Sterling at one time got to $4.71⅝, or 1⅜ cents above Monday's lowest; but it closed at exactly Monday's final price of $4.70⅜.

The rise of cotton for spot delivery above 30 cents a pound on the New York market fixed in a sense a landmark. "Thirty-cent cotton" was the announced objective of the Southern holders when the market began to move forward from the 20-cent price of early Autumn. Nothing has happened since that date to alter ideas regarding the past season's American production; which, except for the very short crop of 1921, was the smallest in twenty years. The change which has occurred has affected expectations regarding consumers' needs and willingness to pay the price. In October the cotton experts figured out that, with the previous season's consumption duplicated, a reserve of about 3,300,000 bales would be carried over when this cotton season ends in August. Inasmuch as the trade considers 4,500,000 bales a normal "carry-over," it was therefore predicted even then that available supplies would be short of the normal figure.

But the subsequent Census Bureau estimates on actual monthly consumption have shown purchases by American mills to be running nearly 10 per cent. beyond the preceding season; while the exports, which in the middle of 1922 fell considerably short of the previous year, exceeded it in November and virtually equaled it in January. On this basis, the revised Southern estimate of the probable "carry-over" next August, as wired to THE TIMES from New Orleans this week, is only 2,250,000 bales. If that calculation were to be even approximately correct, then the prospects for the cotton crop presently to be planted will be the paramount consideration, and that is the kind of uncertainty which the speculator loves. Cotton crops have had a way in recent years of doing the unexpected thing. Therefore the recent statement by the Secretary of the American Cotton Association that "the gravity of the crisis" has not been matched "since cotton was first planted in this country" was premature, not to say extravagant. But the situation is interesting.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, FEB. 27, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money opened and renewed at 5 per cent., declining to 4½ later for final accommodation. Most of the money was placed in forenoon at maximum figure. Brokers' fixed date money was unchanged in quotation, though tone showed slight easement; borrowers bid 5, leading institutions holding charge at 5¼ per cent. Business money markets were firm and without variation in discount, except shading of call loan rate against acceptances to 4¼ per cent. from 5.

Is this your idea of safety?

Before we offer any bonds to you, we buy the bonds with our own money.

Before buying the bonds we make a searching investigation of the company issuing them. Our experts appraise the value of the property back of the bonds and investigate the earning capacity of the company.

These bonds are secured by first mortgages on essential American industries and valuable real estate. Being serial bonds, the margin of safety is constantly increased as parts of the issue mature and are paid off each year.

Our judgment as to the value of bonds is based on 58 years of experience as investment bankers.

We buy bonds outright at the source and offer them direct to you. They yield from 6% to 7% interest.

This is our idea of safety without penalizing the investor by small return on his money. If this is your idea of safety, too, we invite your correspondence.

Ask one of our men to call and explain fully the details of our investment service. If you prefer information by mail, write to us.

During the year the company wrote off $20,000,000 from profit and loss account to readjust the value of plants and other intangible assets. In regard to this E. T. Bedford, President, in his remarks to stockholders said: "Your attention is called to some important adjustments and a consequent reduction in the surplus of $20,000,000. In the organization of this company in 1906, entire capital stock, both preferred and common, was issued for shares of the capital stock of other companies, which were entered on the books of the Corn Products Refining Company at the par value of the stock of this company, approximately $80,000,000. Since this date these companies have either been dissolved, or merged with your company, and most of their numerous plants, having become obsolete, were dismantled and sold, and replaced by four present operating units.

"Value of good-will is shown at $16,000,000, being the amount accepted by the Treasury Department in figuring invested capital for tax liability. This includes valuable patents, processes, trade rights and trademarks, such as Karo syrups, Argo laundry and corn starches, Mazola salad and cooking oils, the old established brands of Kingsford's and Duryea's, and the new and improved laundry starch Linit. Your company's earnings are due in no small measure to these products, which have been strengthened and developed by large advertising expenditures."

The consolidated balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1922, shows cash holdings of $1,663,060, against $1,457,305 at the end of 1921, securities valued at $14,072,040, against $10,416,423. Accounts payable totaled $1,453,983, against $2,050,442.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling and Francs Turn Reactionary After Strength in Early Dealings.

The London market for foreign exchange was particularly strong yesterday and some of this advance held over until the New York market opened, at which time practically all the exchanges showed measurable improvement over the quotations of the previous day. Sterling, in fact, got up to $4.71⅝ in the early trading and francs to 6.17⅛ cents, but this bulge appeared to attract liquidation after the London market had closed and there was some very sharp selling all along the line. As a result sterling declined to $4.70⅝, exactly where it had left off on the previous day, while francs closed at 6.12¼ cents and, with lire, were lower than at the close on Monday.

The other exchanges were more or less colorless all day and chief interest appeared to centre in the rather drastic fluctuations in sterling and francs. The market as a whole has every indication of being in a trading area in which offerings and purchases just about counterbalance, and which possibly will take the development of an important factor to shake it out of its present rut.

In the subjoined table the quotation in sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

SAYS CONDUIT CO. MUST REORGANIZE

BONDHOLDERS ARE BLAMED

C. R. Meston Asserts Best Plan Was Rejected and That Negotiations Are at a Standstill.

Charles R. Meston, Chairman of the Stockholders' Protective Committee of the National Conduit and Cable Company, has sent another letter to stockholders outlining the plans for the possible reorganization of the company. Mr. Meston says the committee found a "thoroughly responsible operating manager for the company and proposed to assume the responsibility of the operating management."

The letter sent to 900 stockholders, representing over 90,000 shares of the capital stock, says:

"Your committee proposed to be responsible for the subscription of $500,000 new money, this being at the rate of $2 per share for the outstanding stock. This would, of course, be a voluntary subscription by the old stockholders who would receive one share of new stock in exchange for each share of old stock and $2 cash. In the opinion of your committee, any workable plan would have to be accomplished by a reorganization in which a new company would be formed and new stock issued and the present stock canceled or wiped out. In order to make the plan operative, an underwriting would have to guarantee the full $500,000 by covering any stock which declined or neglected to subscribe for the new stock.

"The plan stipulated paying the present bondholders 10½ per cent. in cash (being all of the unpaid back interest up to Jan. 1, 1923). It also stipulated giving in exchange for the present bonds 60 per cent. in new 6 per cent. bonds and 40 per cent. in new 7 per cent. preferred stock; both of these (bonds and preferred stock) having their interest and dividends guaranteed for a year ahead by the deposit of a cash fund covering these payments.

"This plan was rejected by the Bondholders' Committee, and as it is the best plan your committee has been able to figure out our negotiations are at a standstill.

"The Bondholders' Committee intimated that they might consider this plan if the stockholders would arrange to pay the 60 per cent. in cash instead of new bonds, but such a proposition would require either such a large commission to bankers, or such a large cash subscription by the stockholders, that your committee does not think it worth while to propose or attempt to proceed along that line."

Erie's Commuters Increase.

COPPER UP TO 16¾ CENTS.

Another Advance Sets New High Mark in Present Movement.

There was no abatement yesterday to the upward movement in copper metal prices. Sales at 16¾ cents a pound were made on the New York Metal Exchange, another new high record for the current movement, and an advance of ¼ cent a pound over Monday's final level. The same price was received by the few remaining producers which continue in the market for delivery over the next few months. Several producers with supplies available for future delivery are asking 16¾ cents a pound, and it is expected the market will be established at this level before long.

In some quarters it was said the advance in prices had carried the metal to a higher level than had been expected in so short a time. This was due, according to one producer, to the fact that there is no pressure to sell copper at this time. Many producers have sold all the metal they can hope to produce within the next four months and are unwilling to make further commitments at the current price level.

EXPLAIN KISSEL JR. FAILURE

Attorneys Tell of Association With Arcadia Print Works.

Randolph Harris of Harris & Drawson, 27 William Street, attorneys for Rudolph H. Kissel Jr., against whom a petition in bankruptcy has been filed, made the following statement yesterday:

"Rudolph H. Kissel Jr.'s present financial difficulties are the direct result of unfortunate investments in the stock of the Arcadia Print Works, which operated a finishing plant in the village of Arcadia, R. I. When need of further finance for this company became imperative he negotiated a number of loans on behalf of the corporation and personally endorsed the notes of the corporation. His connection terminated in 1920 and subsequently the corporation went into the hands of receivers in bankruptcy. Certain holders of notes brought lawsuits against him based upon his endorsement of the company's paper. The failure of the Arcadia Print Works was the direct cause of the present bankruptcy proceedings."

FORBIDDEN BANK TAX IS BARRED BY HOUSE

NEW YORK LOSES $18,000,000

This Amount Must Be Returned to National Banks—Other States Also Affected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The House, after an all-day debate today, rejected the Senate amendments to the National Bank act which would validate taxes imposed on national banks by New York, Massachusetts and other States, and further amended the bill so as to make it conform with the Supreme Court decision permitting State taxation to equal the amount of taxation on institutions in competition with national banks.

By this action, if it is ratified by the Senate, New York will have to return to the national banks approximately $18,000,000, while the total amount of taxes declared by the House amendment to have been illegally collected in all the States exceeds $40,000,000. The Senate amendments validated the collections, declared illegal by the New York courts and the United States Supreme Court, and would have permitted the States to retain the unequal taxation imposed on the national banks.

Representative L. T. McFadden, Chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, led the attack on the Senate amendments, while Representative Mills, New York; Luce, Massachusetts, and Newton, Minnesota, fought for concurrence in the Senate amendments. The subject was so technical and involved that most of the members said they could not understand its purport. Nevertheless, the House devoted the entire day to its consideration and thereby prevented consideration of the Rural Credits bill.

Representative McFadden explained to the House that the effect of the Senate amendments would place Congress in the position of validating illegal collection of taxes on national banks, in contravention of Section 5219 of the Revised Statutes dealing with national banks. He said further that if the House concurred in the Senate amendments it would set aside not only the decision of the Supreme Court of Appeals of New York but that of the United States Supreme Court. He moved that the House reject the Senate amendment. This was done by a viva voce vote.

Mr. McFadden then offered an amendment to permit the States to retain only that portion of the taxes collected which places the national banks on a parity with private banks. In other words, New York and other States must return to the national banks the differences in taxes paid by them and the private banks. The amendment was adopted by a vote of 215 to 86.

A second amendment, adopted by a vote of 85 to 32, provides that in the future States cannot impose a higher tax on national banks than upon institutions in competition with national banks. In other words, it reiterates the provisions of Section 5219 of the Revised Statutes. This amendment also gives notice to the States which wish to increase the taxation on banking institutions that they can do so legally only when the taxation is equal on all banking institutions.

The bill may become involved in the increasing congestion in the final days of the session. In the event that it does not become effective, the decision of the State courts and the United States Supreme Court will become operative, and the States affected will have to return the illegally collected taxes in accordance with these decisions.

Representative Ogden Mills said that the action of the House, if accepted by the Senate, would mean that many New York cities would have to find new sources of taxation.

BELGIUM TO SETTLE SHIP DISPUTE HERE

Brussels Cabinet Takes Up Case of Lloyd Royal Belge Against American Government.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—The financial situation of the Government-subsidized Lloyd Royal Belge Steamship Company, to the discussion of which the last two Cabinets devoted much time, has again come to the fore.

The convention binding the Government and the company has always been the object of adverse criticisms, and the cost to the Government has been considerable. When the Government recently refused to guarantee notes of the company falling due the American Government, as creditor of the company for a balance of $1,500,000 in connection with the sale of Shipping Board boats, attached four of the Lloyd Belge's ships in American waters.

This action caused some surprise in Belgium official circles, as they said it was taken without warning and at a time when the question was not definitely settled. The American Government also appears to have attached the Lloyd Belge's funds in Antwerp banks.

Although official circles observe strict reticence on the subject, it is now stated that the American measures have been canceled and that the question will be definitely regulated by the Belgian Government. A lively discussion over the issue is expected in the Chamber of Deputies.

An attachment against the Lloyd Royal Belge was granted to the United States Government by Supreme Court Justice Guy in New York on Feb. 20 in a suit for $598,500, based on six unpaid notes. The Bank of Antwerp was also named as a defendant in the suit, having endorsed the notes, which, with four others, were given in payment for the steamship Bombardier and Cannonier, constructed in New York. The Lloyd Royal Belge contended that the boats were so badly built that one sank on the way across the Atlantic and that the company was unable to get insurance on the other.

Counsel for the Lloyd Belge said his company bought twenty-two vessels in all and made final payment on twenty of them May 15 last, amounting to $4,500,000, but refused to meet the balance of the notes because of the alleged condition of the two ships referred to.

St. Joseph Lead Company Report.

The St. Joseph Lead Company reports net income of $3,994,323 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, after allowing for depreciation, depletion and Federal tax charges. In 1921 the company reported a net loss of $185,011 after the same deductions. The profits for 1922 were equal to $2.57 a share on the $15,494,126 capital stock of $10 a share par value outstanding. The surplus, after payment of $2,007,206 for cash dividends last year, amounted to $1,987,119, whereas in 1921 there was a deficit of $1,969,432 after dividend payments.

RAILROADS SHOW JANUARY GAINS

Philadelphia & Reading Reports $3,130,290 Increase in Gross and $1,880,258 in Net.

B. & O. GROSS UP $6,287,210

Lehigh Valley Is an Exception, With $10,898 Drop in Gross and $1,279,514 in Net.

Railroad earning reports for January were issued yesterday, including the statements of several of the larger systems. Both gross and net showed in nearly all cases substantial increases over January, 1922, although both were in most cases below the figures for last December.

One reversal which surprised Wall Street was the report of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, which showed for January last a decrease of only $10,898 in gross as compared with January of the previous year, but a difference of $1,279,514 in net railway operating figures, the 1923 figure indicating a deficit of $929,083, against a credit the year before of $350,481. An explanation was afforded in the detailed report, which showed that maintenance of equipment expenses during last January were $587,953 higher than the year previous while transportation expenses were $382,640 higher.

The Philadelphia & Reading Company, another important coal carrier, reported January gross of $9,251,048, an increase of $3,130,290, while net operating income was $2,245,948, an increase of $1,880,258 over the previous year, as against $3,055,736 reported for last December. Philadelphia & Reading's good showing was due in large measure to the fact that the shopmen's strike did not reach that system.

The Southern Pacific's operating revenues totaled $21,240,388, an increase of $2,604,731, while net operating income was $2,839,745, an increase of $1,400,427 over 1922, but nearly $2,000,000 below the December figure of $4,709,182.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported gross of $20,556,970, an increase of $6,287,210, and net operating income of $3,609,494, against $1,523,105 in January of last year.

Several of the railroad companies reported traffic at or around record levels for this time of the year. Among them were the Erie, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Great Northern and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. The Erie's traffic for the first two weeks of February was reported at 1,000 revenue loadings a day more than in January, cars handled averaging 17,685 a day. The Burlington's loadings are averaging about 10 per cent. higher than in February of last year. The Great Northern's loadings for the first half of this month were 16 per cent. better than a year ago, despite severe snowstorms in the second week. For the two weeks ended Feb. 14 Great Northern's loadings totaled 24,023 cars, against 20,560 a year ago.

Arrest 2 for $100,000 Madrid Theft.

MADRID, Feb. 27.—Two arrests have been made in connection with the theft of $100,000 consigned to New York in 1921 by the Madrid branch of the International Banking Corporation. Another arrest was expected today. The three men under suspicion are former employes of the Post Office here.

78,595 Barrels in January.

The January production of oil of the Independent Oil & Gas Company totaled 78,595 barrels, according to an announcement made by the corporation yesterday. The gas produced during the month was valued at $8,000.

3 NEW DIVIDENDS IN COPPER AND OIL

Anaconda Resumes Payments on Outstanding Capital After Two-Year Suspension.

IMMEDIATE RISE RECORDED

Standard Oil of Kentucky Declares $1 a Share Quarterly and Borne-Scrymser $1 a Share Extra.

Three new dividend announcements were made yesterday, payments having been resumed by the Anaconda Copper Company on its outstanding capital stock, Directors of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky having declared an initial dividend on its increased capital stock and Directors of the Borne-Scrymser Company, also a Standard Oil unit, having declared an extra dividend.

The action of Directors of the Anaconda company in resuming cash dividend payments of the entire capital stock outstanding comes after more than two years of suspended payments. The dividend of 75 cents a share was declared payable April 23 to stock of record March 17. This is the first payment made since Dec. 28, 1920, when a distribution of $1 a share was made. No announcement was made as to whether the dividend of 75 cents can be looked upon as a quarterly payment, but the belief prevails in financial circles that this dividend will be paid every three months this year, or possibly a higher rate will be declared if conditions in the copper metal market continue to improve as they have since the beginning of the year.

The stock of the company immediately advanced to a new high record for the current year. The advance also extended to other copper stocks, all of which moved upward. Utah Copper rose to a new high record for 1923, on rumors that the Directors of this company would increase the dividend from $2 to $4 a share annually at the meeting to be held within the next ten days, while Kennecott also rose to a new record with reports that the dividend would be increased from $3 to $4 a share annually.

The initial dividend of $1 a share quarterly of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky was declared at an annual rate of $4 a share on the increased capital stock. The dividend is payable April 2 to stock of record March 15.

The extra dividend of the Borne-Scrymser Company is $1 a share on the capital stock and is in addition to the regular semi-annual dividend of $4 a share. Both dividends are payable April 16 to stock of record March 17. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1922, shows a profit and loss surplus of $500,317. Inventory was $322,531, notes and accounts receivable totaled $181,304, cash on hand was $56,024, and investments were valued at $662,862. Accounts payable totaled $40,341.

Exchange Rules on 'Settling Bonds.'

S. F. Streit, President of the Stock Clearing Corporation of the New York Stock Exchange, yesterday announced that the "corporation directs that all bonds, except Liberty bonds, be settled through the day branch (not cleared through the night clearing branch) in the same manner as non-cleared stocks and on the same kind of forms, beginning with contracts due March 6, 1923." "In settling bonds," the statement says, "forms marked 'securities not entered on previous night clearing sheet' must be used."

Gulf Refining Gasoline Rises ½ Cent

The Gulf Refining Company has advanced the price of gasoline half a cent a gallon in New York and Connecticut. This follows an advance of 1¼ cents a gallon announced by the Standard Oil Company of New York on Monday. The Crew Levick Company, a subsidiary of the Cities Service Company advanced the price 2 cents a gallon in Oklahoma.

Increases Power Line Capacity.

The Public Service Electric Company of New Jersey is making a change in its distribution line which, officials said yesterday, would increase the power capacity of its existing power lines by 50 per cent. The present power lines are operating on what is technically known as a two-phase system. Under the new plan three-phase lines will, without increasing the number of wires, bring about greater power-carrying efficiency.

NET EARNINGS INCREASE.

Net earnings of $2,327,294 were reported for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, by the Railway Steel Spring Company, against $1,551,636 in the previous year, according to the report issued yesterday. These earnings were reported after allowing for all charges for depreciation, reserves for Federal taxes and other charges. After payment of $945,000 for regular dividends on the preferred stock, the balance available for the $13,500,000 common stock outstanding was equal to $10.23 a share, against only $4.49 a share earned on the common stock in 1921. After payment of dividends on both the common and preferred stocks in 1922 there remained a surplus of $302,294, thus increasing the profit and loss account to $12,771,284, against $12,468,990 at the close of 1921. In the earlier year a deficit of $473,364 was reported after cash dividends were paid on both classes of stock.

The consolidated balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1922, shows inventories of $2,104,052 valued at cost or less, against $2,405,782 at the close of the previous year. Accounts payable totaled $297,402, against $132,028. The securities owned, according to F. F. Fitzpatrick, carried at $8,610,135 in the balance sheet consists mainly of United States Government securities.

SUGAR DROPS TO 8 CENTS.

Drop in Refined Sends Cuban Raw Quotations Down.

The wholesale price for granulated sugar continued to tumble yesterday, following the violent upward movement last week which carried the price to 9 cents, the highest in several years. The Federal Sugar Refining Company announced three reductions in prices, one of 15 points and two of 25 points each, thus establishing a price of 8 cents a pound compared with 8.65 cents at Monday's close and 9 cents last Saturday. Arbuckle Bros. reduced the price 50 points from 8.75 to 8.25 cents. Most of the other refiners continue out of the market pending stabilization of prices.

The drop in refined products was accompanied by a reduction in the quotations for Cuban raw sugar. This decline was due to the reports that the Cuban sugar crop for the current grinding season may be larger than the 3,600,000 tons estimated by some authorities in the trade. The composite estimate of the practical sugar men in Cuba, however, is 4,000,000 tons. Cuban raws were purchased yesterday for 4¾ cents a pound, a drop of a half cent from Monday's final quotation. Sugar futures on the local Coffee and Sugar Exchange also dropped rather sharply yesterday but recovered part of the loss.

COTTON IN DEMAND ABOVE 30C. POINT

Both March and May Contracts Reach New Highs for 1923—New Crop Irregular.

Cotton in New York sold over 30 cents yesterday under the largest volume of business in many weeks. Aggressive buying rushed prices through the even figure and above 30¼ cents for May before the market ran into a sufficient supply of contracts to halt the rise. Advices from spot quarters furnished the impulse to higher values, contracts merely following developments in actual cotton. Sales at Southern points exceeded 23,000 bales at an advance of half a cent in some instances. A report that half time in Manchester was possible the coming month put a damper on late trading, but both March and May closed above 30 cents. Final prices showed an advance of 2 to 38 points.

The fact that middling cotton was quoted above 30 cents at some Texas points on Monday had a decided influence on sentiment from the opening. Though Liverpool failed to show any enthusiasm, steadiness abroad was enough to start quotations 10 to 20 points up under active trading. Buying orders seemed quite evenly distributed, even late months being in greater demand than recently. Strength of May at a premium of 80 points or more over July attracted buying in that position while further trade calling served to absorb contracts in near months. Soon after the call a rush of buying, centred in May, carried quotations over 30 cents under a large volume of business. Several large orders were executed, May selling at 28.15 cents before realizing halted the advance. For an hour a steady stream of contracts came on the market, one broker disposing of between 10,000 and 20,000 bales of May. With both July and new crop months for sale, a reaction of 20 points took place before this cotton was all absorbed. Spot and speculative interests bought steadily on the setback and below 30 cents for May selling pressure began to diminish.

MARKET OVERSOLD AND WHEAT GOES UP

Heavy Buying for All Parts of the Country More Than Absorbs the Surplus.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—A heavily oversold condition was disclosed in the wheat market today. Houses with seaboard connections were persistent buyers of the May, and there was a heavy covering by professionals, recently on the selling side. This absorbed the surplus in the market.

Later, houses with Western and Southwestern connections became good buyers of the July and the September, and, with dry weather and unfavorable crop talk from parts of Western Kansas and Nebraska, the market started upward rapidly. The finish was at the top, with net gains of 1⅝@6⅜, and the new crop deliveries leading. The May-July spread narrowed to 3¼ cents at the last, about the smallest difference of the season.

Some improvement in the general demand for cash wheat was claimed, and also a better flour trade, which induced some buying of May.

Premiums on No. 2 red Winter dropped 2 cents today, with a sale at 15 cents over May. Hard Winter sold at May price to 2 cents over for No. 2.

Australia bought a little July wheat here today. Export business is showing improvement and, while there have been insistent claims of limited sales, around 500,000 bushels has been reported almost daily, largely Manitobas, but including some durum and hard Winter. The latter sold at New Orleans today at equal to 6¼ cents over Chicago May.

The world's available supplies, while decreasing 3,997,000 bushels for the week, are 200,506,000 bushels, or 30,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

Houses with New York connections sold May wheat at Winnipeg, and the latter market declined ⅝ cents, as compared with Chicago. Liverpool was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower at the last.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 737,000 bushels, week ago 746,000, last year 652,000. Shipments were 411,000 bushels, week ago 410,000, last year 535,000.

Corn receipts were 1,454,000 bushels, week ago 1,398,000, last year 1,541,000. Shipments were 694,000 bushels, week ago 507,000, last year 1,348,000.

"Jackson Heights has solved my living problems"

The question of a desirable place to live, logically is a question for the woman to decide. The women who live in the garden apartments at Jackson Heights, find in this finer residential section of New York City those intangible as well as tangible things that go to make living comfort for themselves as well as proper environment for the children, a certainty.

"When I talked about going down to Washington Square, I didn't see how my children could endure the sidewalks and I never dreamed there was a solution to the problem. Jackson Heights has solved this problem beyond my wildest hopes, and it is a great place for the men—men who need outdoors and need exercise.

"After all the woman's problems are her husband and children and when these problems are solved, her problems are solved. Our children are so safe.

"We came to Jackson Heights because of the children. Even when I take them to our country home in Virginia, they have not the same advantages that they have in Jackson Heights. While they have the village they have not the supervised play of Jackson Heights. I think I should rather live in Jackson Heights than in Virginia, and that is saying a lot."

The New Elevator Garden Apartment Homes are a sound investment because of the steady growth, desirability, social prestige and easy accessibility of Jackson Heights, where a Golf Course, Tennis Courts, Children's Playgrounds, an Athletic Field, a Club House, meet the requirements of those who desire to lead the normal and healthy out-of-doors life, and yet live in New York City.

BALDWIN COMPUTES DEBT,

Tells Commons It Will Be 4 Per Cent. More With $4.68 Exchange.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Associated Press).—Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a questioner in the House of Commons today, said that on the basis of the sixty-two year term for paying the debt to America the payments on the debt would be:

An immediate cash payment of $4,128,000,000; annual payment of $161,000,000 for ten years; an annual payment of $184,000,000 for fifty years, and a final payment of $118,881,350, or an aggregate of $12,948,000,000 at par of exchange, and 4 per cent more at $4.68.

These figures, he said, had no meaning whatever in relation to the sixty-two year term. If Great Britain paid more quickly, the aggregate would be reduced.

FAVOR RESTRICTING TAXICABS TO 14,000

POLICE LICENSING OPPOSED

The Drivers Also Are Against Uniforms—Hirshfield Shuts Off Delegate and Calls Policeman.

Restriction of the number of taxicabs to the present number of about 14,000, at least temporarily, probably will be recommended by the Mayor's Committee on Traffic, of which Chief Magistrate William McAdoo is Chairman and Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield and Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright are members. This was indicated yesterday at a meeting of the committee at City Hall by Mr. McAdoo, after a number of taxicab men had expressed approval of the plan to limit the number of taxicabs on the city streets.

"You are right," Mr. McAdoo said to one of them. "We must stop this farce of granting fifty new licenses a day. We will limit cars to their present number and see what develops for public demand and necessity. Taxicabs are a necessity because of the poor street car service."

Mr. McAdoo told of an instance when he waited twenty minutes for a southbound Lexington Avenue surface car at 11 o'clock one night, and was compelled to hire a taxicab to take him to his home in the Gramercy Park section because no car appeared. He mentioned the incident because he believed it showed a general situation in regard to street car service.

Did Not Consult Hedges.

Mr. Hirshfield suggested that Mr. McAdoo might take up the matter with Job E. Hedges, receiver for the New York Railways Company. Mr. McAdoo replied that Mr. Hedges probably would counsel the patience of his biblical namesake.

Hugh Werner of 107 Ninety-third Street, Woodhaven, L. I., protested against the proposal to require licensed chauffeurs to wear uniforms. He declared that the uniform developed a "slave state of mind" and that a chauffeur would not enjoy its stigma. He added that uniforms in time of war were the only kind of uniforms he stood for.

Both Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Hirshfield argued against this point of view, lifting the uniforms of letter carriers, motormen and conductors. When Mr. Werner protested that chauffeurs were private employes and should not be required to wear uniforms, Mr. McAdoo retorted that under their licenses they were public servants.

Samuel Jacobson, a driver from the Bronx, suggested that waiting taxicabs be taken in elevators and parked on the roofs of buildings to relieve congestion. "Highly theoretical, but not practical," was Mr McAdoo's comment.

A Row Develops.

A score of taxicab drivers, led by James Wolf, editor of The Taxicab World, left the hearing after Mr. Wolf had charged that he had been treated discourteously when he attempted to speak. Mr. Wolf declared that he and his colleagues had attended the hearing by invitation and accused Mr. Hirshfield of interrupting him continually. "You permitted the representative of the Hotel Men's Association to talk for two hours without interruption at the last hearing, while you won't let me talk for two minutes," he declared.

"You prepared for this climax," said Mr. Hirshfield. "You came here with the avowed intention of creating this scene. Go out and sling your mud and your ink. We don't care what you write in your publication. We have judged what your opinions amount to by your attitude here."

Mr. Hirshfield then directed a policeman to put Mr. Wolf and his friends out of the Board of Estimate chamber, where the hearing was held, but they were already on their way out and left before the policeman could reach them.

An overwhelming majority of the taxicab drivers present opposed the transfer of the power of issuing taxicab licenses from the License Department to the Police Department, and the majority also was opposed to a rule requiring them to wear uniforms.

Mr. McAdoo declared the hearings closed and said the committee would make a report to the Mayor as soon as possible.

MRS. CATT TO RESIGN AS HEAD OF ALLIANCE

Sees Larger Suffrage Field in Pan-American Union—To Quit at Rome Meeting.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt will retire from the Presidency of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance at the coming Congress of the Alliance in Rome, Italy, May 12 to 19. Mrs. Catt organized the alliance in Berlin, in 1904, and there are now twenty-eight nations represented. Her successor is in doubt, although it is admitted that in the present unsettled condition of Europe only a British woman could replace an American as executive head of an organization fighting for the equal rights of women.

Mrs. Millicent Garrett Fawcett, the veteran English Suffrage leader, is unable to accept so heavy a responsibility, and Mrs. Margaret Corbett Ashby, the present Recording Secretary, has been named as the logical candidate.

Mrs. Catt's immediate reason for resigning is that she may devote herself to the promotion of the Pan American Union, which was started at Baltimore a year ago, when 123 delegates from the Latin-American countries met. The recent Pan-American Council in Argentine, attended by Mrs. Catt, which elected her President, convinced her that a union of the Americas for the political freedom of women, would prove a powerful agent in forwarding the ambitions of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance.

Mrs. Catt was President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association from 1900 to 1904. She was re-elected in 1915 as successor to Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, and led the campaign which brought the Federal Amendment and its ratification. Mrs. Catt will spend some time in London after her Argentine trip before proceeding to Rome.

PONZI SEEKS FREEDOM.

Asks Commutation of Three Years on Ground of Ill Health.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Charles Ponzi, who has served twenty-seven months of a five-year sentence for using the mails to defraud in his international postal coupon swindle, is an applicant for clemency and commutation, it became known today.

United States Attorney Harris received from Washington Ponzi's petition, based on ill health. The prisoner returned two days ago to Plymouth Jail after an operation at a hospital here for stomach trouble. Further confinement would work a permanent injury to him, he contends.

There is still another indictment outstanding against him in the Federal Court here, charging illegal use of the mails, and several remain to be tried in the State courts, where a jury acquitted him of multiple charges of larceny several months ago.

You wouldn't sell him this opportunity, but are you making use of it yourself?

If you package your goods in large and small sizes, you have a chance to tell users the advantage of buying the larger units.

If you sell more than one kind of goods, the package enclosure enables you to acquaint consumers of each line with the others which they should buy.

Also, directions for the use or care of the goods may greatly increase their service.

A printed slip or folder enclosed in the package tells a select group of people the facts about your goods you are anxious for them to know.

Whether this enclosure is noticed and read depends largely on the way it is designed, the quality of the printing and of the paper. Better Printing on Better Paper means more readers.
